SUMMARY.

The British are still advancing both north and south of Peronne, and are driving in the enemy's rearguards.

The Germans are endeavouring for the moment to transform their retreat into a stand-off artillery battle before Cambrai.

The enemy is using gas extensively, and is flooding the valleys and roads, indicating that Hindenburg is seeking to obtain the initiative.

The British troops in the Masnancourt district were held up at the canal not only by machine-guns but also by heavy shells.

The Germans were thus permitted to essay a counter-attack, which, however, was repulsed.

The enemy withdrawal in the Lys sector continues. The British are closely pressing the Germans.

The British have captured Hill 62, south-westward of Messines, taking over 100 prisoners.

Ploegsteert was captured on Thursday afternoon. The enemy's repeated attacks in the Wytschaete sector were unsuccessful.

The British improved their positions southward of Moeuvres and captured Neuville Bourjonval.

In the past four days the British have taken over 16,000 prisoners and captured over 100 guns.

The Germans admit that they were pressed back to a new line between Ypres and La Bassee.

The steady withdrawal of the enemy under pressure back to the line of the Somme-Oise Canal has been accompanied by heavy fighting.

The French gained a footing on the east side of the canal in the neighbourhood of Noyon, and used it as a jumping-off place in a further advance towards the Somme.

The fighting was particularly heavy in the neighbourhood of Juvigny and Terny Sorny, where the Americans are operating.

A considerable advance was made, and the enemy commenced to withdraw from the line of the Vesle across the Aisne.

The French and Americans north of the Vesle have reached the line of the Aisne. The Germans are still retreating.

It is reported that the enemy is about to abandon La Fere and Chauny.

He is burning everything in his retreat in order to create a desert zone.

La Fere, Chauny, and Jussy are ablaze. Several villages between the Vesle and the Aisne have been destroyed.

The French carried their lines north of Guiscard, and gained the outskirts of Berlancourt.

Between the Ailette and the Aisne they carried Clamency, Brayo, and Missy-sur-Aisne.

A Berlin official message admits the withdrawal of the German troops.

"We withdrew from the Vesle east of Soissons undisturbed," the report says.

A semi-official telegram from Berlin appeals to the people to "keep cool," despite the threatened extension of the Allies' offensive.

A meeting of the Premiers of the Central Powers will take place next week, either in Vienna or Berlin.

They will probably discuss some decisive peace policy, in order to prevent the horrors of another winter of war.

It is rumoured that the Emperor of Austria demands mediation through King Alfonso or Queen Wilhelmina.

German agents in Switzerland are circulating reports that Germany is ready to conclude peace.

The basis, it is said, will be the evacuation of France and Belgium, but Germany is against the payment of an indemnity.

Lord Reading says: The Prussian dream of world mastery has vanished because of the bravery of the Allies' armies.

"If everyone will work hard during the coming months Germany, it is certain, will be decisively beaten," he adds.

Mr. Samuel Gompers says: "The Hun is on the run, and by the gods we are going to keep him running."

The British merchantmen completed in August aggregated 134,675 tons, as compared with 161,848 tons in July.

Mr. J. M'Garvie Smith, who presented to the State his secret for making anthrax vaccine, died suddenly yesterday.

The distinguished scientist was about to receive a Knighthood as an acknowledgment of his services to the State.

The members of the French Mission, headed by General Pau, will reach Sydney on Tuesday.

The State Government has arranged a comprehensive itinerary for the mission in New South Wales.

Victoria is suffering from a dearth of artisans, and many men are stated to have left for New South Wales.

The Melbourne Labour Bureau has been instructed to inquire into the drift of labour from the State.

The committee of Jack's Day is making preparations for the collections in the streets on November 1.

In view of the combined shipping and naval efforts, the previous plans will have to be modified.

Many offers from willing helpers in the movement have already been received.

Application is being made to the Federal Arbitration Court for a compulsory conference in the Port Pirie dispute.

The Victorian Court of Marine Inquiry found that no one was to blame for the loss of the barque John Murray at Malden Island.

A demented mother, living at Manly, attacked two of her children yesterday, and then took poison.

One of the children, a boy four years of age, died in the Manly Cottage Hospital last night.

The Lord Mayor's Patriotic Fund is becoming depleted owing to the many claims upon it.

It has accordingly been decided to make a special appeal to the public on October 12.

This date has been set apart as Soldiers' Dependents' Day, but the period of collection will range between October 6 and 11.

Mr. Beeby unveiled an honour roll in the Department of Labour and Industry yesterday.

It was stated that a total of 17,598 men had enlisted from the Public Service.

The total amount received in response to the Red Cross appeal in April last has now reached £406,000.

Another contingent of soldiers returned to Sydney yesterday. There were 150 New South Wales men and 70 Queenslanders.

Among the arrivals was Chaplain Stacy Waddy, formerly headmaster of King's School, Parramatta.

A clear working week remains before the Seventh War Loan is officially launched on September 16.

The Central Committee has hopes of securing the presence of the French Mission at the official ceremony.

The inquiry by Mr. Justice Street into the conduct of the police in connection with the I.W.W. case was continued yesterday.

His Honor said he would not allow the police concerned to be called at the present stage.

That ruling, however, did not apply to Acting Superintendent Walker in giving the history of the case.

Further evidence was taken, and the commission will be resumed on Monday.

Business in investments on the Stock Exchange yesterday was characterised by a firm tone, prices generally being higher.

The high rates for manufactured metals were well maintained yesterday. The market was bare of barbed wire.

At yesterday's tea sale the prices offered did not come up to vendors' ideas of values.

Some merchants appeared convinced that a duty would be imposed on all tea imported into the Commonwealth.

Butter was very scarce in Sussex-street, and all orders were cut down considerably.

Bacon sold well. Stocks of cheese continued light. There was no change in egg quotations.

Forecast:—Further rain squalls in the coastal districts, reaching to parts of the highlands; some heavy falls; snow on the southern tablelands, probably extending northward; otherwise fine and cool to cold generally. Gusts inland.

FARMER'S, SYDNEY. 1840—1918. Seventy-eight Years. THE HOUSE OF DISTINCTION.

SATURDAY ACCEPTED AS CHILDREN'S SHOPPING MORNING AT FARMER'S.

Even a stranger within our store would note the fact that Saturday is the accepted Children's Shopping Day at Farmer's. The spirit of youthful animation pervades every juvenile department, every Boy and Girls' Section presenting a picture of happy young folks trying on and selecting particular new apparel for Spring and Summer Wear.

For years Farmer's has claimed to be the premier House for Children's Requirements—claimed to have expended as much care and thought in selecting the correct style and quality of clothing for each season's wearing as in meeting the demands of the grown folk—and to have kept, too, the same keen eye on the economy side of the question. THUS FARMER'S JUVENILE CLOTHING IS ALWAYS OF SOLID VALUE.

FARMER'S "PLAY" BLOUSES ARE THE VERY THINGS FOR YOUNGSTERS GOING TO SCHOOL.

Smaller sizes are obtainable also to fit younger boys from 2 years upwards. If proof of our "solid value" claim were required, these Blouses surely provide it.

"PLAYTIME" AND "PLAYFAIR," BOTH PRICED AT 4/6.

W. JNO. BAKER. FINEST SHEFFIELD RAZORS.

The best testimony to the quality of my Razors is the fact that customers write in following strain:—

"I have had one of your razors for 17 or 18 years, and used it constantly two or three times a week."

Others quote 14 years, and one quotes 53 years as the time the razor has been in constant use. When a razor has stood such a test it can truthfully be said that it is a good razor, and must be made of extraordinarily good steel. These I quote below are the same quality razors. Prices are:—

A.—MEDIUM HOLLOW GROUND RAZOR, blades of really good quality. Price, 6/6 and 7/6 each.

B.—FULL HOLLOW GROUND RAZOR, best quality blades, black polished handle. Price, 9/6.

C.—EXTRA FULL HOLLOW GROUND RAZOR, best quality blades, black polished handle. A well-finished razor at moderate cost. Price, 12/.

D.—EXTRA FULL HOLLOW GROUND RAZOR, one of my standards, best quality blades, black polished handle. Price, 15/6.

I also stock a fine selection of SHAVING BRUSHES, RAZOR STROPS, and RAZOR HONES at moderate prices.

Every Poultry Farmer owes it to himself to inspect NEWTOWN COLONY BROODERS at work.

Look up your neighbours who have installed them, and find out from the actual users what an immense advance in brooding devices the "Newtown" Colony Brooder represents.
It may be too late to instal them for this season, but you will have first-hand knowledge as to the advisability of scrapping your old obsolete equipment, and installing "Newtowns" in plenty of time for the 1919 season.

RESULTS GUARANTEED.

The size of a chick at, say, 6 weeks of age, depends largely on the elements supplied in the feed.

THORPE'S GROWING MASH with THORPE'S WEEK-OLD and EXTRA SPECIAL CHICK FOOD, provides the proper balance of all the elements required, and makes chicks develop twice as fast as chicks fed on a purely cereal ration.
Thorpe's Foods are the standard Poultry Foods of Australia, and are sold in every State of the Commonwealth.
There is only one reason—they give results.

IF YOU REQUIRE BELTING we are the SPECIALISTS IN THIS DIRECTION. Whether your preference be LEATHER, BALATA, OR OTHER type of Textile Belting, we can supply your requirements.
We carry the largest stocks of Belting in this State, as an inspection of our Warehouse would disclose. "NAVY" LEATHER and "CHONATA" BALATA are two specialities, and each is of the highest quality, and is guaranteed.
We are sole Agents for the CONDOR CONVEYOR and DRIVING BELT, which is considerably cheaper than Leather or Balata. For Conveyors of all descriptions, particularly for Brick or Tile Works, we strongly recommend it.
Write for our Catalogue of all Engineers' Requirements, which includes Pulleys, "Navy" Lubricating Oil, Shafting, Bearings, Valves, Boiler Mountings, Atkins Circular and Band Saws, Hacksaws, and numerous other lines. Write or ring.

LOSS OF POWER IS A SHORT CUT TO LOSS OF PROFITS.
An idle Belt means idle machinery, and idle machinery has idle employees as partners. Stops and slippage are the chief causes of loss in power and profits.
DICK'S BALATA BELTING (The Original and Genuine) stands for greater Efficiency. It stretches less than any other Belt. With ordinary care it will not slip. Costs the least for upkeep, and has been proved as a result of a quarter of a century's experience to be the strongest Belting made.

PAIGE, USED CAR DEPOT, WORKSHOPS AND GARAGE.
A new Car depreciates from 30 to 50 per cent. the first year. A good, guaranteed, rebuilt Car or Lorry, with a written guarantee, bought at the right price, is a better investment than a cheap new car, and is a profitable investment that, after years of service, only shows a low rate of depreciation.
We have been in the Motor Business sixteen years, and can refer you to a thousand satisfied clients throughout New South Wales.
We have a number of the leading makes of Cars and Lorries, both European and American, at very reasonable prices. Your small car taken as a part payment. Write to us and we will sent you full particulars.

HAVEN'T YOU MADE UP YOUR MIND? And yet you know—you must know—that there are no new cars coming to Australia in a very short while.
You know—you must know—as a consequence, there will not be much choice in the second-hand market, and that the prices will be higher.
That is, take the advantage of purchasing immediately, good range of choice, reasonable prices, but, best of all, an article which you will be able to use for some time, and, if you then wish, dispose of it at a higher price than you paid for it.
Best of European and American Cars in stock, all sizes and prices.

Orbost, Vic., 2/9/'18.

A SOURCE OF NATIONAL SERVICE.

Now when the automobile is, more than ever, an essential public utility, every motor car is an effective national resource—radiating "lines of transportation" which relieve traffic, conserve personal efficiency, and promote the general good.
For the business executive it simplifies daily routine, enabling him to carry out his work with least waste time and energy.
The farmer urged to produce more has found the ownership of a motor car a national duty as well as a personal convenience, enabling him to negotiate distance under all road conditions.
In Government work, mine and lumber camp, in mail service, and wherever industrial needs are most strenuous, the directors of the work by the use of motor cars have greatly increased the scope of their service.
The Buick car is a favourite in all lines of action, because modern demands are answered by the success of Buick building, its economy of upkeep, and dependable hardihood in service.

"THE SENSIBLE SIX"

OVERCOMES ALL OBSTACLES—BOGS, SNOWDRIFTS, GREASY MOUNTAIN ROADS, HEAVY MUD, SWOLLEN CREEKS, AND ROADS THAT ARE USUALLY CONSIDERED IMPASSABLE FOR A MOTOR CAR.

MR. R. B. DREW, IN THE COURSE OF HIS BUSINESS AS A SHEARING CONTRACTOR, HAS DRIVEN HIS "OAKLAND SENSIBLE SIX" THE FULL LENGTH OF THE EASTERN STATES OF AUSTRALIA; FROM THE GULF OF CARPENTARIA TO MELBOURNE, MOSTLY ON THE UNMADE BACK COUNTRY ROADS—RAIN OR SHINE, GOOD ROADS, BAD ROADS, AND JUST TRACKS. HE IS COMPELLED TO GET THROUGH ON SCHEDULE TIME; OFTEN UNDER ALMOST IMPOSSIBLE CONDITIONS, AND HIS CAR HAS NEVER YET FAILED.

In May last Mr. R. B. Drew finished a shearing contract in the Gulf of Carpentaria district and set out immediately to drive his car to Sydney, via Richmond, Charleville, and Bourke, a distance of 1800 miles, so as to be ready to start another contract on the Lachlan 10 days later. The 1800 mile journey was completed in 8 days, the car carrying 3 passengers, luggage, and shearing machine spare.

Just lately Mr. Drew again met difficult road conditions on a journey from Sydney to Melbourne, via the Coast. At Delegate a violent snowstorm was in progress—in fact the worst that had been known for 20 years—and everyone said it was impossible for a car to get through to Orbost. However, Mr. Drew decided to get as far as he could, and [illegible], he negotiated safely the slippery roads and snowdrifts for a distance of 35 miles. [illegible] were crossed with the water on a level with the floorboards of the car, yet the little car never hesitated.

Read the latest letter we received from Mr. Drew:—

North Tuena, September 6, 1918.
Messrs. Roy W. Sandford, Ltd., 181 Elizabeth-street, Sydney.
Dear Sirs,—I would like to let you know a few details of my trip from Sydney to Melbourne, via the South Coast, so as to be in Melbourne at the time of the Grand National.
As you are aware at this period this district was suffering the effects of a severe snowstorm—it was supposed to be the greatest snowstorm they had had for 20 years. At Delegate they told me it was impossible for a car to get to Orbost. After breakfast I left Delegate and went to Sardine Creek and stopped the night. The mail coach which should have been along three days before had not arrived at Sardine Creek. We left the next morning, and found fallen trees over this Mountain road had been the cause of the delay.
After cutting two trees off the road we got through to Orbost, and eventually arrived at Melbourne on Saturday.
I have done 11,800 miles in the Oakland, and have absolutely never had a hitch with it right through the term of eight months. I have not had any previous car experience, and if anything happened to go wrong with it I do not think I would know how to put it right.
I must say that I consider the "Oakland" car the best possible Car for the class of work I do as Shearing Contractor. Yours faithfully
(Sgd.) R. B. Drew.

THIS CAR, LIKE ALL OAKLANDS, IS AVERAGING 27-30 MILES PER GALLON OF PETROL.

QUIETNESS OF OPERATION.

A noisy motor means badly fitting parts, friction, rapid wear, loss of power, waste of fuel, and lubricating oil and costly replacements, not to mention the disagreeable annoyance of driving a noisy motor, and the performance of which no dependence can be placed. THE AGENT-GENERAL.

WAR WORK AND WAR DIFFICULTIES.

(BY ARTHUR MASON.)

LONDON, June 25.

The Agent-General's Office in London is a New South Wales activity concerning which very little is heard and next to nothing, one suspects, is known by the public it represents. Like most of the world's activities, be they the elaborate machinery of government or the humble daily round of the individual citizen, it has been disturbed from its habitual courses by the war, and for that reason alone of its somewhat different aspect it deserves to be remembered in these days, both as a part of our official expression of ourselves in this metropolis and as usefully energetic in spite of all the difficulties of this tragic time. The Agent-General of our State, or of any State, is obviously a less important functionary than he was in the days before the Commonwealth of States established Australia as such in the eyes of the world outside it, and the Agent-General's Office cannot, as a consequence, be expected to loom as large in the vision of London as the Commonwealth Office. But by now there might well have been no State representation of us at all, so completely could the Commonwealth have dominated us in respect of official interpretation of Australia, and the very fact that Agents-General still flourish and Agents-General's office still persist, quite actively and quite usefully, is in itself proof that some or other need remains for emphasis of the importance of the States as individual components of us.

There is no need to labour this point in so far as New South Wales readers are concerned and when New South Wales is the entity in question. We are content to believe that we are entitled to individual voice in London, and we are quite certain that some things can be better said on behalf of New South Wales, and many things can be better done, by our own State representation than by the general authority of the Commonwealth representation. Hence those of us who live and move and have our being here are never perturbed as we walk Cockspur-street and see before us there the handsomely appointed windows of Sydney House, as prominent as anything within that highway, and more attractive than most things. And we are never less than content to forget awhile the all-engrossing, the well-nigh inescapable, the sometimes terribly insistent sway of this life of London, as we turn in at the doors of the New South Wales office and are in touch once more with the men and the things, the aspirations and the interests, of our own place.

That, of course, is no more than the sentimental side of the matter, and, after all, anything less sentimental, essentially, than our Agent-General's office could not be imagined. It has, of course, its human side, and within the period of these four years, sentiment and the personal touch have had to be prominently active there by reason of the Australian soldier, for example, and his individual need and claim. But that has been by the way. Primarily the Agent-General's office is a business department, and its work is the work concerned with the wholly unsentimental and quite often unromantic facts of the world of business. In such days as these, moreover, those facts and all the activities concerned in them take on a new complexity, become more difficult, and need infinitely greater care and resource than in the normal days that are fled. Much of the Agent-General's work, for example, centres in the indent department. It is work which always comprised indents, shipping, and insurances, but it now demands, in addition, a complicated and vexatious set of impedimenta known as priority classifications and licenses. In those words is hidden our share of the burden of the provision of the material of war, and the shipping dislocation of war-time, and all that that connotes of prohibitions, restrictions, lack of ships, shortage of space, and what not. Practically no supply of goods can be contracted for nowadays, until priority classifications allowing the issue of those goods from this country have been granted. The supply of raw materials—those, for example, of textiles—also is strictly regulated by a code of prohibitions and sanctions, and when at last all the conditions have been met and the goods are ready, a further obstacle has to be breasted in the shape of the War Trade Department's prohibited list—a comprehensive schedule of forbidden exports, which seems always to include just what New South Wales manufacturers are needing. Nor is that all—for when every other difficulty seems to have been overcome actual shipment is still far off, by reason of shipping shortage and transit difficulties. And when there are added to these sufficiently formidable complications the necessary marine and war risk insurance calculations, the fact that export licenses sometimes are freakishly refused, even when all the conditions have been fulfilled and priority has been obtained, and the contrary fact that permissions to ship sometimes issue mysteriously from the War Trade Department in respect of goods that have been refused priority—when these facts are added to the others, it can be understood what a voluminous correspondence is necessary under this head alone of indents, to say nothing of the worry and confusion attendant upon so many rules and regulations, mays, and must-nots. In one important regard, that of indents for railway materials, war-time has lessened the demand upon the Agent-General's office, by reason of direct dealings between the Government of New South Wales and America. But though in that respect contracts are not placed here, and the Agent-General's office is relieved of the business of shipping, etc., there is still a good deal of correspondence concerning railway accounts, orders on bankers or agents, and much other business in the way of checkings, certificates, and general detail.

The commercial department, which exists to encourage trade between New South Wales and the United Kingdom, is also an important activity. It is maintained as such, despite the troublous times. Still, as in the days of old, New South Wales firms consult the Agent-General as to the possibilities of trade, and are advised by him as to markets, the quality of goods in demand, packing requirements, prices existent or anticipated, and particulars as to firms in this country suitable for consultation. Commercial concerns here and in America, similarly, are put in touch with exporters of New South Wales, and otherwise the commercial department of the Agent-General's office is usefully employed in placing New South Wales contracts with the Imperial Government and other official bodies, while it is of considerable value to British firms who seek statistical information concerning our State.

The accounts branch has its own specialised activities in the matter of loan issues, debentures, Treasury bills, etc., payments and receipts of many and varied accounts, and in these times it has been directly engaged in the relief of temporary troubles of our soldiers. Financial troubles, these, which have impelled many of the men to the New South Wales office, there to ask that cable requests for the money they needed might be sent to their friends at home, or that they might get from the Agent-General small advances from their accounts in the New South Government Savings Bank. In these regards the Agent-General's office has been most helpful to New South Wales soldiers in time of need, and in most regards, indeed, its functions, very adequately met by a staff which has suffered the universal war-time dismemberment, but remains efficient and energetic, are of undiminished value to our State.

NIGHT SHOPPING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—As one who has worked all hours in the grocery trade, I cannot let comments re above pass without some backing in favour of the universal Saturday half-holiday, and abolition of the late night particularly. My experience extends over 25 years, the best part of which has been in the position of head grocer. I have studied the shopping of people closely for some years in various towns, and I can safely say that 98 per cent. at least of those simply did their buying on the late night because the shops were open. This has been told to me by customers themselves, country people included. The heads and assistants in various departments are more in the confidence of customers than the employer as to what the people think of the working hours, so I feel pretty safe in stating what I have heard. Some persons argue that country folk must have the stores open because it is a convenience for them. Well, all I say to that is "bosh!" Country customers do not shop at night time; it is all done in daylight. Again, why should shop assistants have to work two or three hours later on one night a week any more than a carpenter, bricklayer, or a mechanic? Surely the assistants' health and life are worth as much to the community as the other section, as the last few hours of the week are just the breaking point of their endurance, more especially with the female employee. I trust others will take this matter up, and show that employees, after all, are human beings, not drones. On behalf of thousands I say to the Government: Make a universal half-holiday and abolish the late-night shopping particularly, and so earn the gratitude, with others, of I am, etc.,

ONE OF THEM.

"AUSTRALIA UNLIMITED."

Six years of hard work by Mr. E. J. Brady, the Australian journalist, is contained in a weighty tome of 1083 pages, "Australia Unlimited," just published by the George Robertson and Company Proprietary, Limited, of Melbourne. It is comprehensive, authoritative, and very attractively written. It deals with every aspect of Australian life. From its pages, one can learn about the adventurous Dutchmen who visited the coast of Western Australia 300 years ago, under what tenure one may take up land in New South Wales, or the possibilities of rice growing in the Northern Territory.

Mr. Brady appears to have attacked his enormous subject with thoroughness and method, carefully apportioning space to each branch in accordance with the size of the book and the importance of the matter. He has worked in the midst of officials and official publications, and so his book bears the stamp of authority; but he has gone personally into every corner of the Commonwealth, and has described everything in his inimitable and most pleasing fashion, so that the work rises from the catalogue grade high into the ranks of literary merit. Many of the articles, apart from their informative value, are worth reading because of their descriptive style—"Sydney Harbour" and "Land of Milk and Honey," for instance.

The book commences with the dawn of Australian history, and ends with present-day conditions. A careful arrangement of the matter and a copious index will permit one interested in Australia to find almost anything he requires about Commonwealth affairs. As the title suggests, the book urges and insists that Australia is the great land of opportunity. Mr. Brady, while writing of the past and the present, has been writing for the future. For instance: "There is no country so paradoxical as Australia; no country which can be judged less by surface indications, no country so full of occupation, unexpected surprises. After 125 years of occupation, Australians themselves have begun to realise that the whole volume of previous conclusions will have to be re-written, that parts of Australia which were regarded in early days as waste lands are destined to prove among the richest sections of the Commonwealth. In place of a continent containing edges of fertility and large areas of sterility, it is found that the whole Commonwealth can be put to account, leaving ultimately only a few arid strips in the remote interior, and these not actual desert." Again: "Very early in the country's history there grew up a stereotyped conception of the interior as a dry and waterless desert, composed for the most part of shifting sands, scorched by everlasting suns, and swept by constant hot winds. . . . . . It will be finally consigned to the limbo of ancient fallacies. It is doubtful if there are a hundred square miles of true desert within the whole Australian continent, and it is now an established fact that millions of acres, once regarded as useless for agricultural purposes, are among the most fertile and productive lands in the world."

So the author goes on to explode myth after myth. "Australia," he says, "has been a land of doubting Thomases, where machine-made critics spent their leisure time in predicting the failure of each fresh enterprise." Of settlers in the remote west of New South Wales: "There was nothing to doubt and nothing to dread. All they wanted was transport and the right kind of settler; the land would do the rest." "Our trouble is that Australia, all over, has too much good agricultural country and not enough people." Mr. Brady's chapter on "undeveloped resources," and his "list of problems awaiting solution" should be read by every good Australian.

An interesting section of "Australia Unlimited" deals with the Northern Territory, which Mr. Brady has visited and studied. He gives his own impressions, and summarises the opinion of many who know the region intimately, and he succeeds in throwing some new light on this most difficult Australian problem. All politicians and would-be politicians should study the information he has gathered on the question of developing this empty land by means of cheap, coloured labour.

The book is beautifully printed on high-class paper, and is most generously illustrated with many hundreds of fine photographs. In fact, this collection of photographs, illustrating every phase of Australian life, is probably unique. They will give people in other countries an idea of Australia that no amount of vivid writing could convey. Although "Australia Unlimited," which is year-book, guide-book, encyclopaedia, and book of travel all in one, is too bulky and expensive to be a handy volume to scatter widely among prospective immigrants—and that is what Australia wants—it is nevertheless a compilation that will probably be found in the future in every well-conducted library.

TEACHERS' SALARIES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—On the Estimates now before Parliament the Government has placed a sum of £50,000 to increase the salaries of lower grade teachers. This is something, certainly, but by no means what the teachers have been led to expect, nor what they are entitled to. Teachers' salaries (with the slight exception of certain unclassified teachers) have not been increased since 1911, although it is admitted that they were underpaid even then. The State Government Statistician estimates that the cost of living has increased 35.1 per cent. since 1914. So that to bring teachers' salaries to their former purchasing value almost £450,000 would be required, yet teachers are asked to be content with £50,000—an average increase of less than 4 per cent. to meet the 35 per cent. increase in the cost of living. True, they also get much sympathy, but this does not help them to meet the weekly accounts of their tradespeople.

I do not think the general public realise how grossly underpaid teachers of the lower grades are. A few comparisons may serve to enlighten them. Leaving out such comparatively lucrative callings as those of slaughtermen, bricklayers, and wharf-labourer, the State trawling industry recently advertised for men to clean fish at £3/10/ a week. The lowest paid police constable gets 9/6 a day for seven days in the week, plus quarters, or 1/ a day in lieu thereof, equals £3/13/6 per week. At the Petersham Superior Commercial School the pay of the caretaker and cleaner, with his extras such as free gas, fuel, and quarters, and cleaning after the night school, is worth more than that of any teacher on the staff with the exception of the headmaster and first assistant. At the Fort-street Boys' High School the lowest paid members of the staff get less than the caretaker (allowing for free gas, fuel, and quarters). The award rate for caretakers and cleaners is £3/5/6 per week. Yet over 1200 adult teachers, in spite of the qualifications and training required for the position, get £132 a year, or £2/10/9 a week.

Is it any wonder that teachers, having waited for redress of their grievances until the condition of many of them is becoming desperate, are now seeking for an amendment of the Arbitration Act so that their case can be considered by an independent and impartial tribunal? Too long have they heard the statements "the time is inopportune," "the financial stringency will not allow of it being done at present," etc., etc. They feel that the question of deciding the salaries the importance of their work merits should not be made one of party politics, but should be decided by an independent tribunal, which would not be prejudiced by having to find the money to pay such increases as would assuredly be awarded. A Judge of the Arbitration Court with competent assessors is the tribunal in which teachers would have the greatest confidence.

In the meantime the attention of the general public should be directed to the fact that the sweating policy of the Government and their false economy in refusing to improve teachers' salaries are already reacting on the efficiency of the teaching service, and the consequences are likely to be far-reaching. Young men of ability have absolutely no incentive to take up the teaching profession. Only 24 per cent. of the students at present in training at Blackfriars and Hereford House are men (147 men and 459 women). Of the 800 teachers who are serving with the A.I.F. it is more than probable that a very large number will not re-enter the service when they return to New South Wales. Others who were in the service have left to better themselves, and more are considering whether it would not be advisable to do so. It would be interesting to know just how many University graduates and undergraduates have left the service during the last ten years. The numbers may be less than a hundred, but I contend that the loss of even a dozen of the best brains is a serious matter to the cause of education in New South Wales, more especially so since so few men to take their places are now entering the service. Already the department is finding it very hard to get qualified teachers of science and mathematics, and the present policy of false economy is not likely to make matters easier in this respect.

Mr. Justice Heydon recently remarked that if an industry could not afford to pay a living wage then it should be abandoned. Let the Government take this to heart with reference to teachers' salaries. I am, etc.,

M. MACKINNON.

They laboured for several years among the interesting tribes-people of West China called the Black Miao. After addressing a number of meetings the missionaries will return to China at the end of the month.

Mr. A. S. Austin, a well-known Victorian pastoralist, has been appointed by the National Committee Army and Navy Department of the Y.M.C.A. of Australia as hon. commissioner to Egypt and Palestine. Mr. Austin will visit this war front at his own expense.

Mr. A. E. Illingworth has resigned the charge of Enmore Tabernacle of the Church of Christ, but has been asked to reconsider his decision.

The Rev. Walter J. Eddy, general secretary for Australia of the Mission to Lepers, is making Sydney his temporary headquarters, with an office at the Y.M.C.A., where Mr. H. H. Falle is State secretary and treasurer. To-morrow Mr. Eddy will preach at the Methodist Church, Strathfield, and the Congregational Church, Petersham, and will address Sunday schools at St. Ann's, Ryde. During next week he will deliver a pictorial recital at these churches.

The men's meeting at the Y.M.C.A. to-morrow afternoon will be of a special character, the speaker being Mr. J. J. Virgo, C.B.E., and his subject will be "How God Reveals Himself." A song service preceding the address will be led by Mr. Harry Ferguson.

HEROIC SERVIA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I am instructed by the committee of the Servian Canteens Fund to express their sincere appreciation of the very lucid exposition of Servia's troubles in your article of August 31. May I at the same time draw your attention to a little booklet on "The Heroic Servians," written by Brigadier-General Spencer Browne, C.B., V.D., of the A.I.F., and published a short time ago at Weymouth in England. In a series of three articles in this booklet General Browne describes very clearly the extraordinary claims which the heroic Servians have upon us and upon the free peoples of all countries. He throws some interesting sidelights upon the great battle of Kossovo in 1389, where the Servians barred the way against the Turkish encroachment of Christian Europe, and reminds us that though the Servians were defeated on the Plains of Kossovo they celebrate that glorious defeat every year as their greatest national festival. The Servians then preferred death and defeat to dishonour, as they did again so nobly in 1914.

In describing the crushing of Servia in 1915, General Browne uses these words:—"When the awful chapters of the crucifixion of Servia come to be written the civilised world will stand numbed and dry-eyed. Agitation and tears are for the small sorrows of life. In view of the bleeding heart of martyred Servia, what adequate expression is there in all the ordinary emotions of human kind? Money is little enough to give to them, God knows; but it will help to clothe the naked, feed the hungry, and provide comforts for the sick. Such is the condition of Allies as loyal and brave as Britain has ever had by her side."

May I urge upon your readers that they should endeavour to obtain this booklet on "The Heroic Servians," by General Browne, as I feel sure that if they do they will glean a great deal of information which has not hitherto been readily accessible to Australian readers, such as the magnificent story of the very old King Peter, who visited his soldiers in the trenches during one of the darkest hours of their fight against the Austrians in 1915, and said to his men, "Heroes, you have taken two oaths, one to me, your King, and one to your country. From the first I release you, but from the second, no man can release you. But if you decide to return to your homes, and if we should be victorious, you shall not be made to suffer, but I and my sons remain here." Every Servian remained at his post with his King.

The committee, in making this appeal for the Servian Canteens Fund, believe that there is not a single Servian soldier who has not suffered in the cause of the Allies, and under these circumstances it is surely not too much to ask of those who have the means that they should assist in providing a canteen where food and clothing can be purchased at cost price by those unfortunate heroes who unflinchingly drank the cup of humiliation and disaster to the dregs when they chose to retire through the barren and inhospitable Albanian mountains in preference to the easy course of retreating down to Salonica to embarrass the weak French and English forces there and bring the Austro-German army with them on their heels. I am, etc.,

CURRENT LITERATURE.

BAPAUME TO PASSCHENDAELE.

Although the British offensive on the Western front in the spring of 1917 has been eclipsed by greater operations since, and, although much of the territory then gained was subsequently lost—to be regained still more recently—it was of considerable importance at the time. In many hearts it raised the hope that the year of deliverance was at hand, and, though this hope was not to be fulfilled, it showed that the British had profited by the lessons of the Somme. To Australians this offensive has a particular interest, for in it our men added to the laurels of the previous year on the Western front, and immortalised the names of Messines and Passchendaele in the Australian vocabulary. The story is told in "From Bapaume to Passchendaele," by Mr. Philip Gibbs, and is fortunate in its chronicler, for among all the correspondents who have written of the war Mr. Gibbs occupies a position of his own. He hates the war and all that it means. He shirks nothing of its ugliness; he speaks plainly of its agony; its unutterable ugliness and squalor. But he can see beneath its tragedy the spirit of the Allies' war, the spirit which makes a sacrificial temple of a shambles, which transfigures our hosts and animates their efforts. It is simply absurd to say that these brave men are making their sacrifice in vain; they are fighting for an ideal, though it is not always articulate. They are fighting that they and their children need not fight again. That is the spirit of our side in this war.

The story begins with the German retreat to the Hindenburg line and the easy progress of the French and British. They had not much heavy fighting to do, but the desolation struck home to their souls. When the Germans advance they destroy; when they retire they devastate. "It was like wandering through a plague-stricken land abandoned after some fiendish orgy of men drunk with the spirit of destruction. Every cottage in villages for miles round had been gutted by explosion. Every church had been blown up. The orchards had been cut down, and some of the graves ransacked for their lead." When the line became static again preparations were made for the spring offensive. Mr. Gibbs explains why we built too largely on his hopes. In both sectors, the Somme and Flanders, it was conditional on the success of movements elsewhere. Unless the progress of events in other parts of the front justified the expenditure of further heavy efforts, neither of these thrusts were meant to seek any decisive result. The Flanders thrust in fact was secondary to that from Arras, and both were intended to hold a certain number of German divisions while the French were carrying out their offensive in the Champagne. The British were doing the "team work" for the French and the French also were acting in conformity with a wider scheme. But "by bad luck the Italians were not ready to strike at the same time, and the Russian Revolution had already begun to relieve the enemy of his Eastern menace, so that the Anglo-French offensive did not have the prospect of decisive victory which might have come if the German armies had been pressed on all fronts."

Still, this offensive, launched by the high command with the knowledge that it was a "containing" move and not an attempt at a decision, succeeded almost beyond expectations. Its story abounds in splendid achievements, in endurance which endured when flesh and blood could be pardoned for breaking before the strain; in heroic sacrifices which were none the less noble because they were taken all as a part of the day's work. In this connection Mr. Gibbs celebrates the chivalry of the Australians, who, after a hard fight, refused water because it was needed "further on"—an action which reminds one of Sir Philip Sidney at Zutphen. He has much to say of the Australians at Bapaume, Passchendaele, Messines, Menin Wood, and elsewhere, and he is generous in praise. But he reminds us that there were others engaged besides the Australians. Sometimes our pride in our own men is apt to make us lose our sense of proportion.

Mr. Gibbs has profited by a change of policy on the part of the authorities. In the past the names of individual regiments were not allowed to be given until years after the operations described, the idea being, of course, that it might be of advantage to the enemy to know our order of battle. But the powers that be have at last come to the conclusion that this reticence is unnecessary when a movement is definitely over and done with, and the particulars which Mr. Gibbs is free to give not only enhance the interest of his narrative, but enable him to do belated justice to the English armies. Hitherto troops were mentioned only by their generic title, and those from Scotland, Ireland, and the dominions usurped much of the limelight, while the exploits of the English, who outnumbered by several times all the rest put together, received scanty recognition. The others deprecated this excessive advertisement. They were the first to appreciate the fine qualities of the English soldier, but they could do nothing to prevent the misleading impression going abroad that they themselves bore the lion's share of the heat and burden of the day. Mr. Gibbs corrects this lack of perspective by describing the splendid part which the individual English regiments played in this offensive. There were regiments of cockneys, weedy but hardy and toughened by training, incorrigibly cheerful, demons in the attack; there were squatty men from the North Country, small in stature, but game and pugnacious as terriers. There were stalwarts from the home countries, slow-thinking and slow-moving but awkward customers when roused, as the Germans learned to their cost in many a fierce grapple. There were men from the rich farms of the eastern counties, phlegmatic and taciturn, who fought with the cold, efficient fury that one would expect from the lineal descendants of Cromwell's Ironsides. Every county was represented, and all did well. The thundering line from the Somme to Flanders was held by many battalions—all types of English, Scottish, and Irish troops, with smaller bodies of Australians, New Zealanders, Canadians, South Africans, and Newfoundlanders. Through all the battles all our men "were magnificent—not demi-gods nor saints with a passion for martyrdom, nor heroes of melodrama facing death with breezy nonchalance while they read sweet letters from blue-eyed girls, but grim in attack and stubborn in defence, getting on with the job—a damned ugly job—as far as the spirit could pull the body and control the nerves." (Heinemann: Dymock's.)

LETTERS OF AN AUSTRALIAN AIRMAN.

There is some resemblance both in type and career between Geoffrey Wall, whose posthumous "Letters of an Airman" were recently noticed in these columns, and George Pollard Key, whose posthumous "Letters from Bob" have just been published. Both were lads who left Melbourne to join the R.F.C. in England; both were killed by mishap. Both were lads of fine promise, with a literary bent which found expression in their letters home. In either case the letters were written without a thought that they would ever be printed, and yet in them these two boys—for they were no more—have unconsciously laid the foundations of a record and a tradition for the future emulation of Australian airmen. In 1915 Kay left Geelong College, where he had distinguished himself at work and at games, with a batch of schoolfellows, who were anxious to serve the Empire in any capacity, but had an inclination for the air. His letters en route contrive to make even the commonplaces of travel interesting, and when the Medina got into the danger zone he, then a responsible "ship's guard," gives a very graphic account of its vigils and encounters scarce suspected by the passengers, who slept peacefully in their bunks. In England he trained at Oxford and Salisbury Plain, and gained the coveted "wings." In France he soon proved his worth. He got into some hot corners. One letter speaks of an affair in which his observer was fatally wounded by gun-fire. Kay mentions in a detached manner that the petrol tank was shot through, which, in the ordinary course of events, would have meant a conflagration in the upper air, and that bullets penetrated the fuselage between his feet. But he is much more concerned about the letter he must write to his observer's relatives. He was soon, to his own surprise, but not to that if his friends, promoted to the rank of flight commander; a few days afterwards his machine fell from a great height, and he died of his injuries. It is surmised that his foot caught in the many pedals of his machine, which at that time was built on narrow lines, and that he thus lost control. His death cut short a career of brilliant promise; the compensation for his relatives and himself is that he died in a noble cause, and that already he had achieved much. One would also like to mention the letters of Major Babington, an imperial soldier, and Kay's superior officer, whose efforts will show those who have lost someone near and dear to them that nothing is left undone to make the passing easy, to tell the relatives of his fate, and to identify the resting-place for future pilgrims or inquirers.—(Melville and Mullen.)

HISTORICAL NIGHTS ENTERTAINMENTS.

Mr. Rafael Sabatini is not the first man who has sought to clothe the dry bones of history with reality by choosing certain incidents and describing them as they might have appeared to contemporaries. Three generations ago Walter Savage Landor did the same, and a few years ago Mr. Maurice Baring's essays suggested that history as it is taught and as it was lived might be very different things. But Mr. Sabatini succeeds in giving colour and life, and, above all, human interest to a dozen events which in the ordinary history books are recorded as dates or facts. He claims that nowhere has he gone beyond recorded truth or justifiable inference save in one case—"The Night of Nuptials." For the rest he has confined himself severely to his authorities, and has selected his material so that he contrives to run the whole gamut of historical sensations. He takes several incidents from the Cinquecento in which he has steeped himself, and claims that the Borgias, with all their faults of ambition and indulgence, were by no means the monsters which history has painted them. If history has taught us anything it is to beware of ex parte statements and precipitate judgments; not infrequently the "other side" destroyed not only their opponents but the evidence. Mr. Sabatini certainly makes his "Nights" live with emotional appeal and authentic detail, and they are excellent reading. But nowadays we have come to realise that the real romance of history lies not with the fate of individuals, but with the impulse of movements. Whether we like it or not, we must compromise alike on our heroes and our villains. We know now that "Bad King John" was a conscientious constitutional monarch, and that taking them by and large many of the notabilities who figured most sensationally in contemporary chronicles were neither better nor worse than they might have been. (Secker: Dymock's.)

SEX HYGIENE.

In "Sex Hygiene and Sex Education" Dr. E. Atkinson, Commissioner of Health in Western Australia, and Professor Dakin, of the University of Western Australia, point out that, though incalculable harm has been done to the community by the lack of knowledge of certain elementary facts of life, there was until recent years a conspiracy of silence on the matter which made the way of the reformer difficult. The authors are convinced that ignorance, so far from being the ally of innocence, may become its worst foe. Many a career has been ruined, the peace of many a household has been shattered simply by the absence of a little plain speaking in the impressionable years of childhood. The authors discuss the whole subject very frankly, and suggest that for the welfare of society more systematic sex-education is needed. Of course their conclusions are generally accepted nowadays, and they have not been able to adduce much new material, but their book presents their case in a compact form, and is designed particularly to meet Australian conditions. Dr. Atkinson and Professor Dakin believe that with a child sex education should begin at a very early age; in fact, the earlier the better, for in this way unhealthy curiosity is anticipated, and the progressive instruction taken as a matter of course. They believe that the parent is the right person to do the teaching, but, recognising that many parents will refuse because of distaste for the task, and that many others have not the equipment to do it advantageously, they are prepared to leave it to the schools upon certain conditions. The instruction must be regular—an occasional half-hour is futile—and it must be careful and scientific. It should be connected with the study of botany and biology, and should take the pupil on by such gradual degrees that there is nothing sensational in the progress of his knowledge and nothing calculated to excite morbid thoughts. The book contains some valuable hints in this direction which will help parents to approach their difficult but necessary task.

NEW NOVELS.

"The Abandoned Room," by Mr. Wadsworth Camp, is an ingenious story which holds the reader in suspense to the eleventh hour. When old Silas Blackburn is found murdered in his bed the puzzle is not only who the murderer is, but how he managed to commit the crime. For the doors of the room in which Blackburn was skilled are found still locked and barred on the inside, and the blow by which the murderer slew his victim must have struck through mattress and pillow and pierced the old man's brain instantaneously as he lay on his back. The search for the culprit is also very intriguing. Bobby, the grandson, has an obvious motive. He is a scapegrace who would have been disinherited had his grandfather lived a few hours longer. Bobby, whatever his faults, is not a likely murderer, yet even he himself does not know whether he is guiltless. He began the night when the thing happened with a carouse, and there is a blank space in his memory until he finds himself in a dishevelled condition near the scene of the murder. The detective naturally thinks that Bobby is the culprit, and just when the threads of the case seem to be securely in his grasp, he, too, is killed in precisely the same place and manner as the man the problem of whose strange death he had come to solve. With the double murder the range of motive widens. Quite apart from Bobby, who fears that in recurrent fits of aphasia he may have done the deed, there are others who are interested in the detective's death. The girl who loves Bobby, the family butler, the adventurer from Panama, even Bobby's guide, philosopher, and friend, have all some reason for wishing the old man, Bobby, or the detective out of the way. And there is yet another theory. The abandoned room is one which has seen so many violent and tragic deaths in the family that a malevolent influence seems to surround it. What if the explanation for all these dreadful events belongs to supernatural agencies? The author combines these ingredients of mystification most dexterously. The sagacious reader for long will imagine that he has discovered the murderer in the urbane gentleman from Panama, with the butler as second choice. He must finish the book to discover whether he is right. (Doubleday Page: Dymock's.)

"Lydia's Lovers," by Gerald Baldwin, is an agreeable tale of three young folk who are left to the tender mercies of a middle-aged uncle. We should really be sorry for him, rather than for them. Dr. Muggleton is an easy-going bachelor, who has dropped into a groove without realising it. The responsibility of his charges naturally harasses him somewhat, particularly when one of the charges suddenly becomes a woman and one cannot blame the doctor for protecting himself all along the line as he does—it is the line of least resistance. To the story of the doctor's vicarious parenthood the author has added the interest of Lydia's adventures in sentiment, and if the book will not set the Yarra or the Parramatta afire, it is quite acceptable after its kind. OUR RAINFALL.

At a meeting of the Royal Society Mr. John Barling exhibited a diagram illustrating the rainfall over a period of 70 years at Sydney, Adelaide, and Hobart, for 50 years at Brisbane, and 40 years at Port Macquarie. The scheme adopted is to draw an equalising line, separating the high from the low rainfall years, those above and below the line being shown by distinctive colours.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

Inquiries as to when Beethoven's wonderful "Mass in D" was last performed in public in England can only be answered so far as concert-room interpretations are concerned, no record of church and cathedral rendering being available. This beautiful "Missa Solennis" formed part of the third of the six evening programmes of the Bach-Beethoven-Brahms Festival at Queen's Hall, London, on April 22, 1915. This complete week of music, generally known as "The Three B's" festival, was organised by Mr. Daniel Mayer, the famous impresario, and was entirely conducted by Mr. Henri Verbrugghen with a choir of 200 singers from Leeds, and the London Symphony Orchestra. As the work was referred to as "rarely performed," probably a very long period of years had elapsed since the previous concert-room hearing. The members of the choir now again engaged on the work at the Conservatorium have good reason to feel proud of their prowess in singing the great work so well, as its difficulties were so generally admitted that the Yorkshire choristers were specially rehearsed for the festival in preference to any metropolitan combination. The "Musical Times" critic remarked: "The Leeds singers grappled with their task courageously, and for the most part successfully. Where they failed, the blame must be laid less on them than on the composer. Perhaps no other work by Beethoven, or anybody else, contains so many sublime conceptions so impractically carried out." Sydney concert-goers will probably be disinclined to accept this dictum except as regards the solo parts, in which respect the composer has erected an almost impregnable "first line of defence" by calling them "obbligati voices." These parts require good sound musicians, but as regards effective singing or star artists, there is no opportunity for any one of them to "bring out the voice" beyond a passing phrase or two. What we may call the "vocal scheme" seems to be lost in the magnitude of a general plan. But this composer never loved the human voice in the way that many other great masters loved it. In this mass he calls upon the sopranos to sing seven bars on the high B; the altos are constantly compelled to sing fortissimo on their lowest notes; much is expected of the tenors in the way of sudden, violent attack; and the basses range from the low F to the high F sharp two octaves above! Of all this one must say that "even Homer nods." We may be quite sure that the London soloists were unable to electrify the audience, although collectively much stronger than the Sydney cast. They consisted of our one-time visitor Agnes Nicholls (here with the Quinlan Opera Company), Ruby Heyl (contralto), Webster Millar (now singing tenor roles with the Beecham Opera Company), and Robert Radford, a well-known bass.

The writer of "A Woman's Letter," continuing her round of the London playhouses, describes "Nurse Benson" at the Globe, remarking: "This is the third piece produced by Marie Lohr since her entrance into the list of managers. Fortunately, it is a triumph for her as well as for the authors, R. C. Carton and Justin Huntly M'Carthy. It partially reflects social conditions during the war at the house of Lord Messiger, who is obsessed with the idea of War Economies, and calls to book his niece, Lady Gillian Dunsmore, for extravagance in the laundry. The autocrat jibs at the repetition of the word 'camisoles.' 'I have not the faintest idea what a camisole is, but it would seem decorous that the number should be curtailed.' You can imagine the house rocking with laughter at this kind of thing played by Mr. Fred. Kerr in his happiest vein. Marie Lohr was Lady Gillian, and a very delightful thing she makes of her. Being a V.A.D., and finding that Nurse Benson cannot take up the case of a V.C. officer, she replaces that plain, useful-looking woman without attractions, and goes to the house of the wounded hero as 'Nurse Benson.' From this home of wealthy parvenus (the mother amusingly played by Lottie Venne), the V.A.D. is ejected by the enraged parents because their son and heir wishes to marry her! In the fourth act there is another laughable scene between the young soldier's father and Lord Messiger, both working from different points of view as regards the personality of 'Nurse Benson.' Then the young V.C. comes into the room, and there is more laughter, ending in a tender love-scene beautifully played by Miss Lohr and Mr. Pennington-Cush. There is no doubt about the success of the piece. The audience left the theatre in smiles, and when I saw Manager Henry Dana afterwards, he was radiant. Of course, in these times, no piece will last the distance that would be expected of it in peace time. It is quite wonderful to see how eagerly the theatres are thronged by sailors and soldiers of all ranks night after night. The keeping of the theatres open has been a step that is well justified by the result."

During the week the important art event in Melbourne has been Miss Leila Doubleday's reappearance after long years of absence, chiefly in Vienna, where she completed her studies, but since then in London and the great British centres, and in Switzerland. In all these places the young violinist has filled engagements as soloist with many famous European orchestras. Miss Doubleday has given two recitals at the Auditorium, and the Melbourne Press critics pronounce her an artist of very real distinction. In a finely considered sentence the "Argus" finally sums up her style in Lalo's "Symphonie Espagnole," and in pieces by the old masters and modern composers, in the words "Her emotion may not burn the soul, yet it is warm enough to give life to the music, and be the spiritual element in art that is at once serene and satisfying." On the theatrical side the only change has been the successful production of "Honi Soit" at the Tivoli—and one trembles to think how some of the patrons of that temple of vaudeville will pronounce the title!! Barry Lupino, Beatrice Holloway, and John Junior made the hits of the evening, the two latter appearing also in "Kitty Nobody," a condensed play in which John De Lacy played the role of a man of wealth indignant to learn that his fiancee had made her living by posing. The principal singer in the revue was Marie Eaton. For the first time in its history the J. C. Williamson management will have musical comedy running simultaneously at two of its Melbourne theatres. "Oh, Oh, Delphine" will be produced for the first time in Australia at Her Majesty's to-night, whilst next Saturday "Oh Boy" will open at the Theatre Royal. "Delphine" will be in three acts, showing the ballroom of the Hotel Beau Rivage, Brest, a reception room thereat, and the rose gardens of Villa Primrose.

Interest will be taken here in the recent debut (June) of Miss Madeline Collins at Drury Lane in "Romeo and Juliet," under Sir Thomas Beecham's baton. The "Morning Post" showers laudatory adjectives upon her as "an ideal Juliet," "highly gifted young artist," "exactly the right endowment for the part," and "voice of Alpine freshness and purity, rich and supple, too, beautifully produced, and thoroughly under control in all registers." Mr. Webster Millar was the Romeo (handicapped by hoarseness), Robert Radford was the Friar, Frederick Ranalow the old Capulet, and Frederick Blamey was the Tybalt. Miss Collins was originally a Wyalong girl, who studied in Sydney at St. Vincent's College, Potts Point, and won a Royal Academy scholarship at the Associated Board Examinations. Before leaving for London the young singer, who was then late in her teens, was accorded a splendidly organised concert at the Town Hall (September 21, 1914). Mr. W. A. Holman, M.L.A. (Premier), made a speech at this send-off, and many leading ladies, including Mrs. Trefle, were on the committee. At that time the voice was described in our columns as "singularly clear and fresh, but without much natural colour," and her rendering of "Ocean Thou Mighty Monster" was recognised as "considerably in advance of any student attack upon the same formidable composition for some years past." This girl has had a long course of study since then, and has evidently possessed the health and the brains to profit by it brilliantly.

CHAPTER VII.

BARON VON GRATZEN.

I was very curious to have a look at Berlin in war time; but as I am not writing a chronicle of the struggle, my impressions need not be laboured, except as they touched me personally.

The struggle had been going on for about eighteen months when I reached the capital, and except in one respect, matters were pretty much as I had known them. There were more soldiers about, perhaps; there seemed to be as much bustling activity as usual, and certainly there was universal confidence that the result would be a glorious victory.

The one genuine surprise I had was when I came upon an unwontedly demonstrative crowd shouting that they were short of food. They were chiefly women, and a boisterous, vociferating lot they were. It was not so much the crowd that impressed me, however, or the row they kicked up, as the fact that the police didn't interfere. In my experience, a crowd might look for a very short shrift at the hands of the police of Berlin.

I referred to the matter when I was at the tailor's—where, by the by, I succeeded in getting a very passably fitting suit and other things I needed—and he explained the reason. There was no real scarcity of food, he declared, but much grumbling at the distribution; and the police had had orders not to resort to drastic measures.

"It will have to be stopped, however, or the trouble will grow. There has already been some window smashing. Imagine it, window smashing in our beautiful, well-organised city," he cried, as if it were akin to impiety and sacrilege.

"Very shocking," I agreed gravely.

"If it is not put down with an iron hand, it will not be safe for a well-dressed person to be in the streets. My own wife and daughter, only yesterday, were all but mauled in the Untergasse. But the English will pay for it."

I cut short that subject by speaking about the business in hand; it wasn't prudent to talk about the war, and I took care not to give him an opportunity of returning to it before I left the shop.

On my way back to the von Rebling's house in Karlstrasse, I could think of nothing except the news I was to hear, and what I should do if the scheme I had suggested was turned down. I could see nothing for it but to make a bolt almost at once, take Nessa with me, and trust to our wits and luck to get away.

Not a hopeful job at the best, and at the worst involving no end of risk and danger for us both. I knew my Germany too well not to be painfully conscious of all that; and the knowledge made me profoundly uncomfortable. But I've a sanguine streak in me and am generally lucky, so I put off the consideration of the disagreeables until they had to be faced in earnest.

I need not have worried, however, for I found everything running as sweetly as a well-oiled engine when I reached the house. I knew it instantly by the manner in which Feldmann greeted me.

Instead of the previous sullen angry looks, he was all smiles, gripped my hand cordially, nearly fell on my neck, and I rather dreaded that he would wind up by kissing me. Rosa and Nessa were in much the same hilarious mood, and might have been arranging the details of a wedding rather than a little conspiracy against the Government.

They had it all cut and dried, and my crude plan was hailed as if it had been a piece of the most wonderful strategy in the world.

"Oscar will help us all he can," said Rosa, blushing a bit as she used his Christian name; "and he can get the passports and everything without any trouble. He has his already, and suggests that we shall have one for Hans as well. I've seen Hans, and he has consented to go if he can get leave. He doesn't think he can, but agrees we had better get one in case. That will be for you."

"Won't there be some sort of description of him on it?" I asked.

"I can arrange that," declared Feldmann. "Luckily it is in my department. It will do for you, and, of course, he'll never see it."

"I shall take charge of everything," said Rosa. "And Oscar says he can get everything through in three days at the latest, perhaps in two."

There was a great deal of Oscar would do this and Oscar could do that in it all; but everything seemed as good as the best, and I was soon in as high spirits as the others. It was settled that we should travel by the morning express, which would get us across the frontier in time for me to let Rosa have my confession the following day.

"Oscar" wrung my hand again at parting, as if I was his dearest friend; declared he was not among the English haters; that he thought I had acted splendidly in risking so much to rescue Nessa; and that he hoped we should be great friends after this abominable war.

My next move was to prepare for leaving the house the next day, and at supper I announced my determination. The Countess was very much against it, but afterwards I went with her alone into the drawing-room and gave her my "official" reasons.

"I want you to open your cabinet drawer, aunt; but before you do it I'll tell you that you will find someone has been to it——"

"Nessa?" she broke in excitedly.

"I'll tell you in a moment. You are quite right that there is someone in the house who is playing the spy, and, of course, you'll understand that if I am to join the Secret Service it is a sheer impossibility for me to remain here with any one like that about the house."

"They shall leave it at once, Johann."

"We'll discuss that directly. You will find that the letters you so neatly put away here are just flung in anyhow in order to suggest that whoever did it was surprised and had to act in a hurry."

She unlocked the drawer then with shaky fingers and there lay the letters as I had told her. "Nessa shall leave the house to-morrow, Johann," she cried immediately.

"But it wasn't Miss Caldicott at all, aunt; it was Gretchen;" and I described what I had witnessed, and went on to advise her not to take any open notice of the matter at all. "You know now who it is and can be on your guard, keeping such papers as are of no account here and putting others in a safer place."

"But to have such a person in the house, Johann."

"She can't do any harm now; and you must remember this. You don't know who has put her here nor the reason. It might do much more harm than good if you were to make any disturbance about it. These are curious times, and the fact that you have an English girl in the house may be the reason. By sending Gretchen about her business you may only have some one else put here, or one of the other servants bribed or forced to take her place;" and I hammered away at this until I persuaded her to adopt the suggestion.

I had a strong object in taking this line. I was sure that Gretchen was von Erstein's creature, and that if she remained in the house, we might find her very useful in putting him off the scent by letting her find out some false facts in case of trouble.

During the night I thought carefully over our conspiracy scheme. It looked good; very good indeed; perhaps too good, and in the end I decided to prepare for a possible hitch in case the unexpected happened.

I couldn't see one anywhere; but you can never be prepared for an airpocket, as I knew well enough; so I resolved not to be caught unawares. If anything went wrong on the journey, it was on the cards that we might be able to dodge the trouble and get away, if we were provided with good disguises. I worked on that idea and thought of several other items which would probably come in handy.

I adopted the notion of turning myself into an aero mechanic and changing Nessa into my young assistant. There wasn't much about any sort of flying machine I didn't know—except Zeppelins, of course; so I could keep my end up all right, and could easily coach "my assistant" well enough to pass muster.

We should have to dodge the beastly German system which makes every workman carry his record card about with him; but if we couldn't get things of the sort, we must put up a bluff—have lost them or something—and trust to my skill with the tools to see us through.

I was off pretty early in the morning on the hunt for rooms, and almost immediately found a place which fitted my needs like a glove. It was a little furnished flat in the Falkenplatz; just a couple of rooms with a bathroom at the rear, the window of which opened on to the fire escape; an emergency exit which might be invaluable in case of need.

But there was a hitch when I said I would take the place. I was asked for the inevitable papers to satisfy the police; and of course I had none. My explanation was listened to politely, but without effect; so I said I would obtain them, paid a deposit, and went off to buy some of the little items I had thought of during the night.

Then I had a bit of a jar. I was coming out of a shop just as a tall, grey-haired, soldierly man in uniform was passing, who glanced casually at me. The glance was followed by a start of surprise, his look became intent and interested, and he stopped as if to speak. Naturally I took no notice and walked on; but a few seconds afterwards he passed me, stopped a few yards ahead to look in a shop window, and as I overtook him, he turned to give me a very keen, penetrating stare.

Of course there were heaps of people in Germany who had known me well, and I had discounted the risk of running against some of them. But I could not place him, and I was not a little relieved when he appeared uncertain and went off without addressing me.

Mrs. M. Board (aged 70 years), Simpson-street, Wellington, writes:—"10/7/'18. I am grateful to you for curing me of severe Rheumatic pains, weak Stomach, and other symptoms due to weak nerves and bad circulation. My joints also were stiff and swollen, and my back ached dreadfully, pain in my side under my breast, and my bowels were always troublesome, shoulders and wrists painful. It is wonderful what your Constipation Cure and Rheumatic Remedy has done for me. My skin is not itchy now, and my stomach is much stronger. I would like you to use this my Testimonial, in the Press, for the benefit of other suffering women, because I am sure that if sufferers came to you in the early stages of their ailment they would be saved a great deal of suffering.

SUPERIOR TO ALL OTHERS.

DR. PARKER'S GREAT INDIAN RHEUMATIC REMEDY.

Mrs. M'Carthy Metzger, 312 Nelson-street, Annandale, suffered from Rheumatism on and off for 20 years, was crippled with pain, and suffered terrible agony. Pain in the back of the neck, shoulders, hips, knees, feet, and the small of the back. Unable to sleep. The sinews of the heel contracted, feet became distorted and cramped, was unable to walk. Hospital treatment and many advertised remedies had no effect, and it was not until she tried DR. PARKER'S GREAT INDIAN RHEUMATIC REMEDY that she obtained relief. Her opinion of this remedy is best told in her own words:—

"I am very pleased, indeed, to be able to testify to the wonderful merits of your Rheumatism cure, for you have been a heaven-sent angel to me. I must thank you for your advice, and hope that you will be long spared to relieve suffering humanity."

LAW REPORT.

BANCO JURY COURT.

BREACH OF PROMISE CASE.

Macrae v McDonald.

This was an undefended action, brought by Catherine Murray Macrae, of Carlisle-street, Leichhardt, against John Munro McDonald, engineer, claiming £1000 compensation for breach of promise of marriage. The facts sworn to by the plaintiff were that the defendant had been keeping company with her for five years in a Scottish village, and in 1910 became engaged to her. He was a marine engineer travelling over-sea. In 1912 he induced the plaintiff to come to Australia to be married. The engagement continued, with a short interval, during which a quarrel was adjusted, until the end of 1917. Then the defendant confessed that he had compromised himself and married another woman.

Mr. Maxwell (instructed by Mr. Hubert Smith) appeared for the plaintiff.

The jury assessed compensation at £250.

NO. 1 JURY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Pring and Jury.)

MOTOR CAR ACCIDENT AT HABERFIELD.

Pinkstone v Westman.

In this action the plaintiff, Alma Pinkstone, who was represented by her next friend, secured a verdict by consent against Alexander James Westman. The case was one instituted for the recovery of £1000 compensation for injuries resulting to the plaintiff, a little girl of 10 years of age, who was run over by the defendant's motor car, driven by him, in Ramsay-road, Haberfield. The girl's injuries caused concussion of the brain and a very serious scalp wound. Mr. Nicholls (Messrs. Dawson, Waldron, and Glover) represented the plaintiff; and Mr. Broomfield (instructed by Messrs. McLachlan and Murray) appeared for the defendant.

The verdict was for £200, which, with the consent of the plaintiff, was ordered to be invested by the Prothonotary in her interest.

SALE OF SURPLUS WHEAT CERTIFICATES.

Hemphill and another v Comans.

This was an action instituted by John Alexander Hemphill and John Despard Hemphill (trading as J. A. Hemphill, brokers and merchants, of Sydney), against P. J. Comans, a farmer of Barmedman in the Temora district. The declaration alleged a breach of contract on the part of the defendant in reference to the transfer of certain surplus wheat certificates covering quantities of 1915-16, 1916-17, and 1917-18 wheat. The plaintiffs alleged that an agreement had been made between their representative at Temora and the defendant for the purchase by the plaintiffs of the certificates in the prescribed manner through the State Wheat Board. The arrangements were verbal, but the applications for transfer were signed by the defendant and the certificates were sent in accordance with the established custom to the Wheat Board. When endorsed they were returned to Temora for the defendant's signature, which was necessary to complete the scrip transfer. During the period between April 13 and April 27, when the documents were in course of completion, a considerable advance took place in the prices which buyers were prepared to pay for surplus wheat certificates, and that was the reason, plaintiffs alleged, why the defendant was unwilling to complete the contract. In his pleadings the defendant denied that he had contracted, as alleged, and further said that it was a term of contract that the necessary departmental consent should be obtained by the plaintiffs, and payment made by April 22, a covenant which had not been fulfilled. Evidence was called to prove that there had been rises of 5-16d in the case of 1915-16 wheat, 1½d for 1916-17 wheat, and 4d for 1917-18 wheat, between the date of the alleged contract and May 4, when specific repudiation was alleged. The damage claimed was based on a computation on these figures, estimated at something like £400.

Mr. Halse Rogers (instructed by Messrs. Sly and Russell) appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. Broomfield (instructed by Messrs. Perkins, Stevenson, and Co., Sydney agents for Messrs. Dibbs and Farrell, of Temora), for the defendant.

The jury by majority returned a verdict for the plaintiff for £400.

TESTATOR'S FAMILY MAINTENANCE.

Thomas Campbell's Will.

In this matter two applications were made under the provisions of the Testator's Family Maintenance Act in connection with the will of Thomas Campbell, deceased.—The first application was by his widow, Harriett Campbell, and her eldest daughter, Amy Josephine Campbell, each of whom had been omitted from the testator's will. The second application was by three other daughters—Lucy, Fanny, and Theresa Campbell—who contended that their respective legacies of £250 each were insufficient for their adequate maintenance.

Mrs. Campbell, in an affidavit, stated that her husband had died in October last. His will, executed 14 months previously, disposed of real and personal estate of the net value of £12,245/10/. He left the best part of this to his sons Charles Craig Campbell and Angus Robert Campbell, the latter of whom has been about three years at the war. Legacies of £250 were bequeathed to the three daughters previously named.

Mrs. Campbell, in her affidavit, alleged that she and her eldest daughter, Amy Josephine Campbell, were unprovided for under the will. The former stated that when she married the testator, in 1885, he had only £50 with which to embark on farming business. She assisted him by milking cows and doing a man's work on the farm, besides keeping his books. She alleged that the testator had, later on, treated her cruelly, with the result that he had driven her and her daughter, Amy Josephine, away from home.

Since the testator's death, his trustees had permitted her to live on the Vineyard farm, and receive the proceeds of cream sold to a local butter factory. His Honor, after the affidavits had been read, and at the conclusion of counsel's addresses, said that he suggested increasing the three daughters' shares to £700 each, and to allow the widow £3 a week, and the daughter, Amy Josephine, £396. He said that the matter would stand over to enable the parties to confer as to the best method of paying these suggested allotments.

Mr. Bonney, instructed by Messrs. Emmanuel and Emmanuel, of Tumut (Sydney agents Messrs. Boyce and Magney), appeared for Mrs. Campbell and Amy Josephine Campbell; Mr. Murray Prior, instructed by Messrs. Taylor and Mackenzie, of Tumut (Sydney agent Mr. G. H. Turner), represented the executors and trustees of the estate; Mr. T. P. Power, instructed by Messrs. Murphy and Moloney, appeared for the three daughters, Lucy, Fanny, and Theresa; and Mr. Mason, instructed by Mr. G. H. Turner, for Charles Craig Campbell, testator's eldest son.

JEWISH NEW YEAR.

Yesterday, being the eve of the year 5679, according to the era of creation—a date arrived at by adding together the various dates mentioned in the Scriptures—it was celebrated at the Great Synagogue, in Elizabeth-street, as a day of memorial, when, like the Day of Atonement ten days later, is the custom of every member of the House of Israel to take part, consequently in Sydney it was necessary to hold several overflow services last night in various temporary Synagogues. At the Great Synagogue Rabbi Cohen preached, and was assisted by the senior cantor, the Rev. M. Enfield, who intoned the service in ancient fashion, and the Rev. A. D. Wolinski. An unusual feature in this year's celebration is that, owing to the first day of the new year falling on a Saturday—the Jewish Sabbath—the ancient sounding of the ram's horn trumpet, perhaps the most antique instrument still in use, will be postponed until to-morrow.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOUR.

The 27th annual convention of the New South Wales Christian Endeavour Union was commenced in the Bathurst-street Baptist Church, the retiring president being in the chair. The secretary's report indicated an improved membership, there being 422 societies with a total membership of 11,906. The incoming president is the Rev. W. P. Phillips. It was announced that 353 members had enlisted, of whom 56 had returned and 57 had died at the front. The convention will be continued to-day.

HENTY-BILLABONG RAILWAY.

Mr. G. C. Bodkin, secretary of the Railway Workers' Branch of the Australian Workers' Union, referring to the recent question in Parliament as to whether sub-contractors on the Henty-Billabong railway were unable to pay the men's wages, states:—"The position on the Henty-Billabong works is that the Minister for Works appears to have made no provision for the interests of the workmen to be protected, as irresponsible men, not farmers in the district as mentioned by Mr. Ball, have been, in the majority of instances, given subcontracts on these works, and the men in question, who have no money, have been unable to meet the wages of the men as they became due."

REAL ESTATE.

There was again a good deal of activity in the Real Estate Market, and the doings of the week as far as inquiries and sales of property were concerned were quite up to records of late. The whole of the indoor auctions were well attended, competition was fairly brisk, and a number of sales under the hammer and by private contract were completed.

The two principal sales of the week were both city properties. Messrs. Raine and Horne, in conjunction with Mr. Sidney Raper, disposed of the Victoria Coffee Palace, with 40 feet frontage to Pitt-street on the south side of Market-street, and adjoining the Lyceum Theatre, for £35,000. The other property was the Wool and Coal Exchange premises, fronting Pitt-street and Macquarie-place, with large buildings thereon, for £26,000. W. Robjohns, Ltd., conducted the sale.

The auction room of Messrs. Raine and Horne was well filled on Thursday, when Mr. Rabett submitted a catalogue of 15 lots. Nine of these he disposed of either as a straight-out sale or subject to approval. For a level building block, 40ft to Carrington-road, Randwick, £7 per foot was paid. The cottage Emoh Ruo at Artarmon was sold subject to approval for £790. A villa residence known as Silvanfels at Wollstonecraft was passed in at £2400. Two houses in Fitzroy-street, Surry Hills, were sold subject to approval for £750. Two allotments at Oatley changed hands at £55 each, and another brought £25. The cottage Margate at Epping was sold for £610, subject to approval, also a building block at Carlton at 55/ per foot, and a building site at Epping at 24/ per foot.

During the week by private treaty Messrs. Raine and Horne sold 16 allotments at Hunter's Hill for £5811, which was at the rate of from £4 to £7 per foot, also the residence at Moss Vale known as The Chase, together with 80 acres of land, for £3000. The property was owned by Mr. A. H. Garraway, and the buyer was Mr. H. S. Holt. The property is situated off the main Sutton Forest-road. The firm also sold 44 feet frontage to South Head-road, Double Bay, part of the Gutyong Garden Estate, at £16 per foot (£700), 100ft frontage at Northbridge at 42/ per foot, and 50 feet frontage at Cremorne Point at £25 per foot (£1250).

Messrs. Richardson and Wrench had a fairly good attendance at their weekly auction yesterday. Mr. C. Crammond occupied the rostrum, and submitted a list of 10 properties. He had good bidding for each lot offered. He sold four factory sites at Buckland-street, Chippendale, for the City Council at £16 per foot. This sale was in conjunction with Messrs. Raine and Horne. Mr. Crammond refused £1375 for the residence Wandsworth at Bay-road, North Sydney. The Carlton Flats at Cremorne were passed in at £4150; for a water-frontage at Rose Bay £1200 was refused. The St. Andrew's Estate at Minto, comprising 1350 acres, was passed in, the best offer being £8/10/ per acre. Two houses, Hargrave-street, Paddington, were sold for £725. During the week the firm sold by private contract a cottage residence, Holterman-street, North Sydney, for £675; a residence at Marrickville, £815; three blocks, Pearce's Estate, Baulkham Hills, at £50 per acre (£220); two allotments Mooney's Estate, Belmore, at 50/ per foot (£200); two allotments, Terry's Eastwood House Estate, Eastwood, at 35/ per foot (£197), and a block of land, Kyle Bay, George's River, £266.

The largest sale of suburban properties for the week was effected by Messrs. Stanton and Son. It was at the Rosebery model and industrial suburb, where a block of land, 208ft frontage to Rothschild-avenue by a depth along Cressy-street of 224ft 6in through to Mentmore-avenue, together with the five-storied brick factory occupied by Messrs. Parke, Davis, and Company, of Detroit, was disposed of for the sum of £20,059. The purchasers were Messrs. Parke, Davis, and Company. The firm also disposed of the following properties during the week. Brick cottage, Alpha, frontage 40ft to Lucas-road, Burwood, £660; brick cottage, Alvereigh, frontage 40ft to Esher-street, Burwood, £875; vacant land, lot 210, with front 50 ft to Tinana-street, Haberfield, £300; brick cottage, with front 37ft to Second-street, Canterbury, £780; brick cottage, Brynmawer, 49ft frontage to Simpson-street, Burwood, £1050; lot 4, Wynnes Estate, Enfield, frontage 50ft to Wynstay-avenue, £1 per foot; vacant land, Quiraing Estate, Woollahra, frontage to Fullerton-street, £135.

Messrs. Arthur Rickard and Co., Ltd., report a quieter tone during the week, but sales of the better class sites were satisfactory. Most of these were selected on the Fairlight Extension Estate at Five Dock, close to which certain large developments are taking place. There were also some good sales at Haberfield, Kensington, and Mortlake. Seaside lots found buyers on the firm's Beach Park Estate at Cronulla; Superb View Estate, Narrabeen; Empire Bay and Pretty Beach Extension Estates, Woy Woy. During the coming season the firm will offer a large subdivision of suitable land on the heights of Vaucluse, due notice of which will be given.

Carpenter) had a fair attendance at their sale on Thursday, when £1025 was offered for a cottage, corner of Holterman-street and Alexander-street, North Sydney; £1300 for a cottage, Queen-street, Mosman; and 50/ per foot for land in the Dawn Estate, Killara. THE time has come, Rev. 18th ch. And after these things I saw another angel come down from heaven, having great power; and the earth was lightened with his glory. And he cried mightily with a strong voice, saying, Babylon the Great is fallen, is fallen, and is become the habitation of devils, and the hold of every foul spirit, and a cage of every unclean and hateful bird. All nations have drunk of the wine of the wrath of her fornication, and the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her, and the merchants of the earth are waxed rich through the abundance of her delicacies; and I heard another voice from heaven, saying: Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her plagues, for her sins have reached unto heaven, and God hath remembered her iniquities. Reward her even as she rewarded you, and double unto her double according to her works, in the cup which she hath filled fill to her double. How much she hath glorified herself, and lived deliciously, so much torment and sorrow give her, for she saith in her heart: I sit a queen, and am no widow, and shall see no sorrow. Therefore, shall her plagues come in one day, death, and mourning, and famine; and she shall be utterly burned with fire, for strong is the Lord God who judgeth her. And the kings of the earth, who have committed fornication and lived deliciously with her shall bewail her, and lament for her, when they shall see the smoke of her burning, standing afar off for the fear of her torment, saying: Alas, alas, that great city Babylon, that mighty city, for in one hour is thy judgment come, and the merchants of the earth shall weep and mourn over her, for no man buyeth their merchandise any more.

The merchandise of gold and silver, and precious stones, and of pearls and fine linen, and purple, and silk, and scarlet, and all thyine wood, and all manner vessels of ivory, and all manner vessels of most precious wood, and of brass, and iron and marble, and cinnamon, and odours, and ointments and frankincense, and wine, and oil, and fine flour, and wheat, and beasts, and sheep, and horses and chariots, and slaves, and souls of men. And the fruits that thy soul lusted after are departed from thee, and all things which were dainty and goodly are departed from thee, and thou shalt find them no more at all. The merchants of these things which were made rich by her, shall stand afar off for, the fear of her torment, weeping and wailing, and saying, Alas, alas, that great city that was clothed in fine linen, and purple, and scarlet, and decked with gold, and precious stones, and pearls. For in one hour so great riches is come to nought; and every shipmaster, and all the company in ships, and sailors, and as many as trade by sea, stood afar off, and cried when they saw the smoke of her burning, saying, What city is like unto this great city.

And they cast dust on their heads, and cried, weeping and wailing, saying, alas, alas, that great city, wherein were made rich all that had ships in the sea by reason of her costliness; for in one hour is she made desolate. Rejoice over her thou heaven, and ye holy apostles and prophets; for God hath avenged you on her. And a mighty angel took up a stone like a great millstone and cast it into the sea, saying, thus with violence shall that great city Babylon be thrown down, and shall be found no more at all. And the voice of harpers, and musicians, and of pipers, and trumpeters shall be heard no more at all in thee; and no craftsman, of whatever craft he be, shall be found any more in thee; and the sound of a millstone shall be heard no more at all in thee; and the light of a candle shall shine no more at all in thee; and the voice of the bridegroom and of the bride shall be heard no more at all in thee: for thy merchants were the great men of the earth; for by thy sorceries were all nations deceived. And in her was found the blood of prophets, and of saints, and of all that were slain upon the earth.

ON THE LAND.

THE OLD A.A. COMPANY.

(BY V.T.)

The centenary celebration this week of an historic incident that directly led to the origin of the town of Tamworth—the town itself was not started until 1836—recalls the interesting career of the old Australian Agricultural Company, for the history of Tamworth is linked with the fortunes of the company.

On September 2, 1818, Mr. Surveyor-General Oxley reached the Peel River, after many months of strenuous exploration of the Liverpool Plains. The object of the journey was to locate good agricultural and pastoral lands. Oxley left a journal, in which he described his wanderings, and he gave full details of his arrival at the Peel. He minutely described a mass of small, peculiar-shaped stones lying close to the river bank a few miles away from the present site of Tamworth. Interested residents, armed with Oxley's journal, have had no difficulty in finding the stones, which look as though they have been hewn into shape by some powerful but rough instrument. A long chain of historical circumstances followed Oxley's discovery of the Peel. All the information available shows that Oxley's journey through the Liverpool Plains eventually had a great effect upon the affairs not only of the A.A. Company, but of the whole of New South Wales.

The Australian Agricultural Company was practically the first big land monopoly in this State. In April, 1824, some enterprising gentlemen met in London and formed the company, with a capital of £1,000,000 sterling, the stated purpose being to obtain from the Crown a grant of a million acres of land in the Colony of New South Wales. The object of this centure was set out to be "To form an agricultural establishment for the purpose of raising fine wool, and, subordinate to that object, cultivating the vine, olive, flax, and other productions now imported from the shores of the Mediterranean."

In December, 1824, Mr. Robert Dawson was appointed the company's agent to go out with a ship, some labourers, stock, implements, and stores, and found the company's settlement.

In these days of land hunger and Government resumptions it is hard to look upon any huge land monopoly with feelings of reverence or gratitude; but in those days the outlook was vastly different, and what would to-day be denounced by many people was 90 years ago considered to be a blessing. The colony was then a wilderness. Many parts of it had not been explored. There was no settlement outside the fringe round Sydney. The prospect of opening up the trackless forest and raising "fine wool, and cultivating the vine, olive, flax, and other productions" was too appalling for ordinary settlers to contemplate. The affairs of the company did not proceed smoothly for some years. Mr. Dawson was not a great success in his onerous position. He was entirely ignorant of the whereabouts of suitable land for agriculture. Surveyor-General Oxley was the only man in Sydney at that time competent to give the company's agent any advice. He suggested Liverpool Plains, but Mr. Dawson thought it too far away from the seaboard. Oxley then recommended Port Stephens, and this suggestion was received more favourably. To Port Stephens the embryo colony proceeded, and a settlement was formed. For the first three years prosperity attended the operations of the company; but this was merely the initial stage, and it was not till the work of development commenced that Mr. Dawson found out the huge mistake he had made. The country was found to be utterly unsuitable for sheep-breeding, and the greater portion of the ground proved to be barren and almost worthless. Dissatisfaction arose in the settlement and in London, and Mr. Dawson was recalled.

The company set about repairing the mistake made by Mr. Dawson, and induced the Home Government to permit the selection of half a million acres in another portion of the colony. No difficulty was found in having the grant amended, and Sir Edward Parry, who had been appointed the company's commissioner, was authorised to make a fresh selection. It was then that the early recommendation of Oxley was remembered and acted upon. Sir Edward Parry undertook a trip through Gloucester Flats and Liverpool Plains, and advised the company to take up its grant in these parts. Accordingly, in 1830, an area of 240,000 acres was taken up at Warrah and 300,000 acres at Goonoo Goonoo, in lieu of a similar extent of land at Port Stephens. On his return to England Sir Edward Parry reported to the directors that: "In my opinion no similar extent of land in New South Wales can be found equal in beauty and value to the two locations which have now been assigned to the company. It has already cost the State well over £400,000 to buy back part of the same land—100,000 acres of the Peel River Estate.

Once the company started in its new locations its career was prosperous and profitable. It was the forerunner of settlement, and established the town of Tamworth. Some idea of the area of territory occupied by the old A. A. Company may be gained from the fact that the Goonoo Goonoo area alone had a frontage of 60 miles to the Peel River. Colonel Dumaresq took charge in 1834, and supervised the laying out of the township of West Tamworth. Convict labour was used largely.

The company had many labour difficulties. It had to apply for an assignment of convicts, and was strongly opposed by the Sydney authorities, who seem to have become hostile to the company after its success in securing the amended grant. The home authorities had to intervene, and instruct Sir Richard Bourke to overcome this difficulty. With the aid of these convicts roads and bridges were built. In 1835 the area under cultivation on the two estates of Warrah and Peel was 582 acres, and in the following year 694 acres were available. In 1838 the sum of £22,229 was received by the company from wool, and the number of sheep on the two estates of Peel and Port Stephens was 76,000. The growth of the settlement was very slow, due chiefly to the difficulties of the journey to Newcastle.

In 1839 Captain Phillip Parker King was appointed the company's commissioner, at a salary of £1000 a year. He took charge during the severe drought which began in 1838, and lasted till 1840. The means of transport to Port Stephens were mules and asses, imported from South America. The labour difficulty forced the company in 1840 to import 100 workmen. From its inception to 1846 the company sent out from Britain upwards of 650 emigrants. After several severe droughts and some litigation, the company in 1847 succeeded in having all the original obstacles to the alienation of the land in the grant removed by Act of Parliament, and at once took steps to sell portions of the estate. It is from this date that the settlement of the Peel River district commences. The discovery of gold on the Peel in 1852 hit the company hard, as many of its labourers rushed away to make their fortunes. In 1852 there was a thriving settlement. It was in this year that the directors of the A.A. Company decided to dispose of the Peel River Estate. The shareholders agreed to a proposal to form a new company, to be called the Peel River Land and Mineral Company. A bill for the formation of the new company was passed by Parliament, and the management was offered to Mr. Phillip Gidley King. The management of the estate has remained in the hands of the King family ever since.

THE WOOL TRADE.

APPRAISEMENTS ARRANGED.

Appraisement dates and limits of offering of wool in Sydney market for the first half of the current statistical year have been fixed. There will be eight series, the first commencing September 17, and the eighth commencing December 5. The total quantity allowed to be catalogued within the period being limited to 324,000 bales; as compared to 307,000 bales in Melbourne and Geelong, and 108,000 bales each in Brisbane and Adelaide. Equity of treatment has guided the Central Wool Committee in making the allotments of wool in the various States, and appraising centres for the season. The limit for the whole of the States up to December 31 is fixed at 824,000 bales. These arrangements will enable a considerably larger quantity to be catalogued during the first half of the season than last year. If industrial conditions are normal, if shearing operations can proceed without any great delay, the appraisements this season should proceed very evenly and satisfactorily. There was a tendency last season, through the strike on the New South Wales railways, for some growers' wools, usually consigned to Sydney to be diverted to other centres. Storage congestion, and a late starting of the appraisements delayed the offering of a number of clips. Through growers having to take their turn in order of shearing, a few chafed at the delay. These shortcomings are unlikely to obtrude themselves this season. The interstate allotments allocated to each appraisement centre for the period ending December 31 are as follows:—

APPRAISEMENT CENTRES.	Bales.
Sydney	324,000
Melbourne and Geelong	307,000
Brisbane	108,000
Adelaide	108,000
Albury	12,000
Tasmania	15,200
Fremantle	33,400
Geraldton	9,900
Albany	5,400
Ballarat	1,900
Total	824,400

SYDNEY SERIES.

The quantity allotted for the first series in Sydney, extending over five days, is 35,000 bales, comprising 30,000 bales of growers' wools and 5000 bales of skin wools. These quantities have been allocated pro rata according to the number of bales of each description in store on August 31. The growers' wools will be almost wholly drawn from the early shearing districts, comprising a good showing of large and well-known brands from the north-western slopes and plains, the west, and one or two lines from Queensland. Among the brands to be catalogued are the Collymongle and Dunumbral from Collarenebri; Gingie, and GW and Co. over Llanillo, from Walgett; Midkin from Moree, Goondooblule from Mungindi; Wingadee, Coonamble; Weemabung, Warren; and S in circle over Collareen, from Garah. The dates and quantities of wool allocated for the eight series in Sydney are as follows:—

Series.	Starting Dates.	Bales.
1	Sept. 17	35,000
2	Sept. 30	35,000
3	Oct. 10	39,000
4	Oct. 28	40,000
5	Nov. 6	45,000
6	Nov. 15	45,000
7	Nov. 26	45,000
8	Dec. 5	40,000
Total eight series		324,000

A WARNING RE WOOLPACKS.

Already the Central Wool Committee is sounding a note of warning to growers against using inferior woolpacks. The committee states that from information received it appears that inferior woolpacks are being utilised for packing wool during the current shearing; and desires to notify growers that wool packed in inferior packs or second-hand packs will be at the owner's risk and responsibility. The Imperial Government has purchased a clip as under normal conditions. The general get-up quoted of the clip and the conditioning for appraisement and shipment must be equal or superior to normal procedure. With the great necessity for economy in woolpacks through the dearth of shipping, and the vital importance of taking advantage of every inch of shipping space for overseas wool consignments, which demands that the major portion of the clip must be dumped, the employment of inferior packs (new or second-hand) results in the bursting of bales during dumping, lessens the output of the presses, and causes general loss. If inferior packs are used, the Central Wool Committee will condition the wool at the owner's expense.

THE BRISBANE SEASON.

Brisbane appraisements, which were made to fit in with the Sydney market, commence on September 23, with a limit of 40,000 bales, followed by another series commencing October 21, with 34,000 bales, and concluding for the half-year with a similar quantity for the third series that opens December 16, and closes on December 20. From Brisbane reports it appears that some of the Queensland wools this season are deficient in length, due to the premature shearing, and that, under the circumstances, growers will be considering the advisableness of having the whole or a portion of their clip appraised in the greasy or scoured state. Wools from the open downs country of the northern and central districts specially lend themselves to scouring, and the Queensland bore scours generally treat the wool in a very satisfactory manner. One of the Brisbane firms says:—"Fleece wools that are short staple, dusty, and wasty should be scoured, particularly if the product is likely to be a good colour and free, or practically free, from seed or burr. Experience has proved that it is difficult to scour overgrown wools, and faulty or seedy wools can usually be treated more advantageously by the trade if submitted in the greasy state."

SYDNEY WOOL RECEIPTS.

FRANCE AND AUSTRALIA.

The members of the French Mission will arrive in Australia at a time when the thought of the civilised world is turned back to the most conspicuous landmark in the recent history of their country. On the anniversary of the battle of the Marne two aspects of the national character will be especially remembered—the strength and vitality of its patriotism, its community with, and its services to, the whole of western civilisation. Other nations would have awaited the defeat of the German invasion with the same confidence as the French people if they had made themselves familiar with French history. Time after time the national genius and the national spirit have revealed themselves most fully in days of adversity. Since France has been a nation her leaders have faced imminent disaster with the same confidence in the force of the national conceptions and in the firmness of their people. It was so when the first Attila spread out his armies over the whole of the Eastern frontier, when an English King ruled in Paris, when the Germans had conducted an irresistible advance through Belgium to the southern tributaries of the Marne, and again to-day when they were halted on its banks. Each time the firmness of the French character has been tested by the German method of terrorism, each time the French have adhered to their own scheme of warfare until it has led them past defeat to victory. To-day the contest between these two ideas is at an end. The German avalanche has been twice tried against the mobile reserves of the French, and has twice failed. The enemy, with long years of preparation and superior numbers on his side, has been beaten by a defence strengthened by inexhaustible patience and a perfect sense of opportunity. France has repeated the lessons of her history in her victories, but in the four years between them she has passed through a test to which there is no parallel. Her richest provinces have been in the hands of the enemy, who has used their inhabitants without regard for his pledges or for the limits of conduct implanted by ordinary human instinct. The rich districts of Picardy and Champagne have been twice devastated, and their people driven out in terror to be dependent on their sorely-tried fellow-countrymen. The French people have known that a decisive victory could not be gained unless they had the strength to endure the bitterest privations. They have known that they could secure a release which would give them peace, though it would leave their enemies final masters of Europe. The spirit which has treated this alternative with contempt is unequalled in history. It is the final answer to the boast of the Germans that their character has been proved superior to all others in the critical test of war. The German people have obeyed their leaders with docility and thoroughness. They have suffered many hardships and their troops have fought with fanatical courage. But the Germans have not had to fight with the invader on their soil, enslaving their kinsmen, destroying their country, and offering them peace as the price of treachery and submission. The contrast in experience is heightened by the contrast in government and institutions. The policy of the French nation has not been moulded by habits of discipline and of trust in a ruling class. Theirs has been the unalterable decision of a free people. Their loyalty has been given to leaders chosen from among themselves, and without the abandonment of freedom of criticism or the acceptance of authority has been maintained in spite of disappointments until the dawn of victory.

When the French Mission visited America in 1917 Mr. Mitchell, the Mayor of New York, bade his fellow-citizens bow their heads "for, for three years, France has bled for you." We have to remember to-day that all the great battles of France have benefited the rest of civilised mankind as well as herself. When Attila was defeated France was the champion of Roman civilisation against barbarism. From the day when this war was declared for at least two years the French armies were the covering troops of the Alliance. Throughout European history France has shared her gifts with the rest of mankind, reviving weakened ideals with her vital energy, destroying dogma and privilege by her criticism. Her generosity has gained its reward in the hour of her trial. There is no Ally who has not acknowledged the need of France to be sufficient justification for his sacrifices. There is no neutral who has not felt the need of some excuse for his failure to send her help. It is one of the estimable achievements of the past two months to have restored French ideas to their former place. Tried by the test of success or failure they have survived. Once more we see that a nation may laugh in the face of destruction and survive to victory; once more size and grandeur have been defeated by felicity and precision; once more discipline and tyranny have failed against the patriotism of free men. The French Mission will not need to be told how Australians rejoice in having had a share in bringing that triumph about. There is no such definite historical connection between Australia and France as there is between France and the United States in the person of La Fayette. But there is a historical connection, and there has always been a half-realised sympathy which participation in the sacrifices of war has strengthened and defined. The services of the Australian soldiers have been generously acknowledged by French writers and statesmen, and by no one more warmly than by the great-hearted leader whose firmness and confidence in the most terrible days of the offensive have done as much as any army to save the Alliance. Frenchmen have recognised in them the spirit and dignity of free men which drove back the invasion in the time of the Revolution, and has driven it back again to-day. They will wish to see the homes of these willing Allies, the conditions of their life, and the nature of their government. We shall welcome them for their beloved country and for the part which each one of them has taken in its complex life. We shall do everything possible to make their visit pleasant, but it cannot fail to be of more benefit to us than to them. Their presence will tell us of our place in the world, and of the unity of all civilised men. The thought of their sacrifices will remind us of the horrors from which we have been saved in this war by the sufferings of themselves and their Allies. Their example will remind us that that nation alone can survive and develop which is prepared to sacrifice its manhood and its wealth for its friends in their hour of need.

THE STATE SCHOOLMASTER.

When the schoolmaster declares that his is the Cinderella of the professions he states an unfortunate but universal truth. There is no profession in which the principle that the labourer is worthy of his hire ought to be more fully appreciated, yet there is none in which it is less regarded. But even in non-recognition there are degrees, and those who teach in the State schools of New South Wales and form the vast majority of those who have made teaching their career are entitled to complain that their lot is particularly hard. Their dissatisfaction, indeed, has reached such a point that there is a movement afoot to appeal to the Arbitration Court. One may doubt whether this is the right method for such a profession to seek redress for its grievances, but there can be no difference of opinion that very substantial grievances exist. A letter in another column draws attention to some of the flagrant anomalies in our treatment of the teacher as compared with other people whose work requires less training and involves less responsibility. Of course we all appreciate in a theoretical way the services of those who undertake the immensely important task of educating our children. Year after year they hear complimentary speeches and expressions of gratitude, but year after year they are left with a more compelling conviction that virtue is to be, if not its only, its chief reward. The State schools rightly demand certain qualifications on the part of their teachers. To get a foot even on the lowest rung of the ladder means that there has been a period of apprenticeship and intensive training which in other walks of life would have enabled the possessor to look for greater rewards. The school teacher, however, must satisfy his or her present ambition with a salary which many artisans would despise, and must reconcile that ambition with the certainty that by all human calculation the salary will never be large. The disparity between the sums we pay to those who teach our children in their most impressionable years and those which we pay the man who kills our meat or hews our coal would strike a visitor from another planet as a cogent illustration of the topsy-turveydom of our ideas. But we need not go to the aristocracy of industry for examples of the paradox. There are secondary schools in which the caretakers and cleaners receive a higher rate of pay than the majority of the teachers. Without disparaging the caretakers and cleaners, we would suggest that the task of those who take care of the scholars is infinitely more vital than of those who take care of the empty school, that those who train the minds of our children in clean and wholesome ways are, to put it mildly, worthy of no less consideration than those who scrub the classrooms!

The grievance felt by the teachers of the State schools is not confined only to their low salaries, though these are in all conscience low enough. They might put up with this if it was a temporary phase or one which could be ended by their own merit. There are many professions in which a man is prepared to take a chance. He may have to wait for his opportunity, but the opportunity is there; at the worst he will have lost his bet with the possibility of a career. The most callow barrister may become a Judge; the engineer has the gates of a wide future open to him. But the State school teacher knows in advance that he has little to expect though his service be ever so honest and meritorious. The prizes in the Department of Education are few; at the best they do not compare with those held out to other callings. The State school teacher cannot find consolation for present stringencies in future hopes. What wonder that he often regrets his choice of his calling? What wonder that others seek to avoid a choice which in most cases leads to a blind alley, a profession which is the more onerous because it carries with it the necessity of "keeping up appearances." The school teacher is aware of the dignity of his profession; he is often hard put to find the means to support it. The result is that fewer and fewer are prepared to join the ranks of the Education Department. Can one blame them? The Minister for Education attributes the shortage to the enlistment of some eight hundred of his department, and to the number must be added many hundreds of potential members. But this does not wholly account for the shortage, although it may have made it more acute. The real explanation lies in the scanty reward and the future almost devoid of opportunity which the department offers to those who wish to enter its service. The proportion of men to women in the training colleges has progressively diminished for several years until now the men are only 25 per cent. of the whole. They should be 50 per cent.; they would be 50 per cent. if adequate inducements were offered. The Premier has thrown to the schools a sop which may appease our conscience and their demands for the moment. But it is a very small sop; it is too tiny to be divided among all; some of it goes to those who have been labouring under intolerable difficulties and some to fill necessary obligations; many are still left out. Mr. Holman admitted that the provision was inadequate, but hoped that some day the financial situation of the State would allow belated amends. Everyone should be concerned with the fulfilment of these pious hopes. It is not a matter of party or creed or class. Either we think that education is worth while or we do not. Either we make the profession of teaching attractive to those who are qualified for it by taste and training or we allow it to drift into the hands of those who embrace it only because their betters have made room for them. There is no alternative. And nowadays, when we attribute to lack of education in its broader sense so many of the ills which afflict the body politic, the choice should not be difficult.

FRENCH VIEW OF PEACE.

A great Roman Catholic Church orator, the Abbe Sertillanges, a professor at the Catholic Institute in Paris, has recently delivered an address on the Pope's appeal for peace. In his audience there were a large number of Roman Catholic bishops. There was an air of respectful reserve on the part of the speaker and in the audience.

A petition to the Pope was drawn up and presented for the acceptance of the meeting. It shows the feelings of Frenchmen who are at once loyal both to France and to the Pope. It reads as follows:—

"Most Holy Father,—We cannot at present entertain your appeal for peace. We are your sons, and we know that you are no respecter of persons; and if indeed you made any distinction between your children, you would not put France in the last ranks.

"We confess that to prolong this war for a single hour would be a crime, if there were any possibility of stopping it by a reliable treaty. But, Most Holy Father, consider our case. An atrocious aggression came to us from the false security in which we lived and dreamt. We thought but of peace. If we have any responsibility in this war, it is because we loved too indolently that peace which preoccupied us. Now here is our country, half crushed, our industries ruined, our families to a great extent decimated. We can expect in the future, unless peace comes with compensation, nothing but ruin and slavery, and that after prodigies of valour have been accomplished.

"Our enemies have remained powerful; the invasion did not touch them; your serious reproofs did not make them give up the anti-Christian principles which guided them. ... An armed peace would be for all but a continuation of quarrels and insecurity.

"Try to convert, Most Holy Father, those whom President Wilson has given up in despair. For the present we are obliged to remember that they have not repented, and that they offer no reparation; rather that they are planning other crimes; that they commit new ones every day. Their conduct is that of implacable conquerors, who desire for themselves the world.

"We will ask for three things:—Firstly, for reparation, so that it cannot be said that crime is profitable; secondly, for restitution, so as to be able to extend justice to all; and thirdly, for guarantees, so that your fraternal views, which are ours also, can be established on facts. A Christian Europe should no longer live under a law of iron, but a law of love; that law which you preach to us, Most Holy Father. . . . We feel that our mission is similar to your own."

That French petition is an eloquent reply to the so-called pacificists of Australia, and a ringing appeal to fight the war to a finish.

LOYAL PROPAGANDA.

THE VITAL NEED.

(BY A WORKINGMAN.)

"The public do not want anything connected with the war; they demand a pre-war entertainment." This remark, made recently by a picture show man in Sydney, would on the face of it appear a very simple thing, a mere matter of business, of supply and demand; but look deeper into it, and we find a most damning proof of the depths of apathy and indifference to anything in connection with the war that we, as a people, have fallen into. The Empire is struggling for its life, everything we hold dear is at stake, husbands and fathers, sons and brothers, mates and cobbers, are away fighting for us, making a name for themselves that will last for ever, dying in their tens of thousands, that we may live in peace and security, while we demand a pre-war entertainment.

The excuse that it is necessary that the people should have something to take their minds off the war would hold good for the people at Home, for they have had their minds on the war every minute of every day, and every day for over four years; the war governs their actions, what they must do and not do, what they shall eat and how much, and how little, with the thought ever present in their minds that death and destruction may fall on them from the skies; while we who live in peace and comfort, who have just as much, if not more to lose, are not sufficiently interested even to want to see pictures about the war—the war that will decide our destiny, both as individuals and as a nation.

If Australia is to do her duty, and preserve her honour and safety, the interest and enthusiasm of the people must be reawakened, so that the war and its appalling menace may be constantly in their minds, and so that they shall feel they cannot rest unless they personally are actively helping toward attaining final victory. Loyal propaganda is war work that should and can be done by all classes, both men and women, by supporting the propaganda organisations such as the "King's Men" that are now coming into being, by giving personal service and money. Personal service all can give, and money is the means of obtaining the greatest benefit from that service.

If a soldier on the battlefield were ordered to do dangerous or distasteful work, would it be thought equivalent if he gave a cheque instead of doing it? No. Then why, in civilian life, should it be thought good enough where there is no danger? Those of us who have only service to give can do our utmost by giving it; those who have money can do their utmost by giving both service and money. After all, it is little enough. The soldier sacrifices himself and his life; surely we can sacrifice our leisure and our pleasure, our comfort and our convenience, in doing our bit to help him win the victory that will secure peace for us, for our children, and for our children's children.

WORKMEN LEAVE VICTORIA.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Premier, Mr. Lawson, admitted to-day that Victoria was suffering from a dearth of artisans. In the Legislative Assembly on Thursday it had been stated that men were leaving Victoria for New South Wales, with the result that the Victorian labour market was being seriously affected. Mr. Lawson said that he had asked the Labour Bureau to inquire and report as to the drift from this State.

OXLEY CENTENARY.

DEFENDING CAMBRAI

GERMAN STAND ALONG CANAL

FRENCH FOLLOW UP ENEMY'S SOUTHERN RETREAT

Only local fighting is now taking place on the front before Cambrai, according to the latest official report.

War correspondents indicate a stand by the enemy along the Canal du Nord in this region.

Further progress, however, has been made on the southern portion of the British battlefield beyond Peronne, also in Flanders.

The French and Americans north of the Vesle are following up the German retreat to the Aisne.

HINDENBURG SEEKS THE INITIATIVE.

LONDON, Sept. 5.

The war correspondent of the United Press telegraphs: In an endeavour for the moment to transform their retreat into a stand-off artillery battle the Germans are unloosing their big guns from far in the rear, on all points of the British advance, supplementing the strong line of heavy and light machine-gun along the Canal du Nord.

The storm of shells, methodically dropping along the present front line, and the extensive use of gas flooding the valleys and woods, indicate that Hindenburg is seeking to obtain the initiative, at least in the matter of his own retirement. Our troops in the Manancourt district were held up at the canal, not only by machine guns, but by heavy shells, permitting the Germans to essay a counter-attack, which, however, was repulsed.

Sir Douglas Haig's late report on Thursday night stated: On the southern part of the battlefront, both northward and southward of Peronne, we are advancing, driving in the enemy's rearguards, and are approaching the high ground on the Allies' Nurlu front.

Between the Nurlu and the Sensee River there have been minor engagements on different parts. We slightly advanced on the spur northward of Equancourt, and local fighting occurred about Neuville Bourjonval, and Moeuvres. Patrols crossed the east bank of the Canal du Nord southward of Marquion and brought bac. prisoners.

The enemy on the Lys front again strongly attacked in the sector northward of Hill 63, and was repulsed after sharp fighting. We advanced a short distance southward and south-eastward of Nieppe and north-eastward of Wulverghem.

GERMAN STATEMENTS.

(Admiralty—per Wireless Press.)

A German official message on Thursday afternoon stated: The enemy pressed back our forefield troops to a new line between Ypres and La Bassee.

We continued our withdrawal in the region of Roye, and freed ourselves without a fight. The enemy is following slowly.

We withdrew from the Vesle east of Soissons undisturbed.

THE FRANCO-AMERICAN FRONT.

A Paris message says the enemy is burning everything in his retreat in order to create a desert zone. La Fere, Chauny, and Jussy are now ablaze. Several villages between the Vesle and the Aisne have also been destroyed.

A French communique, issued on Thursday afternoon, stated: At night-time we maintained contact with the enemy rearguards, and advanced east of the Canal-du-Nord and in the direction of the Aisne. East of Nesle we crossed the Somme Canal, in the region of Voyennes and Offoy.

Farther south we passed Hombleux, Esmery-Hallon, Flavy-le-Meldeux, and carried our lines north of Guiscard, to the outskirts of Berlancourt.

Between the Allette and the Aisne we carried Clamency, Braye, and Missy-sur-Aisne.

Last evening we repulsed two violent counter-attacks on Mont-des-Tombes, east of Leuilly, and maintained our positions.

On the Vesle front Franco-American troops reached the crest of the heights dominating the Aisne. Extending our action still further, we also crossed the Vesle, between Les Vanteaux and Jonnehery.

An American official report states: We, in co-operation with the French, continue to advance. We crossed the plateau northward of the Vesle and reached the crest of the slopes leading to the valley of the Aisne.

THE GERMAN WITHDRAWALS.

The Australian Press Association learns that the enemy's withdrawal in the Lys sector continues. British and American troops are closely pressing the Germans. The latter, however, may claim that the withdrawal has taken place according to their plan.

The steady withdrawal of the enemy, under pressure, back to the line of the Somme-Oise canal has been accompanied by heavy fighting. The French gained a footing on the east side of the canal, in the neighbourhood of Noyon, and used it on Wednesday as a jumping-off place in a further advance toward the Somme. Fighting was particularly heavy in the neighbourhood of Juvigny and Terny Sorny, where the Americans are operating. A considerable advance was made. Possibly as the result of this the enemy commenced to withdraw from the line of the Vesle across the Aisne.

FAIRLY AND SQUARELY BEATEN.

(COMMONWEALTH OFFICIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, Sept. 4.

The Australian front on Tuesday was quiet after the heavy fighting. The enemy's guns still wracked the front occasionally, but neither our own nor the German infantry was engaged in active fighting.

The Germans put in their Alpine Corps opposite this hinge in the tortured, difficult country where the Somme bends. The country in that angle is more like Gallipoli than any the Australians have seen in France.

The swift rush of the New South Welshmen up Mont St. Quentin reminded all who saw the position of that first swift rush up the hills by Ari Burnu which brought the Australian soldiers into fame.

The men were determined to reach the top despite anything, making the pace the whole way. That rush seems to have taken them to the hilltop before the Germans had time to collect their thoughts. Later the hilltop was lost under a heavy counter-attack, and was retaken by the Victorians next day. During this fighting, Germans from five divisions were captured, including the Second Guards Divisions, amongst them a battalion commander, who was exceedingly mortified at his capture, and came down the road at the head of his men frowning black anger. He scarcely spoke when spoken to. In the prisoners' cage he met a number of other officers who were engaged in the same fight.

Next morning he told an Australian officer in charge of the prisoners that they had been talking the battle over amongst themselves. He wanted to tell him they considered they were fairly and squarely beaten. His fellow officers, who were standing by, saluted in order to show the statement was made on behalf of all of them. Australians will be able to see for themselves some of the surroundings incident to this and other fighting owing to the magnificent work of a young South Australian who is now official photographer to the Australian Force. This young officer went out with the counter-attack during the heavy fighting at Mont St. Quentin to photograph the troops advancing within point-blank range of the Germans. During the previous stages of the August fighting he accompanied tanks and patrols far beyond the front line. These pictures are not all dramatic, but every one is the real thing.

RUSSIA.

BRITAIN AND BOLSHEVIKS.

OUTRAGE IN MOSCOW.

LONDON, Sept. 5.

It is reported from Washington that the Bolsheviks attacked the British Consulate in Moscow.

Captain Cromie, the British Naval Attache who was killed during the Bolshevik attack on the British Embassy in Petrograd, commanded the submarine E19 in the Baltic in 1915, and destroyed the German cruiser Undine and other vessels. He was also responsible for the destruction of the British submarine flotilla in the Baltic, after the Bolshevik peace treaty, so as to prevent the vessels falling into German hands.

Owing to the Bolsheviks murdering and mutilating the body of Captain Cromie, and arresting British subjects from 18 to 40 years of age, the British Government has arrested Litvinoff (Bolshevik representative in London) and his staff.

KORNILOFF KILLED.

The Copenhagen "Politiken's" correspondent in Helsingfors states that General Korniloff was killed by a shell at Ekaterinodar.

AGRARIAN REVOLT IN ROUMANIA.

According to a message from Rome, Roumanian despatches state that the agricultural classes in Roumania have openly revolted, and the movement is spreading rapidly.

A number of German requisitioning agents have been killed. An armed mob near Bucharest attacked a train transport, killed the military escort, and seized the grain.

INDUSTRIAL DISPUTE.

The Press Bureau announces that the King by proclamation applies the provisions of the Munitions Act to the dispute between industrial co-operative societies and employees concerning wages. The Government considers the continuance of the dispute prejudicial to the manufacture, transport, and supply of munitions.

INDIA'S EFFORTS.

The Viceroy, Lord Chelmsford, presided at the opening of the Legislative Council at Simla. In his speech the Viceroy alluded to the splendid material and moral effects of the recent Delhi Conference. One immediate result was the adding of half a million men to the army, and they were now recruiting twice as many men in a month as before the war they recruited in one year. Contributions to the second war loan had passed £20,000,000, and the Finance Minister would move a resolution that India should give further financial assistance, the decision being left in the hands of the non-official members. Finally, Lord Chelmsford said: "The war dominates all our thoughts. From its successful issue depends the liberty of the world, without which schemes for liberalising India's political institutions will be in vain. Indeed, the fifth year of the war was ushered in full of high hopes, but the end is not yet, and India is called on to redouble her efforts. The greater these were the sooner would come triumph, bringing the stricken world the unspeakable lesson of peace."

PRESS DELEGATES' VISIT TO THE FRONT.

The Commonwealth official correspondent on the West Front cabled on the 4th:—The Australian Press Delegation visited the Australian Front yesterday. To-day, the party, consisting of Mr. Geoffrey Syme, Mr. J. O. Fairfax, Mr. T. W. Heney, Mr. S. Prior, Mr. J. C. McIntosh, Mr. A. Carson, Mr. F. Anstey, Mr. W. H. Simmonds, Mr. J. J. Knight, Mr. Whitehead, Sir William Sowden, and Mr. Campbell Jones traversed the whole of the August battlefield, Lieut.-General Sir John Monash explaining the advances and tactical situation at each point.

ENGLISH TROOPS AND GALLIPOLI MEDAL.

The Manchester City Council has passed a resolution protesting against not issuing the Gallipoli medal to the Lancashire and other British troops when it has been given to the Anzacs. The Lord Mayor said, "Our lads did equally well, and made equal sacrifices to the colonials."

AIR FIGHTING.

BRITISH SUPERIORITY.

RECORD SINCE AUGUST 8.

LONDON, Sept. 5.

Sir Douglas Haig reports:—During Wednesday our aviators dropped 23 tons of explosives. Night bombing was impossible. The enemy, working in large formations on their side of the lines, showed considerable activity. We brought down 26 hostile machines, shot down nine balloons aflame, and drove down 14 aeroplanes uncontrollable. Sixteen British are missing.

One British machine which was reported missing on September 2 has since returned.

Since the beginning of the offensive on August 8 we have brought down 465 hostile aeroplanes, their destruction in every case being clearly established. We drove down uncontrollable 200, of which many actually crashed. These totals were exclusive of a considerable number brought down by anti-aircraft guns. We also set fire to 61 balloons. We dropped 914 tons of bombs. Practically the whole of the air fighting has occurred on the enemy's side of the lines. Two hundred and sixty-two British have not returned during this period.

SHIPBUILDING.

DECREASE IN AUGUST.

The Admiralty announces: The tonnage of merchantmen completed in the United Kingdom in August was 124,675 tons, compared with 141,948 tons in July. The total for the 12 months to August 31 was 1,512,640.

Lord Pirrie, Controller of Merchant Shipping, commenting on the reduction, says it was partly attributable to influenza, while the plans to increase the skilled labour in the yards were frustrated by the events on the West front. But he was pleased to say there was an early probability of a reduction in the present naval programme, which would result in the transference of men to merchant work. Lord Pirrie is of the opinion the output will improve materially towards the end of the year.

A message from Washington says that the United States delivered 66 ships during August, 45 of which were steel, the total representing 340,000 tons.

GERMANY AND PEACE.

TEUTON ANXIETY.

WINTER'S WAR FEARED.

LONDON, Sept. 5.

A meeting of the Premiers of the Central Powers will take place next week either in Vienna or Berlin. They will probably discuss some decisive peace policy, in order to prevent the horrors of another winter's war. It is rumoured that the Emperor Charles demands mediation through King Alfonso of Spain or Queen Wilhelmina of Holland.

A Rome telegram says that German agents in Switzerland are busily circulating reports that Germany is ready to conclude peace on the basis of the evacuation of France and Belgium, but is against the payment of an indemnity. Germany is willing to accept the English Labourites' suggestion in regard to a referendum in Alsace-Lorraine, provided it is taken under German supervision.

The German newspapers publish a semi-official telegram from Berlin, appealing to the German people to keep cool, notwithstanding the threatened extension of the enemy offensive, notably between the Meuse and Moselle.

It is reported from Amsterdam that the German Emperor telegraphed to the Dresden Municipality, stating that the German people understood the difficulty of present decisive battles against an enemy filled with hatred, jealousy, and the will to destruction. Germans would devote all their strength to defend their sacred soil and kultur against their enemies' assaults. God would continue to be with them in their just cause.

"Vorwaerts," commenting on the Crown Prince's interview, in which he declared that Germany was carrying on a defensive war, says there is no reason why Dr. von Kuhlmann should have been forced to go when the Crown Prince is allowed to speak as he did. His words are a complete vindication of Kuhlmann.

WAR NOTES.

ENEMY'S STAND BEFORE CAMBRAI.

Although the communiques issued on Thursday evening had not been received up to a late hour last night, there were signs in Sir Douglas Haig's early message that the enemy was making a determined stand along the northern section of the Canal du Nord, covering Cambrai. Strong counter-attacks were delivered by the enemy against the British positions at Inchy, on the western side of the canal, about midway between the Arras-Cambrai and Bapaume-Cambrai roads, and about 7½ miles due westward of Cambrai itself. Other counter-attacks were made farther southward at points where the British have crossed the canal. The enemy has evidently concentrated fairly strong forces along this line, and intends to hold the canal from the point where the British have reached it northwestward of Cambrai down to the bend above Havrincourt wood. Below this bend they still have the Hindenburg defensive zone to fall back upon, and, if necessary, the positions constructed after General Byng was forced owing to the German counter-offensive to readjust his line after his successful offensive in November last. The enemy's excellent communications on this Cambrai front have enabled him to move a considerable body of troops into the danger zone, and to check the British advance for the time being. We have yet, however, to see a serious British effort to force this line, and it is not likely that this will be made without a certain amount of preparation and delay. The problem of moving up guns does not present the same difficulties as it did in the past, but there must still be a lapse of time before an army can exert its maximum pressure after a rapid advance from one strongly-held defensive line to another. This sector before Cambrai is still one of the most important on the Western front, and future developments along this portion of the Canal du Nord will be awaited with interest.

FRENCH FORCING WITHDRAWALS.

It is difficult to say whether the enemy meant to fight only a delaying action on the southern section of the Canal du Nord, between Nesle and Noyon, or to hold up the French advance permanently there. In any case the French forced their way across the obstacle above Noyon and gradually compelled the enemy to abandon his hold on the eastern bank farther north. A renewal of the German retirement there has accordingly been brought about with the result that the French are now also across the Somme Canal eastward of Nesle, and are advancing along the greater part of the front between the Somme and the Oise. The capture of Ham and Guiscard is almost assured, and the unofficial reports regarding the burning of La Fere and Chauny suggest that the enemy intends to go back to the Hindenburg line in the region westward of St. Quentin. Farther south-eastward the French are following up the enemy's retirement from the Vesle front. The danger to the German right above the Vesle had been increased by additional French gains on the heights north and north-eastward of Soissons. Although the French in their early communique only claim to have reached the crest of the heights dominating the Aisne, it is more than likely that the German right is now back behind the Aisne and that, as one message says, the Franco-Americans have reached the Aisne bank at points to the eastward of the Vesle mouth. Near the left of the German Vesle front, where practically no movement was noticeable in the early stages of the retirement, the French have now pressed across the river and moved against portion of the heights north-westward of Reims. The enemy, however, is giving ground very slowly on this wing and appears to be in no great hurry to relinquish these heights, which enable him to dominate the Cathedral city from this side as well as from the east.

NEW LINE BELOW YPRES.

There are indications that the enemy's withdrawal in Flanders has been practically completed. He can, as Major-General Maurice pointed out, improve his position still further by falling back to the Aubers ridge behind his old front line, but he has already effected a considerably shortening of his line. The German official communique states that the new line has been reached. It is probable that this is correct, and that any further sacrifice of ground on his part will be of an involuntary nature. As one unofficial message states, the enemy appears to be justified in claiming that his withdrawal on this front has been carried out according to plan. The Allies succeeded in hurrying it once or twice in the early stages, but on the whole the operation was effected without any serious disaster overtaking the forces engaged. It is possible, however, that the loss of Hill 63, the capture of which Sir Douglas Haig claimed in his noon report on Thursday, was not in accordance with the German plan. If the enemy is determined to stand on the front at present occupied there does not seem to be any reason why he should not have retained this height, situated about midway between Ploegsteert and Messines, and commanding the main road between the latter village and Armentieres. On the front at present occupied he continues to exert fairly strong pressure around Ypres and maintains his hold on the Wytschaete ridge, Ploegsteert Wood, and Armentieres. His withdrawal has practically wiped out his bulky salient towards Hazebrouck, but he has retained sufficient of it to leave a wider base to his old La Bassee salient.

THE ALLIED ADVANCE.

The dotted lines show the position of the front on the various dates indicated. The shaded area shows the amount of ground gained by the Allies since the beginning of July last, as suggested by recent cablegrams.

BRITISH POLITICS.

WIN-THE-WAR ISSUE.

There is a belief in political circles that Mr. Lloyd George's election policy will be so completely confined to winning the war that he virtually disregards other issues.

It is significant that the Liberal programme prepared for the Liberal Federation meeting in Manchester on the 26th inst makes winning the war the first plank in the platform.

It also declares for freetrade, but affirms that in special cases where measures must be taken to safeguard home production in the interests of national security, profits arising therefrom should belong to the State and not to individuals.

The programme also proposes the abolition of the House of Lords, the equalising of the position of women in the professions and other matters, and supports a minimum wage affording a proper standard of comfort as the first charge on every branch of industry and trade.

CANADIAN WHEAT.

The Canadian Government has guaranteed to purchase all surplus merchantable wheat raised in Canada in 1918, distribute the surplus to millers, supervise transport oversea, and allot quantities for home and British consumption.

TURKEY AND GERMANY.

Zurich messages state that Turkey has sent a lively note to Berlin protesting against the conclusion of additional Brest-Litovsk Treaties injurious to Turkish interests in the Caucasus.

AMERICAN OFFICIAL NEWS.

The following official wireless news has been received at Sydney by the American Consul-General:—

The Emergency Fleet Corporation announced that 66 merchant ships, aggregating 340,145 tons, were delivered during August. The increased American deliveries added to those of Allied countries placed construction far ahead of the destruction by submarines. For six months this year the sinking of Allied and neutral shipping totalled 2,059,292 tons, while the production was 2,112,591 tons.

The committee of National Defence announced that there will be enough nurses to care for the sick and wounded Americans to the extent of an army of 5,000,000 next year. A survey of the nation's nursing strength showed a reserve of 100,000 fully trained, while 27,000 are enrolled in the Red Cross.

The Alien Property Custodian took over the American Trans-Atlantic Steamship Company, because of German ownership.

Mr. Haynes, Consul at Helsingfors, reported to the State Department on September 3 that the American Consuls, members of Allied missions, and civilian refugees freely left Russia by special train and safely crossed into Finland. They should have arrived yesterday at Haparanda.

CERTAIN VICTORY.

PRUSSIAN DREAM VANISHED.

Lord Reading (British Ambassador in Washington), in a message to the War Exhibition at Chicago, said: "The Prussian dream of world mastery has vanished because of the individual sacrifice and collective bravery of the Allies' armies. If everyone will work hard during the coming months Germany, it is certain, will be decisively beaten, the world remodelled on the principles of security, justice, and freedom, and force, violence, and autocracy swept away."

A Paris message states that Lord Reading addressed the American victors of Juvigny, and declared that America's entry into the war had been the turning point assuring safety and liberty.

AMERICA'S MESSAGE.

"WE ARE COMING. FIVE MILLIONS STRONG."

Mr. Samuel Gompers, addressing the Trade Union Congress at Derby, said: America's message to Britain and the Allies is—"We men of the western democracy are coming five millions strong."

Mr. Gompers continued: "I have not always agreed with the policy of British Governments, especially regarding the Boer war and towards Ireland, but I rejoice that the old Britain is not the Britain of to-day. You gave the Boers full self-government, and now they are giving their lives fighting for the mother country. I would not prolong this war a minute longer than necessary, but I am not willing to shorten it by one hour if that meant the military machine would remain to cause further wars."

DETECTING SUBMARINES.

The New York "Times'" Baltimore correspondent learns that Edison's invention for detecting submarines is an electrical device fastened to submarine chasers, and is capable of indicating the presence of a submerged U-boat within a five miles radius. The position of the U-boat can also be detected with reasonable accuracy.

GENERAL CABLE NEWS.

L. F. Hann, of Newcastle, belonging to the 33rd Battalion, has been repatriated. He was captured at Villers-Bretonneux in May, being wounded in the spine. His legs were paralysed. He was reasonably treated in an enemy hospital.

An army order has been issued stating that officers and men awarded the Albert Medal are entitled to use the letters "A.M." after their name.

SOUTH AUSTRALIAN BUDGET.

In the Legislative Assembly the Treasurer, Sir Richard Butler, delivered his Budget speech, and urged that economy generally must be practised. He estimated the result of the year's transactions would be a small credit balance of £4023.

BOMB OUTRAGE IN CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.

A bomb which was thrown in the Federal Buildings partly wrecked the structure, killed three people, and wounded 75.

The arrested I.W.W. leader, Haywood, was in the building at the time.

GOVERNOR ON THE WAR.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

Speaking at a meeting of the Red Cross Society his Excellency the Governor, Sir Walter Davidson, expressed his opinion that the turning point in the tide of the war would take place on the ground now being contested in France. "I have," proceeded his Excellency, "long held the opinion that the war would be decided on the high ground between those various French rivers near the present fighting line. The Allies are fighting on those rolling downs with the advantage that they are giving battle on ground of their own choosing. I have little doubt," concluded his Excellency, "that Germany recognises that these positions are the keys of the situation. Defeat for them seems inevitable."

LATE WAR NEWS.

PROGRESS CONTINUES

BRITISH ACROSS NORD CANAL.

LONDON, Sept. 6.

The British have captured Neuve Chapelle and Bussu. They have crossed the Canal du Nord on a wide front.

The French are within three miles of Chauny.

FRENCH FRONT.

A French communique at midnight on Thursday stated: During the day the French continued to pursue the retreating enemy on the Canal du Nord-Vesle front, and made an important advance despite local resistance. We hold Falvy and Offoy, on the north bank of the Somme Canal. To the south our lines approach the Ham-road, and pass between Plessis and Berlancourt. South-east of the latter our front passes through the outskirts of Guivry, Caollovel, Crepigny, north of Marest, Dampcourt, and the southern outskirts of Abbecourt (south-west of Chauny). We advanced six kilometres at some points.

On the whole of the Aillette front the enemy, exhausted by hard fighting since August 20, to-day began to give ground. Our units, pursuing the German rearguards, made rapid progress north of the Aillette. Pierremande and Autreville are in our hands, as well as the greater part of the Low Forest of Coucy. Further east we occupy Fiimbray, Coucy-le-Chateau, and Coucy-la-Ville. We advanced a kilometre south of Frianes. On the right our front passes east of Landricourt. South of the Allette we hold the line of Neuville-sur-Margival, Vregny, and the western slopes of Conde Fort (north-eastward of Soissons).

Over 20 villages were recaptured to-day on this part of the front.

South of the Vesle we are on the border of the Aisne between Conde, Viel, and Arcy. Eastwards the line passes north of Dhuisel to Barbouval and over the Beauregard Plateau.

Airmen were very prominent in the battle on Wednesday, flying at the lowest altitude, and machine-gunning retreating troops, transport, and bivouacs. Thousands of rounds were fired. Six tons of bombs were dropped on stations, causing the utmost confusion. Fifteen German aeroplanes were brought to grass.

FRANCO-AMERICAN ADVANCE.

The Franco-American forces are advancing between the Somme and the Vesle. The Germans are flooding the country between Chauny and La Fere.

SITUATION REVIEWED.

ON ALL FRONTS.

The Australian Press Association learns that, from August 1, the British captured approximately 70,000 prisoners, and the Franco-Americans about 40,000. Generally speaking, there is no evidence that the German command has not kept the situation in hand, although it has made demands on the troops which cannot be continued indefinitely without grave risk. The enemy front generally has been maintained intact, and the withdrawal, even if hasty, has been carried out fairly methodically, although with the loss of an enormous amount of material.

THE CZECHS.

The situation in the East is still obscure, but the Czechs probably have obtained control of the whole of the trans-Siberian railway. Allied forces, including Russians, are pushing down the Vologa railway.

FINLAND.

The feeling in Finland against fighting the Allies appears to be growing. The Finn army is in full mutiny and discontent, but the Germans are still pushing forward their communications northwards towards Petchenka, and eastwards towards the White Sea. There is much bitterness against the Germans exploiting the country.

EAST AFRICA.

Our efforts in East Africa continue successfully. General von Letow appears to be working northwards. His total force now has been reduced below 200 whites and 2000 Askaris.

BOYCOTTING THE ENEMY.

The Trade Union Congress has shelved the seamen's boycott resolution by a majority of 3,000,000 on a card vote.

FIXED PRICES.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Under amended war precautions regulations a person is held to be guilty of an offence who purchases any foodstuffs or necessary commodities in any proclaimed area at a price higher than the maximum fixed in that area. He is also deemed to be guilty of an offence if he offers to purchase, holds himself out as being willing to purchase, or being willing or able to obtain a purchaser, or offers to act in connection with the purchase of the commodities at the higher rate. The Minister for Price Fixing, Mr. Massey Greene, stated that the object of this regulation was to defeat collusion between buyer and seller to obtain more than fixed rates. In some cases purchasers had offered a premium over the fixed price. The regulation had been designed to make such practice illegal.

FRENCH MISSION.

STATE RECEPTION.

ITINERARY ARRANGED.

On Tuesday next the members of the French Mission, headed by General Pau, will reach Sydney. The State Government has arranged the itinerary for the mission in New South Wales. The programme has yet to be submitted to General Pau, and is subject to alteration at the wish of that distinguished soldier and other members of the mission.

The personnel of the Mission is as follows:—General Pau, leader; M. Matthieu, commercial delegate; M. Leclerc Motte, textile delegate; M. Gravier, metallurgist; M. Corbiere, agricultural delegate; Dr. Andre Siegfried, general secretary; Commandant Danafre, attache to General Pau; M. Bader, secretary and accountant. The mission is accompanied by Mr. J. T. Meadows Smith, Honorary British Consul, and formerly secretary of the British Chamber of Commerce at Paris.

Included in the itinerary is a civic reception by the Lord Mayor and aldermen of the city on Tuesday morning, a reception by the Consul-General for France and the French community in the afternoon, and a State dinner at Parliament House at night.

On the following day, after visiting some of the ocean beaches and La Perouse, the State Fish depots, the Technological Museum, and Daceyville Model Suburb, the members of the mission will be the guests of his Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson at dinner, and afterwards at a reception at State Government House.

On Thursday visits will be paid to primary and secondary schools, and in the afternoon a reception will be given at the Hotel Australia by the French-Australian League of Help. This will be followed by a banquet at Paris House by the Consul-General for France.

Subsequent fixtures include visits to the Parramatta and Lane Cove Rivers, the Blue Mountains, Jenolan Caves, the Small Arms Factory and Messrs. Hoskins' iron works at Lithgow, the Hawkesbury Agricultural College, the State Aviation School at Richmond, the Broken Hill Proprietary Company's steel works at Newcastle, and the Walsh Island Dockyard.

The journey to Queensland will be continued by way of the Glen Innes-Grafton-Murwillumbah route, and an inspection made of the Byron Bay Butter Factory, en route. At Murwillumbah the mission will be met by a Queensland Ministerial delegation, who will join in the inspection of the Condong Sugar Mill on the Tweed River, and afterwards escort the party to Brisbane.

On the day of their return from Brisbane a visit to the University and reception by the Chancellor and members of the Senate has been arranged, followed by a luncheon by the Chamber of Commerce, and a garden party at State Government House.

The next three or four days will be occupied by a visit to Taronga Park, and inspection of the harbour wharfage accommodation, a visit to Cockatoo Island, and to the Minchinbury vineyards, and the site of the Warragamba Dam. During that period the mission will also be entertained by the Chamber of Manufactures.

M. Verbrugghen, director of the Conservatorium of Music, is arranging a grand concert in honour of our distinguished guests, to take place in the Theatre Royal.

The Premier has arranged for all the State Government Departments in the city to fly flags and display bunting on Tuesday next, and expresses the hope that private establishments will follow suit. The superintendent of navigation requests shipmasters in port to dress their ships at 7 a.m. on Tuesday.

NORTON GRIFFITHS.

COSTLY SYSTEM OF WORK.

INSPECTOR-GENERAL'S REPORT.

A condemnatory report by Mr. Davis, State Director-General of Public Works, on the operations under the Norton Griffiths contract with the State Government was tabled in the Legislative Assembly by the Minister for Works and Railways, Mr. Ball.

The cost of maintaining the Norton Griffiths organisation, Mr. Davis reported, amounted to £68,628. No other conclusion was possible than that it was a duplication of the existing machinery of the Public Works Department, and that in a most expensive way. It could not be said to have relieved the department in any respect. The tracing of plans supplied by the department, and the placing of the name of the firm and the signature of its employees on them, was "not only altogether an unnecessary and avoidable expense, but was contrary to all the accepted canons of engineering practice and professional etiquette."

The expectation that the firm's high reputation and experience and resources would enable them to carry out public works more economically than the Public Works Department was not realised. No modern methods were adopted, nor was work more expeditiously carried out. Indeed, the costs led to considerable increases and avoidable expenditure.

In respect to the city railway, Mr. Davis said that seeing the magnitude of the work and the fact that it had practically only just commenced, it was a matter of speculation as to what would have been the result as far as costs were concerned had the Norton Griffiths management been continued. All indications were that there was little conception of modern methods of work as applied to engineering construction of this class and magnitude. The result could not have been otherwise than to saddle the State with an expenditure much in excess of the estimate.

The total expenditure under the agreement amounted to £2,467,478. Extra expenses totalled £142,096; expenditure on central administration and general expense, £72,869; value of plant, material, and sundry assets, not included in cost of work, £569,770; suspense account, £67,878.

"It has been shown," Mr. Davis concluded, "that in an expenditure of £1,936,283, out of a work which will probably cost £20,000,000, a loss has been sustained, after allowing for increase of wages, of £374,323, or 23.96 per cent. Assuming that this loss be applied to the balance of the work to be performed at the date of the cancellation of the contract, the probable difference between the cost of the work and the estimate would have been in the region of £3,866,450. The commission to the company under the agreement is left out of consideration."

TO DESTROY CONSCRIPTION.

PROBABLE RESULT OF ALLIED VICTORY.

Unveiling an honour roll at the Department of Labour and Industry yesterday afternoon, the Minister, Mr. Beeby, said that the armies which had gone forward from the Empire were very much like the crusaders of old who went to rescue the shrine of Christendom from the Mohammedans. Individually, perhaps, said Mr. Beeby, much of this may have been unconscious, but at the back of our participation in the war was the national conception that the conflict was one from which no democratic country could stand aloof.

The people of Australia were beginning to focus in their minds what the Allies were fighting for, said the Minister. The Dominion armies had entered the conflict to achieve an ideal. To-day they felt confident that the war would save civilisation from the haunting fear of militarism. All compulsory soldiering, all forms of conscription, were repellant to a democracy. Conscription in a democratic country could never be justified except as an expedient to meet some supreme crisis. "It is clear to-day," added Mr. Beeby, "that the Allies will at least achieve this one definite purpose. If Prussian militarism is destroyed, then the conscript armies will disappear from Europe, and they will automatically disappear from all democratic countries directly the war is over. They will disappear from Central Europe only because of the courage of the Allies in persisting in their efforts until they were able to achieve the purpose for which they entered the war."

WAR LOAN.

TO BE LAUNCHED SEPT. 16.

A clear working week now remains before the Seventh War Loan is officially launched. The opening day will be September 16 (Monday week).

The central committee has hopes of securing the presence of General Pau and the other members of the French mission at the official ceremony.

The Governor (Sir Walter Davidson) will attend in Moore-street, together with representatives of the Federal and State Ministries, the Lord Mayor, and members of the Central War Loan Committee. A representation of a destroyer, 80ft long, will be erected, and from the deck of this rallying speeches will be delivered. Here will be announced the names of the shires and municipalities that have by then reached their quotas.

Noon has been fixed as the hour when the whole State will celebrate the opening of the loan. Following the suggestions received from various country centres, a definite programme has been framed for each town that is the headquarters of a shire or municipality. At 11.45 a.m. the local bands will play patriotic airs. At noon the chairman of every local committee—the Mayor or shire president, as the case may be—will declare the war loan open, and simultaneously bells will be pealed and the whistles of all engines of industry sounded. Addresses calling upon the people to respond to the nation's financial needs will be delivered, and thanks be offered that the tide of battle has turned in our favour. Cheers will be given for the King, the Allies, and the Australian boys at the front. Owners of motor cars in each centre will then assemble and drive subscribers to the loan to the banks. Where necessary they will go out into the country and bring in the people who in the meantime have been canvassed to invest. Application forms are now being signed throughout New South Wales to be in readiness to lodge on September 16. At night a bonfire will be lit on an eminence in each town. Where there are Boy Scouts they are being asked to build it. The idea is to beacon throughout the State that Australia is rallying to the support of her fighting sons.

The war loan rivalry between Hunter's Hill and Kuring-gai shire is intensifying. The quota of the former is £30,000 and that of the latter £100,000. Alderman Windeyer, Mayor of Hunter's Hill, stated yesterday that the municipality was now £11,000 above its quota. "We are proportionately above our quota what Kuring-gai shire is below its."

Singleton has over £4000 of its quota of £15,000. Mr. H. E. Hindmarsh, shire clerk of the Dorrigo, has written to the organising secretaries that he anticipates the over-subscription of the £30,000 Dorrigo is asked to find. In Wingadee shire 3 sub-committees have been formed to canvass 3000 square miles, carrying a population of one to the square mile. The enthusiasm and energy that the shire clerk (Mr. M'Kinnell) is throwing into the campaign is noteworthy. He has been walking great distances. At Gulargambone he organised a meeting and secured the attendance of 26 people. At Teridgerie, 32 miles from Coonamble, he got a dozen settlers together and formed a working committee. He also visited Quambone and won the active interest of the residents in the loan. An application form is being supplied to everyone in the shire in a position to buy a war bond. Burrangong shire (quota £30,000) and Young (quota £20,000) have combined. The joint hon. secretaries of the united effort are Messrs. G. Edmund Spark and R. Rumble. They have adopted "United we win" as their slogan. Points they are making for the loan are: "Good interest; short currency; exemption from State income tax; necessity of maintaining our forces in the field; a super-security." Trundle, in the Goobang shire, which has a quota of £30,000, is out to account for £14,000 of the sum. This was the amount subscribed by Trundle to the Sixth War Loan. Believing that no man in the district can escape one or the other for a month, the South Grafton committee has appointed stock agents and hairdressers authorised agents for the war loan.

Advice has been received from Broken Hill that the local committee is now campaigning vigorously. Twenty-three authorised agents for the loan have been appointed, and will carry out a house-to-house canvass.

MUSWELLBROOK.—At a conference of the aldermen of the municipality and the councillors of Shire of Muswellbrook, it was resolved that both bodies should work together in raising £35,000 for the district of Muswellbrook instead of the two amounts proposed, £15,000 for the municipality and £20,000 for the shire. An executive committee was appointed, and it was announced that the hospital and St. Alban's Church would invest £500 each.

The War Loan committee at Ulmarra are working energetically to raise Ulmarra's quota of £15,000. The committee comprises seven leading citizens, who daily arrange parties to scour all parts of the district by making a house to house canvass for subscriptions. Slightly over £10,000 has already been promised. The Mayor made an appeal to aldermen at the council meeting, and £1370 was subscribed by members of the council. The Pioneer Dairy Company voted £500.

SHIPBUILDING.

THREE KEELS LAID.

PROGRESS AT WALSH ISLAND.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

The laying of the keels of the three steamers being built at Walsh Island for the Commonwealth Government took place to-day.

The weather was cold, bleak, and squally, with intermittent rain. The proceedings throughout were marked by intense enthusiasm. A large and distinguished crowd of visitors came up from Sydney for the ceremony by special train. The keels were quickly laid, the first by the Governor, the second by the Premier, and the third by the Minister for the Navy, Mr. Poynton.

Subsequently the Chairman of the Board of Control of Walsh Island, Mr. Ball, Minister for Works, thanked his Excellency the Governor, the Premier, and Minister for the Navy for laying the keels. Mr. Ball paid tribute to the management of the island.

Responding, the Governor said to-day's ceremony was the beginning of great things for Australia. Here they had commenced to build the Australian mercantile marine. If the country could produce a good soldier it could produce a good workman. The worst thing that could happen the British Empire would be the loss of the carrying trade of the world. This war had shown us that Germany realised that. He hoped that Australia would earn a reputation for shipbuilding as high as its reputation for fighting.

The Premier, Mr. Holman, characterised the day's ceremony as an all-important occasion in Australian industry. To-day, he said, they commenced a new chapter in their industrial life.

The Minister for the Navy, Mr. Poynton, said that when he took charge of shipbuilding 40 men were employed in the industry. To-day they numbered 3000, and they had hardly commenced. The Government had succeeded in starting the construction of 50 ships, and a month hence more than 30 keels would be laid. The tonnage lost through submarine sinkings equalled total tonnage possessed by the United Kingdom before the war. With increased efforts at shipbuilding and allowing for those ships interned, they still had some millions less than their pre-war tonnage, and even the new construction of vessels was considerably below the pre-war scale of building. So that, besides the great loss of tonnage through sinkings, they had additionally lost the normal increase. Mr. Poynton said he looked upon those engaged in shipbuilding in the same way as he looked upon our soldiers. They were doing war work. "You are," he said, addressing the workmen, "engaged in a work of great national importance. There will be some friction; everything will not proceed as smoothly as we would wish. There will be pinpricks and disputes, but I appeal to you. With you the problem lies. Never cease work no matter what the cause. I assure you I will give you a fair deal and promise you speedy redress of your troubles. But I ask in return that you keep working. You must realise that this is the greatest opportunity for Australia, and you are commencing an industry more important than any that exists. Newcastle, be concluded, is the greatest shipbuilding yard in the Commonwealth."

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Acting Prime Minister (Mr. Watt) said it was the intention of the Government to introduce legislation early in the approaching session to give effect to the agreements signed by the 31 unions in connection with shipbuilding. The Government was not to be deterred in the prosecution of its policy of shipbuilding by this verdict, and it would pursue its own methods to give practical effect to it.

WAR CHEST DAY.

For the appeal throughout New South Wales on Friday, November 29, in aid of the War Chest, Messrs. C. A. Le M. Walker and Warren C. Mayor have been appointed honorary organisers for the "day" by the executive committee of the War Chest Fund. Mr. W. H. Wood has consented to act in the capacity of honorary secretary for the "day."

FROM THE WAR.

MORE SOLDIERS RETURN.

LONG WAIT AND CORDIAL WELCOME.

If the soldiers' homecoming yesterday was marred by the madcap mood of the weather, if the rain caused the flags with which the streets were decorated to droop despondently, if the occasional bursts of sunshine served only to tantalise those who were watching and waiting, the warm-hearted welcome at the Anzac Buffet was in some measure a compensation. The men were to have arrived at the buffet at about 11 o'clock in the morning. Wives, mothers, sisters, sweethearts—all were at the buffet at the hour; not a few long before. The majority hung on bravely, through sunshine and showers, until late in the afternoon. The little army of voluntary aids, under Miss Evans, also stuck to their posts, and served the waiting relations and friends with tea and refreshments. The youngsters present with their parents were given two servings of biscuits, while the voluntary aids won the thanks of many of the mothers with infants by making up babies' bottles. Music helped to relive the monotony of hours, which seemed to move at a snail's pace.

One hundred and fifty-six representatives of New South Wales, some 70 Queenslanders, and a few New Zealanders, came down the gangways at Woolloomooloo Bay after the medical examinations had been completed by Captain Lewis, Captain Trindall, and Captain Rundle, of the Randwick Military Hospital. It was then getting on for 4 o'clock. At the wharf to greet the men were Brigadier-General Lee, (State Commandant), Colonel Lorenzo, Colonel Sinclair (Principal Medical Officer), Captain Taylor, M.C. (Staff-officer for Invalids and Returned Soldiers), and members of the Red Cross executive. The Liverpool Headquarters Band, under Warrant-officer Mellor, was in attendance, and "made music," while the North Sydney St. John Voluntary Aid Detachment distributed flowers and cigarettes. Ten cot cases were taken to the Randwick Hospital. Of the other cases which required medical attention nine were from New South Wales and 12 were Queenslanders. These cases were taken to the 13th A.A. Hospital.

Nearly all the returned men had "seen service" in France. There were a few of the Australian Light Horse from Palestine. The number of men on crutches appeared to be greater than usual. One of the men explained that this was on account of artificial limbs now being fitted up in Australia.

With the New South Wales men yesterday were 13 New Zealanders—five from Mesopotamia and the remainder from Egypt. One of the party—a trooper in the New Zealand Mounted Rifles—was in England when the war broke out, and joining up there, went through the historic Mons retreat. The Mons ribbon is his proudest possession.

Going direct to the Central Railway Station in Red Cross motors the Queenslanders caught a special train to Brisbane after being served with tea by the St. George St. John V.A.D. There were other Red Cross cars to take the New South Wales men to the Anzac Buffet. The route of this procession was Sir John Young's-crescent, Haig-avenue, Park-street, George-street, Martin-place, Moore-street, Castlereagh-street, Bligh-street, Bent-street, and Macquarie-street. The Domain was entered by the Governor Bourke gates. There was a fine display of flags in the city, notably in Martin-place and Moore-street, and the "strong posts" appeared to have survived the long wait in a wonderful manner. At the Anzac Buffet the Leichhardt V.A.D. joined forces with the Mosman V.A.D. in waiting on the returned soldiers and their friends and relations. The Liverpool Headquarters Band played in the grounds during the reunion.

CHAPLAIN WADDY.

Among the arrivals was Chaplain (Captain) Stacey Waddy, well remembered as headmaster of King's School. He was met by his brother, Mr. E. L. Waddy. Chaplain Waddy has been absent for two years, and has been in France and more latterly in Palestine. He had two breaks-down in health, but expresses his pleasure at having been associated with a splendid lot of men. "On the Palestine front," he says, "the Australians have done wonders. I was with the men when they entered Jerusalem. It was a simple and quiet entry; there was nothing showy or ostentatious about it." What about the Australians at the front? Well, they have their "tails right up over the fence." They say nothing can stop them. That is the spirit of the men generally, both in Palestine and in France. But there is an emphatic need for recruits. The boys are having a worse time now, not only because of the intensity of the fighting, but because through lack of recruits they are not getting the measure of relief which they would otherwise enjoy."

MILITARY CROSS.

Major J. S. Dooley, who hails from Leeton, and has won the Military Cross—incidentally only one of the honours he has won on the field in the Empire's service—has been on active service since 1915. "I don't think the war is going to end for a day or two yet, despite the present push," he remarked. Speaking of the Australians, he says he thinks they have a more pronounced contempt for the Germans at the present time than since the commencement of the war. Wounds and sickness account for Major Dooley's return.

Lieut. A. B. Amess (Kyogle) won the Military Cross in April last, for distinguished bravery in France.

MERITORIOUS SERVICE MEDAL.

Sergt.-major W. Kerr, who won the Meritorious Service Medal, was away four years. He had been through the campaigns both in Gallipoli and in France. The sergt.-major prior to his enlistment was a constable attached to the Darlinghurst No. 3 Police Station.

The returned men included Major John A. McDowell (late of the Local Government Department, Sydney, and formerly council clerk of Petersham and Katoomba), Major H. O. O'Brien, Major H. S. Ryrie, Capt. Keith B. Suttor, Lieut. Otto Suess (of the Australian Flying Corps), Sapper James S. Brown (Stanmore), Military Medal, Warrant Officer W. H. S. Kerr, M.S.M., Sergt. Ralph N. Spendelove (Ashfield), Military Medal and Bar, Sergt. Chas. Thackery, Military Medal, and Sergt. F. Blackland, Military Medal (Wireless Squadron).

LORD MAYOR'S FUND

FAST BECOMING DEPLETED.

ANOTHER APPEAL TO PUBLIC.

As the Lord Mayor's Patriotic Fund, originally inaugurated to assist the dependents of soldiers, is fast becoming depleted by reason of the many claims made upon it, it has been decided by the executive committee (according to a statement furnished by the hon. organiser) to make a special appeal to the generosity of the public.

To that end October 11 has been set apart by the authorities at the request of the executive as "Soldiers' Dependents' Day," although the period of collection will range between October 4 and 11, the spring racing carnival week.

At present about £12,000 to £13,000 per month is disbursed among 25,000 dependents; and the good the fund has done since its foundation will be realised by a reference to the detailed figures of expenditure, which bear eloquent testimony to the work of the promoters. The original fund comprised a total of £216,000, but so great has the drain been upon it during this great European struggle that the promoters are convinced that something will have to be done speedily to maintain anything like a satisfactory service.

A preliminary meeting to arrange details in connection with the appeal was held yesterday afternoon. Alderman R. W. Richards, hon. organiser, presided, and associated with him were Mesdames Alfred Lee and Chris. Bennett, and Messrs. J. J. Cohen, M.L.A. (Speaker), John Stinson, L. Harvey, and J. Hughes. It was decided to place the street organisation in the hands of Mr. L. Harvey. Subject to the approval of the city aldermen, the basement of the Town Hall will be made available as central offices. The honorary treasurers are the Lord Mayor, Messrs. T. A. Dibbs, and J. Russell French, and Alderman R. W. Richards. Other committees and sectional committees will be appointed from time to time to forward the appeal.

On Monday a meeting, to be presided over by the Lord Mayor, will be addressed by his Excellency the Governor, the Premier, and Alderman R. W. Richards.

ALLEGED ASSAULT.

As the result of a disturbance at a cafe in Oxford-street last night, a returned soldier, named James Stephen Green, was taken by the Civil Ambulance to the Garrison Hospital, suffering from a fractured skull. Late last night Green's condition was so serious that he was not expected to recover.

According to the police report, a disturbance took place in the Marathon Cafe, Oxford-street, between Green and two waiters employed there. It is alleged that he was struck on the head with a piece of wood, while on the other hand it was stated that he was pushed over by one of the waiters, and struck his head on the floor.

The police subsequently arrested two Greeks, and charged them with causing grievous bodily harm.

DEATH OF MR. M'GARVIE SMITH

DISTINGUISHED SCIENTIST.

Mr. John M'Garvie Smith, who was best known as the scientist who presented to the State his secret of making anthrax vaccine, died suddenly at his home at Woollahra yesterday afternoon, at the age of 74. He had been in poor health for some time. He contracted influenza, and pneumonia supervened.

Mr. M'Garvie Smith was about to receive a Knighthood as an acknowledgment of his services to the State. His name was definitely included in the next list of honours, but, in view of his poor health, arrangements had been made to accelerate the announcement of the award, and it probably would have been made within a few days.

The funeral will take place this afternoon, leaving All Saints' Church, Ocean-street, Woollahra, at 3.15, for the Waverley Cemetery.

Mr. John M'Garvie Smith had on four different occasions performed notable service for the Australian people. His achievements may be stated thus:—

Improvements in the methods of extracting refractory ores. Without seeking fee or reward, he went to the Mount Morgan mine, in Queensland, and put the chlorine process of extracting gold on a proper footing, thus greatly assisting the gold-mining industry.

He discovered a successful method of using the anthrax vaccine, thus checking a disease that had been decimating Australian flocks.

Twenty-five years ago, from motives of public duty, he undertook, on behalf of the New South Wales Government, an inquiry respecting important matters affecting public health.

He presented his anthrax vaccine secret to the State, to be applied for the benefit of the State. He conveyed this great gift through Dr. Frank Wall, M.L.C., who acted on behalf of the Minister for Agriculture, Mr. Grahame. The Minister for the last three years has been in touch with Mr. McGarvie Smith on the matter.

Mr. M'Garvie Smith was born at Paddington 74 years ago, the son of a well-known pastoral family. At the early age of 13 he was obliged to seek his own livelihood, and he learned the trade of a watchmaker and jeweller, and established two shops. He took up photography, and this led to an interest in chemistry. He began at the age of 23 to attend classes and commenced to study seriously—practical chemistry under Professor Liversidge, and theory under Professor John Smith—at the Sydney University. As he had to attend also to his private business, he sacrificed all his spare time, and very many of the hours customarily devoted to sleep, in order that his studies should not be interfered with.

The acquirement of knowledge enabled him, in time, to qualify as a metallurgist. He became well known in this branch of science, and was closely and prominently identified with the mining industry. He solved, on the Sunny Corner and Broken Hill minefields, the problem of the treatment of our refractory ores. When the owners of the Mount Morgan mine had difficulty with their processes he went to Queensland and successfully attacked the problem, giving them the successful chlorine process, so that no further trouble was experienced.

Anthrax was then a deadly scourge among the cattle and sheep of New South Wales, and the restless scientist attacked the problem. Pasteur had discovered a vaccine which would check the disease, but it would not keep, and was therefore practically useless. After long experiment Mr. M'Garvie Smith evolved a vaccine that was capable of preservation for an indefinite period, and it has since been used with complete success. Anthrax is no longer a terror to pastoralists, as shown by the result of the vaccination of something like 25,000,000 sheep. The importance of Mr. M'Garvie Smith's discovery cannot be over-estimated. For instance, men working among animals suffering from anthrax, or handling the wool and skins of sheep or cattle so affected, are liable to contract the deadly disease. The vaccine has reduced these risks to a minimum.

The scientist, for many years, kept the formula for the preparation of the vaccine a complete business secret; but recently, having reached an advanced age, and arranging the disposal of his affairs, he handed the formula as a gift to the New South Wales Government. Business of manufacture and distribution is to be carried out by a board controlling the M'Garvie Smith Institute, on which the pastoral industry and the New South Wales Government are to have equal representation. A portion of the profits is to be devoted to research work into diseases affecting stock generally, and the balance is to go into the State Treasury.

In addition to giving this secret formula to the country—the value of which is difficult to assess, but which the scientist himself placed at £1,500,000—Mr. M'Garvie Smith endowed the new institute to the extent of £10,000, and also presented to the institute his fine laboratory and equipment, estimated to be worth alone several thousands of pounds.

Mr. M'Garvie Smith was a man of striking personality and great determination. For instance, many years ago he applied himself to the task of finding a vaccine which would allow persons to be inoculated against snakebite. He got together, in cages, no less than 500 Australian snakes, of all sorts and varieties. In order to secure their venom, he himself handled all these vicious reptiles once every fortnight for three years, yet, such was his coolness and purposefulness, he was never once bitten. Finally, he reached the conclusion that it is bacteriologically impossible to inoculate against snakebite. But during his lengthy investigations he collated a great deal of most valuable matter regarding the relative virulence of the venom of Australian snakes.

It is interesting to recall that Mr. M'Garvie Smith, in his youth, captained the first Australian rifle team to compete in America. During the visit of the Earl of Belmore to Sydney, over half a century ago, the young man, then a captain in the first regiment, was publicly presented, he having won his double crown as a rifleman. Mr. John Nobbs, M.L.C., a member of the second regiment, was presented at the same time.

Mr. M'Garvie Smith had travelled extensively in Europe and America, where he inspected many scientific laboratories. He married the widow of the Australian orator, Mr. Daniel Henry Deniehy, but she predeceased him by many years. He has left no children.

JACK'S DAY.

The committee of Jack's Day is making preparations for the collections in the street on November 1, and in view of the combined shipping and naval efforts, considerable modification of previous plans will be necessary. A very considerable number of offers from willing helpers have already been received, and the committee desires that any further offers to conduct stalls might be made before the 14th inst.

The Ancient Mariners are preparing an interesting exhibit for Jack's Day on November 1. The ship Endeavour, a half-sized model of Captain Cook's ship, will be moored alongside the Royal Exchange. Thirty young ladies, mostly daughters of the ancients, dressed in sailor's costume, will man the ship, and a committee, comprising 20 ladies, are organising the stalls.

Between the ship and the pavement will be a stall for the sale of native weapons and all sorts of curios, a splendid opportunity for the purchase of hangings for billiard-rooms and halls. Four other stalls will be erected for the sale of general goods. At the bow and stern of the ship a museum will be attached.

In the evening nautical pictures will be thrown on a sheet between the masts, from 8 to 9 o'clock. All goods must be sent in to the secretary of the Royal Exchange, who has provided a room for storage. Houlder Bros., Ltd., 63 Pitt-street, have given the use of their offices for refreshments for the ladies and sailor girls.

GOVERNOR AT NEWCASTLE.

ADDRESS TO THE BOYS.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

Continuing his tour of Newcastle, his Excellency the Governor, accompanied by Lady Davidson, and attended by Captain Saltmarshe, visited the Public schools of Newcastle, and addressed the scholars. Unveiling a roll of honour at Cook's Hill Public School, containing the names of 450 ex-pupils, seven teachers, and three old girls who are at the front as nurses, his Excellency expressed his appreciation of the school's great record, and paid a special tribute to the girls who have left home on their mission of mercy. Addressing the scholars his Excellency asked them to remember that they were British. "You will," he went on, "always consider vile and contaminating those people who have broken all the laws of God and man in their desire to impose their conquest on us by means of terror. Thank God the day has come when we have turned the tables on them. You will have noticed that it is necessary for us sometimes to retaliate in kind, and bring home to an enemy who would bomb peaceful towns that their own towns can be bombed in the same way. And still, you will find that when the time comes for us to have the whole mastery your race will not indulge in terrorism, will not bully the weak, will not trample on the womenkind, because they have been brought up to be manly and honourable, and as such you stand far above those enemies of ours in the scale of civilisation. Remember, his Excellency concluded, that whatever happens except in particularly great need for retaliation carry yourselves like men and make it true; in fact, that we have preached peace and goodwill among mankind ever since we have possessed the greatest Empire of the world."

POLICE STATION TRAGEDY.

At the City Coroner's Court yesterday Mr. H. S. Hawkins (City Coroner) held an inquest on the body of William Percival Brabazan, 55, a seaman, of Harrington-street, city, who was found unconscious in a cell at the Central Police Station, on the night of August 30, and who was found to be dead when removed to Sydney Hospital.

Sergeant Albert Winter, who was on duty at the Central Police Station on the night of the occurrence, said that at 10 minutes to 7 deceased was brought to the station in a cab. He was very drunk, and, after being charged, was locked in No. 6 cell alone. A few minutes later Charles E. E. Langlois was brought to the station, charged also with being drunk, and was placed in the same cell as Brabazan. Langlois was not as drunk as deceased. Shortly before half-past seven, when placing a third man in the cell, Constable Wells called Winter to the cell. Continuing, witness said that he saw deceased lying on the bed boards on his right side, with his back to the wall. There was a small wound on his left temple, from which blood was flowing. Langlois appeared to be very excited, and had blood on his right hand.

Dr. Stratford Sheldon said that Brabazan died from hemorrhage from wound in the abdomen. The wound could have been caused by a blow from a fist or a kick by a boot.

Sergeant Paulett said that on being questioned Langlois replied: "It was this way: We were talking about my stepfather. He said he was my stepfather. I knew he was not, so I plugged him and kicked him because he was a liar."

Langlois, who was present in court, said that he did not wish to give evidence.

The coroner returned a verdict of murder against Langlois, and committed him for trial at the Central Criminal Court. Bail was refused.

TRAGEDY AT MANLY.

Manly was the scene of a distressing domestic occurrence yesterday morning, as a result of which Mrs. Lynch, 45, of Smith-street, is in the Manly Cottage Hospital suffering from the effects of poison; Leslie Lynch, aged 4, her son, was taken to the institution suffering from wounds to the head, and about 10.30 last night died from the effects of his injuries; and Arthur Lynch, aged 21, was treated for wounds on the head.

Shortly after 9 a.m. yesterday Sergeant Small, who in response to a telephone message went to 26½ Smith-street, Manly, discovered Mrs. Lynch in a bed in the front room, apparently suffering from the effects of poison. Dr. Thomas, who arrived a few minutes later, ordered her removal to the hospital.

The Sergeant was informed that shortly after half past eight Mrs. Lynch was in the dining room with four of her children. Another boy, Leslie, aged 4, was in the laundry, and another son, Arthur, aged 21, was in a room close by. It is alleged that Mrs. Lynch, who had been suffering from despondency, picked up an axe, struck Arthur, who was asleep, a blow on the head, and then went into the laundry and attacked Leslie, inflicting serious injuries to his head. Sergeant Small discovered a number of bloodstains on portion of the premises. The two boys were treated at Dr. Devlin's surgery, a short distance away, and were then removed to the hospital.

In the house Sergeant Small found a bottle half full of sheep dip, which, it is stated, Mrs. Lynch had purchased for the purpose of disinfecting the drains.

I.W.W. INQUIRY.

BEFORE MR. JUSTICE STREET

The inquiry by Mr. Justice Street into the conduct of the police in connection with the I.W.W. case was resumed in No. 2 Jury Court yesterday.

Mr. Shand, K.C., and Mr. H. E. Manning (instructed by the Crown Solicitor) appeared for the Crown; Mr. Windeyer, K.C., and Mr. Collins (instructed by Mr. A. C. Roberts) appeared for Mr. Mutch, M.L.A., Mr. Brookfield, M.L.A., and Mr. E. E. Judd.

His Honor said he had given considerable attention to the question of calling the police officers whose conduct was in question. In view of Mr. Shand's undertaking, that he would call the whole of the police concerned, he would not allow them to be called by Mr. Windeyer at the present stage. But that ruling would not apply to Superintendent Walker in giving the history of the cases.

LOUIS GOLDSTEIN.

Louis Goldstein, recalled, said in answer to Mr. Windeyer that since the inquiry opened he had not seen Detective Surridge at 182 Forbes-street. Witness had seen him in various parts of the city.

M'ALLISTER'S DAUGHTER.

Frances Josephine M'Allister said she did not read her father's evidence at the trial because she was disgusted with him for being an informer. The police should find out those things for themselves.

Mr. Shand: If you knew that Sydney was to be burned down would not you tell the police?—No, I would not.

Do you say that seriously?—Yes, I do. I believe in leading a clean life, and that is not very clean. The police are about the city, and they should find out for themselves.

Witness stated that after Detective Ferguson had made use of her father he closed his door on him.

Mr. Shand: Would you undertake to swear that for months after the case was over your father was not going to Ferguson's night after night?—I know nothing about that.

While the case was on, and right up till the time they went to Moss Vale, witness continued, her father boarded with Detective Ferguson, and she understood he paid 25s per week.

HORSE TRAINER CALLED.

Richard O'Connor, horse trainer, said that Polycrates ran second in the Epsom Handicap on October 3, and second in the Metropolitan Handicap on October 7, 1917.

CONVERSATION WITH SCULLY.

Edward Charles Dess said that on one occasion he had a conversation with Scully in Kent-street regarding the I.W.W. propaganda. Scully asked witness if he saw a man named Tindal to send him across. The I.W.W. case was then referred to, and Scully said that it was only a matter of time when some of the men would be out of gaol. About that time witness met several men from an American schooner. Witness had several drinks with them, and they asked him whether he could tell them where the I.W.W. rooms were. Witness told them that there was no I.W.W. in existence, and they said they had a letter they would like to give to "one of the boys." Witness handed that letter to Scully.

"DALLINGTON HALL."

Arthur Goodman, an indent agent, residing at "Dallington Hall," said he had a supply of typewriting and carbon paper at his house.

Mr. Windeyer: Will you bring a supply of that paper to court?—No, I would prefer you to send for it. I have had to get out of bed to-day to come here.

Where is Mrs. Goodman to-day?—I don't know.

Don't you usually know where your wife is and when she is coming back?—Oh, yes. But I didn't ask her to-day, so that I would not have to tell an untruth.

His Honor: Was that to evade service?—No. If Mrs. Goodman has to be served I suppose she must be.

His Honor: Well, some of your answers are extraordinary.

Witness said he had nothing to hide, and was not guilty of anything. He and his wife had been brought into the case simply because one of the Goldstein's came to live at "Dallington Hall." Witness had been injured in his business. His clients said to him, "You are mixed up in the I.W.W. case," whereas he had had nothing at all to do with it.

His Honor: I quite understand your position, but certain evidence has been given here, and, naturally, Mr. Windeyer wishes to ask Mrs. Goodman and yourself questions.

Witness gave an undertaking that his wife would attend at 2 o'clock, and he would also bring samples of his stationery.

IN FORBES-STREET.

Emily Leckie, residing at 182 Forbes-street, said that two or three days after the inquiry opened a man whom she thought was Detective Surridge called to see Louis Goldstein at the address named. The man who called met Goldstein in the street, and walked away with him.

"YOU ARE A DONKEY."

Harry Lachter, a presser, who said he was a Polish Jew, deposed that whilst trying on a suit at Draker's, George-street, Davis Goldstein came in. They afterwards walked along the street together. Goldstein said he was going to give evidence in the I.W.W. cases, because he was in trouble. Witness said to him: "If you are in trouble why do you want to get other people into trouble." Goldstein replied: "I don't care if the whole world is in trouble so long as I get out." Goldstein said he was getting money, and witness could also get money if he gave evidence. "I did not know anything about the matter," the witness continued. Goldstein said to him: "You are a donkey, and will be a donkey all your life." At a subsequent meeting he said to Goldstein: "Have you got a conscience?" and Goldstein replied that if he had thought the men would have received such sentences he would not have given evidence.

To Mr. Shand: The witness said he was not a member of the I.W.W., had never attended the meetings of the organisation, knew none of the I.W.W. men, and took no interest in them.

Do you take an interest in anything?—Yes; in my wife and family.

Witness, in answer to further questions, said he mentioned what Davis Goldstein had told him to a young man named Abraham Lefcovitch about the same week that Goldstein spoke to him. He also told his two brothers. When he saw in the papers that evidence was asked for he saw Mr. Boote, and a couple of days later Mr. Judd called on him. Later he signed a statement that had been written out by Boote from what he said. Judd did not write anything. He had worked for Davis Goldstein, Kapinsky, and other firms.

Replying to Davis Goldstein, the witness said he left Goldstein's employ because another firm offered him 5s per week more wages. Goldstein did not complain to him of military coats that were burnt. He was not accused by Goldstein of deliberately burning them, and was not dismissed. He met Goldstein in Hunter-street at a later date, and they conversed on general matters about the case. He also met Goldstein at Kapinsky's.

Acting Superintendent Walker, in charge of the C.I. branch of the Police Department, resuming his evidence, produced a number of documents and the record book of reports from detectives.

After the luncheon adjournment Mr. Goodman produced typewriting and carbon paper used by him at his home.

Mr. Windeyer (to his Honor): This paper bears the same watermark as the paper on which Goldstein made his statement.

Mrs. Goodman and Miss Knyvett (recalled) were also examined.

Miss Knyvett identified Constable Higgins as having come to her house in company with another police official. She did not, so far as she could remember, tell Mrs. Leckie that Detective Surridge had been at the house.

Abraham Lefcovitch said that Lachter told him near the "tree of knowledge" in Hyde Park that Davis Goldstein was going to give evidence about the I.W.W. cases. Witness did not believe that at the time, because Davis Goldstein was a strong supporter of the I.W.W., and he (witness) was not. Davis Goldstein often insulted witness by saying that he knew nothing. At the Domain Baths one Sunday Lazarus Pura told him that several detectives were going to get suits from him, and that the Goldsteins were going to pay for them.

Roger Plowden, sergeant of police, employed as a clerk in the Criminal Investigation Department, produced the records book, showing the reports received by the department concerning the forged £5 note case.

Witness stated that the report of Detective Ferguson, dated September 7, 1916, was forwarded to the Inspector-General of Police on the same date. A report by Detective Moore that certain business people had been warned, and dated September 13, 1916, was also forwarded to the Inspector-General's Department.

The commission will be resumed on Monday.

By proclamation published in the "Commonwealth Gazette" the exportation of broom millet and honey from Australia is prohibited unless the consent in writing of the Minister for Customs is first obtained.

SPORTING.

THE TURF.

Horse-racing at Moorefield and pony and galloway racing at Kensington provide sport for metropolitan racegoers this afternoon, while those that prefer to go further afield will be catered for at Newcastle, where the local jockey club holds its spring meeting, and the Albury Racing Club brings off its Show meeting. The Victoria Amateur Turf Club holds its September meeting at Caulfield.

Monday will be a busy day at the office of the Australian Jockey Club, and those who have business to transact there will do well to get in early. The general entry for the spring meeting closes at 4 p.m., and at the same hour first forfeit falls due for the Epsom and The Metropolitan, and the classic races of the spring—the Derby, Breeders' Plate, and Gimcrack Stakes.

The Moorefield September reunion takes place this afternoon, and the numerous acceptances for three of the events render it necessary to run them in divisions, thus making a total of 10 races for the afternoon, the first of which has been timed to start at 1 p.m. The track is reported in good order, and even with the divisions, large fields are promised. The customary transit arrangements by rail will be in vogue, special trains being run at short intervals from the Central Railway Station; while the ordinary traffic to Kogarah will also be available. A number of horses with important spring engagements will be out under silk, consequently the interest in the sport will be greatly enhanced. Business commences at 1 p.m. with the Hurdle Race, in which the places may be filled by Fighting Chance, Lord Haven, and De Lyons; the situations in the first division of the Flying Handicap may go to Wolfern, Volta, and Fortrait, and in the second division to Tangannon, Dame Acre, and France. The Coastal Stakes will be run in three divisions, the first of which may be fought out by Coolaffon, Leral d'Iro, and Tarawera; the second by Garibaldi, Moulin Rouge, and Auburn Ayr, and the third by Tuncurry, Irish Guard, and Nanoma, Quaestor, Cerise Colours, and Two Blues may get home as named in the Rockdale Handicap. Machine Boy, New Ireland, and Crusol may demand the attention of the judge at the finish of the Moorefield Handicap; in the first division of the Carlton Mile Linfairn, Toorak, and Palmito may pass the post in order, and in the second division, Tressady Maid, Coolstone, and Burn Cam may divide the honours.

The programme for the Rosehill Spring Meeting claims the attention of owners and trainers on Monday next, for, at 4 p.m., the general entries close with the secretary, Mr. Geo. W. S. Rowe. The five events for which nominations are invited carry in the aggregate 775 sovs., of which 250 sovs. goes to the Spring Stakes; 150 sovs. to the Rosehill Handicap; and 125 sovs. each to the Hurdle Race, Camellia Stakes, and Highweight Handicap.

Pony and galloway racing will be the attraction at Kensington this afternoon, when, owing to the number of races necessitating divisions, no fewer than 15 events will constitute the card. The track is good going, the customary transit arrangements by special and ordinary trams will be in vogue, and the first race is timed to start at 12 noon. The results may be anticipated as under:—Maiden Handicap:—First division: Merrite, Taupiri Maid, Beredina. Second division: Billy Coke, Kernel, Captain Albert. Flying Handicap: First division: Loud Report, Brown Miner, Noble Bonne. Second division: Galen, The Nut, Else Phast. Third division: Fille Dormi, Smart Scribe, Coonoona. Fourteen-one Handicap:—First division: Marthos, Maggie N., Little Jack. Second division: Lady Mercer, Mettlesome, Malena. Encourage Stakes: British Flag, Lord Fisherman, Rattle. Second division: The Coin, Lord Moolton, Cartoonist. Fourteen-two Handicap:—First division: Lord Barcaldine, Amy Leon, Cool Jim. Second division: Traclo, Quickstep, Lucy Alwyne. Kensington Handicap:—First division: Ballanto, Linnette, Lineage. Second division: Rouviet, It's Funny, Paderewski.

BUTTER.

A FEDERAL POOL.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

If this season's butter is sold to the British Government the Federal Ministry proposes to create a pool, in which all the States except Western Australia will be included. The Minister for Price Fixing, Mr. Massy Greene, in outlining the proposals at a conference of representatives of dairy produce organisations, said he thought was justified by the latest advices received from London in saying that the Prime Minister, Mr. Hughes, would be successful in concluding negotiations for the sale of this season's butter to the British Government. If the butter was sold he proposed to create a pool which would be an absolute pool, and in which nobody was going to get an advantage over anybody else. Trade was to continue in the existing channels as far as possible. The present agents and the wholesalers who handled the butter would be licensed agents of the pool, and they would have to account to the pool for their transactions in butter, less the commission which they would charge. He proposed that the control of the pool should be solely in the hands of men who were directly and intimately connected with the business, subject, of course, to the Ministerial veto. The Government should be directly represented, owing to its financial responsibility. Three members of the controlling body—men closely associated with the industry—would be nominated by the Government, and the remaining members would be elected by the factories voting as units. Every butter factory would have a vote. He (Mr. Greene) would be nominally the chairman, and there would be one representative each of South Australia and Tasmania, and either one or two each of New South Wales, Victoria, and Queensland.

Subsequently Mr. Greene, on the committee of control announced that the Government nominees would be: Messrs. C. E. D. Meares, general manager of the Coastal Farmers' Co-operative Company of Sydney; A. W. Wilson, general manager of the Gippsland and Northern Co-operative Selling and Insurance Company, Ltd., Victoria; and W. Purcell, president of the Queensland Cheese Manufacturers' Association.

DEATH OF MR. R. N. JOHNSON.

The death of Mr. Richard Nicholas Johnson, which occurred on Thursday, removes a gentleman who was for very many years one of the best-known figures of the New South Wales Public Service. He retired in February, 1917, from the position of Commissioner for Stamp Duties, an office he had held for over 30 years. The late Mr. Johnson was born in Sydney in March, 1848, and both his parents were also born in Australia. He spent three years in a mercantile house, and then entered the Public Service as a junior clerk. Some years later he was appointed Deputy Commissioner, and on the death of Mr. William Henning he became Commissioner. The department grew greatly during his term of office, the revenue increasing from £62,000 to £1,500,000. The late Mr. Johnson leaves a family of four sons and one daughter, one of the sons being a solicitor in Cowra, and the others engaged in commercial life in Sydney. The interment took place in Waverley Cemetery yesterday, before a large gathering of relations and friends. Among the mourners were Messrs. Harold Johnson, Clifton Johnson, and Rupert Johnson (sons), Mr. Henry Johnson, of Mosman (brother), Messrs. J. H. R., J. J., and W. Johnson, and E. and J. Rainford (nephews), Mr. N. A. Johnson (brother-in-law), and Messrs. J. B. Olliff, Valentine Heaton, E. Grace, W. Hardy, M. Graham, S. Austin, Frank Smith, F. Green, J. M'Gregor, W. Goodwin, H. A. Richardson, E. J. Noble, C. M. Richardson, B. Travers, H. Gibson, E. Williamson, E. Potter, and B. Grant. The staff of the Stamp Commissioner's Office was represented by Messrs. Forsyth, Rabone, and Cummings. Mr. A. H. O'Connor represented the State Crown Solicitor.

THE WAR TANK.

ADELAIDE, Friday.

In the presence of the Governor and his wife, the opening demonstration was given in connection with the battle tank from Melbourne. Unley Oval was converted into a battle ground so that the manoeuvres of the weird armoured car could be seen under actual fighting conditions of to-day. There were trenches for it to cross, shell holes for it to climb into and out of, precipitous banks, and redoubts. The monster took all the ditches and holes with comical ease in a manner that must be witnessed to be properly realised.

WOOLLAHRA LOAN BILL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir.—The correspondence which has taken place on this bill indicates that the dissatisfaction with it is much more pronounced and widespread than I expected when I opened the discussion in your columns. The letter of Mr. Frank Lock this morning is a full exposure of the iniquity of the proposal. Mr. Lock's experience in the council is much more recent than mine, and consequently his information is more up to date. He assures us that the other wards are already in debt to Bellevue Ward to the extent of £30,000, and now it is proposed to saddle us with a further burden of £16,000. The charge by, I think, the Mayor that residents of Bellevue Ward have had tarred walks made to their doors is puerile. Wolseley-road, the principal street in Point Piper, is in a deplorable condition, although the property owners in that ward voluntarily subscribed £300 towards its construction. The council has been warned that it is in a dangerous condition, and that an accident there would probably involve it in heavy damages. I repeat that we do not object to this loan, but we contend that it should be made a charge on the whole borough. Now that the bill has been re-committed, let us hope that justice will be done. I am, etc.,

Sept. 6. RICHARD TEECE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir.—Mr. Latimer, in a letter to the "Herald," asked his critics to show him a better course than the one contained in the new bill. I will do so.

1. The new roads to cost £6000 should be made in accordance with resolutions carried in the council in May and June, 1917. These provided that a poll of the ratepayers to be benefited should be taken. A special loan raised the repayments of same to be made by a local rate extending approximately over 20 years, and as an equitable contribution the council to pay the whole of the interest on the said loan out of the council's general fund.

2. The widening of New South Head-road in front of the Cranbrook Estate at a cost of £2000, and the Bellevue Hill drainage scheme at a cost of £8000, should be done by means of a special loan, which should be charged to the whole of the borough.

3. I also consider that the system of bookkeeping followed up to 1911 should be reverted to. The ward debit and credit balances would then be brought forward from year to year, and thus we would be able to see the true financial position of the wards.

I would like to point out, however, that if the Bellevue Hill drainage to cost £8000, and the new roads referred to to cost £6000, can be made to wait until after the war, that course should be adopted, as, in my opinion, it is unpatriotic to spend loan money on new works (unless they are very urgent) at the present juncture, when every spare shilling is required for war purposes. I am, etc.,

Sept. 6. FRANK LOCK,
Ex-alderman Woollahra Council.

Generally speaking, cold conditions are indicated, owing to the great extent of the "High" which reaches to such far southern latitudes, over the Southern Ocean, and frost should occur at many places, also some fogs, and snow extend from the southern tablelands farther northward. BROKEN HILL COAL SUPPLIES.

BROKEN HILL, Friday.

Mr. C. J. Emery, president of the Mining Managers' Association, this afternoon made the following statement regarding the interruption of mining operations:—"Some of the coal which reached Port Pirie by the Killaba has already arrived in Broken Hill. As already stated, 225 tons went to the Junction mine, and 200 tons have arrived at the Junction North. All the other mines, with the exception of the British and Block 14, which hope to work through without any stoppage, will receive their proportions of the supplies which are coming to hand. The only difficulty remaining is to get the coal from Port Pirie, where it has been unloaded, to Broken Hill, and we are doing all we can to facilitate its carriage here. Provided that the coal comes along and is handled when it gets here, most of the mines should be going again within a week. The position will now gradually right itself."

RECORD JUMPING.

ALBURY, Friday.

The Albury Show was concluded on Thursday, in fine weather. On Wednesday very remarkable jumping was done in the high jump, three competitors, despite the sloppy condition of the ground, beating the local record by two inches, and also establishing a record for the southern district, viz., 7ft 6½in. This is within 2½ inches of the Australian record of 7ft 8½in put up by Bandolier at Quirindi in 1915. Nine horses competed for the prize, and three remained in at 7ft 6½in, viz.: W. J. Weir's Peter (ridden by R. Cluttick), Mrs. A. Judd's Sundown (ridden by Roley Doctor), and Mrs. A. Judd's Thumbs Up (also ridden by Doctor). The ties were decided on Thursday, and also a special prize for the record for the local ground. The bar was raised to 7ft 3in. Peter, again ridden by R. Cluttick, and Thumbs Up, ridden by the aboriginal, Roley Doctor, clearing at the third try, but Sundown failed. Amidst a scene of frantic excitement and sustained applause for horses and riders, the bar was raised to 7ft 5in, 1½in above the Australian record. Both horses again cleared the bar at the third try, Thumbs Up without touching the timber, Peter slightly tapping with his hind feet, but without disturbing the bar.

Both local and Australian records were easily broken, while to Thumbs Up belongs the distinction for having established, as a pony, fourteen hands, a world's record. Formerly the pony record jump was 6ft 6in, but this height has been recorded on six successive occasions during August and September by Thumbs Up.

FINANCIAL.

PRODUCTION AND EXPORT.

A previous article dealt with export of produce from Australia as compared with total production from the land of agricultural industry, pastoral industry, and dairying industry. The remaining important classes of exports are those of minerals and timber. As [illegible] the quantity of production and the quantity exported are given, not the values.

Among the metals our principal export is, of course, that of gold. For the last year for which figures are available, 1916-17, the quantity exported was 2,832,895 fine ozs, compared with a production in the calendar year 1916 of 1,656,519 ozs. The production of 1917 was, in round figures, 200,000oz below that of 1916. The greater part of our production of lead, copper, tin, and zinc is exported. Still war is forcing on us every day the manufacture of metal goods to which previously we had devoted very little attention. Before the war we manufactured all our lead requirements, and that without any protective duty, and in spite of the fact that our lead manufacturers obtained their lead on no more favourable terms than the buyers at the other end of the world. The manufacturer paid the price which was quoted in London, that is, the price which was paid in London. He got it no cheaper because he was 10,000 miles nearer the source of production, which seems an anomaly. Now the war has forced on us the manufacture of copper sheets, which were formerly imported, although we produced the raw material. Before the war all the collapsible tubes so much used in viscid toilet and medicinal preparations and for rubber solutions, and for many other viscid substances, were imported. Practically the war cut off the supply from overseas. During the last 12 months a Sydney firm has successfully arranged a plant to make the tubes, and has built up a business in the manufacture. Some of the tubes are of pure tin, and others are of lead coated with tin. In this way we are slowly supplying ourselves with our metal requirements. Our production of iron goods is now the most important of all our metal productions. The coal trade as far as exports were concerned was diminishing before the war. War has caused it to diminish at a still faster rate. A comparison of production and of export in quantities may be made thus:—

	Production. 1916.	Export. 1916-17.
Gold, fine oz.	1,656,519	2,832,895
Silver, oz.	8,220,776	5,611,169
Silver lead ore tons	261,740	(a)
Lead, tons	21,613	146,090
Zinc conc. and spelter, tons	209,775	184,309
Copper, tons	40,526	36,892
Tin ore, tons	7,536	3,664 (b)
Iron, pig, tons	92,536	1,722
Iron ore, tons	189,700	..
Coal, tons	9,812,087	846,652
Coke, tons	437,887	35,943

(a) Silver in matte is included in silver exports, and lead in matte is included in lead exports.

(b) Exclusive of 202 tons of concentrates and 1957 tons of ore.

The rare metal group has come into prominence since the war. Except in the case of antimony the production is small. Particulars of the quantity of antimony exported are not available. The official figures include only the value. Particulars are:—

	Production. 1916.	Export. 1916-17.
Molybdenite, tons	237	176
Bismuth, tons	84	85
Wolfram, tons	791	982
Antimony, tons	12,217	£18,702

Timber hewn or sawn in the Commonwealth during the year ended June 30, 1917, amounted to 472,311,761 super feet, from which exports were dressed timber 322,053 super feet, undressed timber 35,339,402 super feet; logs exported numbered 197,721. The estimated value of the production of Australia in 1916 was £270,427,000, and the value of exports of Australian produce and manufacture for the year ended June 30, 1917, £95,039,973. Approximately then we may say that the goods which the Commonwealth produced in 1916, Australia sold £170,000,000 worth.

BIG SHIPPING MERGER RUMOURED.

LONDON, Sept. 5.

"Fairplay" states that the rise in the deferred stock of the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company is due to a rumour in well informed circles that the Peninsular and the Cunard lines jointly or with Sir Owen Philipps, of the Royal Mail Steam Packet line, are taking over the English assets of the International Mercantile Marine Company of New Jersey.

[The International Mercantile Marine Company in 1902 formed the great shipping combine by acquiring a control of a number of British and other shipping companies. Included in the British companies it controls are the Oceanic Steam Navigation Company, the Atlantic Transport Company, the British and North Atlantic Steam (Dominion Line), together with a majority of the capital of Frederick Leyland and Co., Ltd. In 1916 the company controlled vessels aggregating 1,341,519 gross tonnage. Financially the company has never been a success. Sir Owen Philipps, besides being managing director of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Line, is also managing director of the Union Castle Line and the Elder Dempster Line. With the P. and O. Company there are the British India Line, the Union of New Zealand, and the New Zealand Shipping Company. If to these is added the Cunard Line, the merger would go a long way towards controlling the shipping of the United Kingdom.]

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

Previous high rates for manufactured metals were well maintained yesterday. There was a strong inquiry for T.U.S. sheep shears, and as stocks were exceptionally light holders were able to secure 110/. Fencing wire was dull. No. 8 black was offered at £53, and No. 10 at £57 a ton. The market was bare of barbed wire. Some sizes of wire nails were difficult to secure, but the general quotation for sizes 0 to 7 was 51/9 per cwt. Case lots of galvanised roofing screws commanded 1/6.

At yesterday's local tea sale, when 750 packages of Ceylons were submitted, the prices bid did not come up to vendors' ideas of values. Only about one-third of the catalogue was sold at rates ranging to 1/3½ per lb. Some merchants appeared convinced that a duty would be imposed on all tea imported into the Commonwealth.

Stocks of brewers' goods on spot were small. Victorian malt was scarce, mainly owing to the maltsters having contracts to ship a fair proportion of their output to the East. Until these contracts have been completed there will be very little malt available for the open local market. There were orders for Victorian malt yesterday which could not be filled. Reports from Hobart stated that stocks of Tasmanian hops held by the "pool" were almost exhausted. Other mediums in Hobart had practically nothing to offer. Some large parcels of 1916 and 1917 hops were said to have changed hands at high figures. It was stated that some of the leading brewers in the Commonwealth were endeavouring to have the embargo on the importation of American hops removed. Penang leaf isinglass was asked for, but the market was almost bare. Brazil lump was quoted at 9/6 per lb.

EMPTY TINS AND CASES.

The Director of Munitions intimates that the regulations prohibiting the purchase of empty tins and cases except by persons licensed for that purpose cover all second-hand benzine, petrol, and turpentine tins whatever they last contained. That tins may have been used for containing other material does not in any way alter the fact that they are benzine, petrol, or turpentine tins.

MINING.

A dull and occasionally easier market prevailed for mining shares on the Stock Exchange yesterday. Barriers opened at weak prices, but recovered partially towards the close of operations. Other sections of the market, however, failed to reflect a similar movement. Copper stocks met a weak market. C.S.As. changed hands 6d lower, 30/6, and Hampdens fell to 18/3. Among Barriers, British recovered 9d to 53/9, after a weak opening at 53/, and "Hills" rallied 6d to 71/9; while Norths advanced 6d to 69/6. On the fringe of the market, as also on the fringe of the field, B.H. Options closed 10/ higher than the previous day, at £18/10/, after opening at £20. In the gold collection, Tyrconnell were purchased at up to 3/4½, and Mt. Dudley had fair exchange at between 9/4 and 9/. Consols fell back to 17/9. Deeps figured steadily at 14/7½. Austral Malay at 55/ was a firm stock among tin issues. Tongkahs and Kampong were also solid, but Ratrut reacted to 25/6. Carpathia, paid, after an initial weakness at 25/9, recovered to 26/, and contributing shares were taken at 25/. Vegetable Creek, with yet another six ton yield for the week, recovered 3d to 15/6. Mammoth Molybdenite sold 3d lower at 10/9.

NOTES.

The Bagnon Valley output for the month of August was 36 tons of tin oxide, which was recovered from 78,000 cubic yards in 575 hours.

The Araluen Redbank No. 1 dredge worked 247 hours during the period ended September 6, and recovered 71oz 12dwt of smelted gold.

The directors of the Great Britain Sluicing Company have declared a dividend (the 76th) of 1/ per share, payable September 24 to shareholders registered on September 20. Conditions on the Britain plants paced and were very difficult during the past fortnight, owing to the presence of stones and a hard bottom, which rendered the work slow. The stripping of a fresh paddock was commenced at Y Creek, after the cleanings on August 20, but was hampered by meeting a seam of about four feet of clay.

The Black Range Consolidated Mines, N.L., has been added to the official list of the Sydney Stock Exchange. The authorised capital is £15,000, in 60,000 shares of 5/ each, all of which have been issued and paid up to 1/ per share.

Kalumpang Tin, N.L., has also been admitted for official quotations. The authorised capital is £100,000, in shares of £1 each, of which 70,000 shares were issued as fully paid, and 30,000 shares are paid to 15/.

The concern was formed to work the Kalumpang tin dredging property, and acquired the dredge of Trong Tin, N.L., for 50,000 fully paid shares. The work of erection is proceeding under contract, the time of erection being limited to 110 days, and the pontoon has been successfully floated.

MAIN ROADS.

Mr. N. K. Strack, secretary of the Motorists' Defence League, states in a letter that the league considers that the control of main roads should be handed over to the proposed Good Roads Board, and that the Government should exercise its prerogative to tax all users of the roads. The league does not consider that municipal and shire councils should be given power to tax their constituents for the upkeep of main roads.

FRENCH-AUSTRALIAN LEAGUE.

In aid of the French-Australian League of Help a musical and dramatic entertainment was given at St. James's Hall last night, the central feature in which was the rendering in French of the comedy, "Une Place a la Cour." Elegant costumes and powdered hair of the Marie Antoinette period, and gilded furniture, suggested the atmosphere of the little piece. Three young cousins, Valeria (Philippa Alston), Car'line (Barbara Bowker), and Lucie (Doris Yarwood), were informed by La Baronne de Lille (Laridge Davis) that the Chanoinesse de Rheims (Muffy Layton) was on her way with the news that one of their number was to be appointed a maid of honour to the queen of France, at a salary of 3000 florins a year. A peasant, La Mere Simone (Junie King) also appears on the scene, and when La Duchesse de Rheims (Marjorie Kirkland) arrives, to make the actual choice, she disguises herself as Mother Simone, in order to learn the real character of the three young candidates. The disinclination of two of them to spend their prospective pay in buying off the peasant's son from conscription, and Lucie's charitable intention of doing so, decides the point in the latter's favour, and the curtain falls. Miss Dorothy Norton was in the cast as the servant Martine. All the young people acquitted themselves with credit.

"La Chanson de la Mariée," a Breton folk song, followed by a village dance on the green as part of a wedding ceremony, was charmingly presented by a group of eight little girls in the quaint peasant dress of men and maids. Misses Nellie Jeske and Rosamund M'Millan produced the little scene, which was warmly applauded. Miss Hazel West, Miss Alston, Mr. Albert Goossens and Mr. Frank Hutchens assisted on the musical side, and Mr. Lawrence Campbell recited. Mr. Clifton Penny stage managed, and Mrs. Newtown Mackenzie was hon. organiser.

CONSERVATORIUM OF MUSIC.

To-day, at 2.30, Beethoven's "Missa Solemnis" will again be repeated under Mr. Henri Verbrugghen, the obligato voices being Miss Dulcie Huxtable, Miss Gladys Creighton, Mr. W. H. On Wednesday next, at 8.5 p.m., the Brahms Horn Trio will be repeated, piano Mr. Penn, violin Mr. Verbrugghen, and horn Mr. Laurence-Toole. The Bach concerto for two flutes (A. and W. Arlem) and violin solo (Miss Cullen) with strings will also be given. Plan at Nicholson's.

Owing to the great demand for seats, a final performance of Beethoven's "Missa Solemnis" has been arranged for Thursday, September 19, at 8.15 p.m. Plan now open at Nicholson's.

AMUSEMENTS.

HER MAJESTY'S—"HIGH JINKS."

The J. C. Williamson Company will close its long season at Her Majesty's Theatre with the revival this evening of "High Jinks." The only matinee will take place on Wednesday, and the farewell on Thursday night. The new cast will include:—Dr. Thorpe, Field Fisher; Dick Wayne, Fred Maguire; J. J. Jeffreys, Geo. Willoughby; Colonel Slaughter, Alfred Frith; M. Rabelais, Wm. Greene; Sylvia Dale, Maud Fane; Adelaide Fontaine, Connie Ediss; Marion Thorne, Maud Beatty; Mlle. Chi-Chi, Cecil Bradley.

"BUSINESS BEFORE PLEASURE."

This afternoon and on Wednesday the final matinees of "Business Before Pleasure" will be given at the Criterion Theatre, as that humorous pair, Adams and Waters, in their lifelike characters of Perlmutter and Potash in the picture business, with Vampires as a side-line, will be transferred next Friday evening to Her Majesty's Theatre. This laughable play is drawing crowded houses.

"THE MAN WHO CAME BACK."

Muriel Starr will open her return season at the Criterion next Saturday, with Jules Goodman's new play, "The Man Who Came Back," in which, as Marcelle, she appeared for many weeks in Melbourne. Mr. Louis Kimball, as Henry Potter, and Mr. Frank Harvey, as Captain Trelevan, will be prominent, and the cast will include Messrs. Styan, Lester, Arthur Wood, and other well-known artists. There will be a dance by Maggie Dickenson and Sydney Yates, in the cabaret scene. The plan will open at Paling's on Monday.

THE BERT BAILEY COMEDY COMPANY.

The first matinee of "Gran' Dad Rudd" is announced for next Wednesday at the Palace Theatre, where the fortunes of the out-back pioneers are carried on to another generation. Dave and Joe, with their respective wives have mirthful encounters with Gran' Dad Rudd, in which character Mr. Bert Bailey draws with masterly hand the genial tyrant of the past, as a man of authority and substance, but declining in years, and still ever "his bark is worse than his bite." A play not to be missed.

TIVOLI—LONDON REVUE, "S'NICE."

At 2.30 to-day, and again in the evening, the new London revue, "S'Nice," will be repeated at the Tivoli Theatre with all its colourful changes of scene, ballets, and song and dance diversions. Eve Kel and is in the principal character with plenty to act and sing; Fayette Perry has more than one clever specialty, including "The Foster Kid," and Leslie Gaze, Charles Albert, Harry de Rubeck, Chris Wren, Harry Burns, Elsie Parkes, Peggy Peate are all in the cast.

THE PLAYHOUSE.

The new programme at the Playhouse, packed with clever and original fun and good music, will serve to enhance the already excellent reputation that has been won by Mr. Sydney James and his company. Joseph Brennan and Kennedy Allen keep the audience in a simmer of mirth, Brennan's new songs and sketches last night being particularly well received. Miss Ida Newton, a dainty little soubrette and the most recent addition to the company, was an instant success. New numbers by old favourites included songs, instrumental solos and dances by Sydney James, Madeline Rossiter, the Kennedy Brothers, G. W. Desmond, Dorothy McBride, and others. There is not a dull moment in this entertainment. The programme is bright and well varied, and the general standard is high.

ACTORS' DAY.

Friday, September 27, has been fixed for an Actors' Day matinee, to take place at Her Majesty's Theatre, kindly lent by the J. C. Williamson management. A monster programme will be contributed to by all the principal artists of the J. C. Williamson, J. and N. Tait, Ben and John Fuller, Richard's Tivoli, and Sydney James companies.

TOWN HALL ORGAN RECITAL.

The city organist will resume his popular organ recitals at the Town Hall to-night with the famous overture to "William Tell," followed by the sextette from "Lucia," and the Gounod-Bach "Ave Maria." The "Mignon" Gavotte, Thome's graceful "Simple Aveu," "The Lost Chord," Lemmens' "Storm Fantasia," and a grand postal solo with variations on a hymn tune will also be played by Mr. Ernest Truman.

MR. S. VOST JANSSEN'S PUPILS.

At the King's Hall to-day, at 3 p.m., an invitation afternoon with the students of Mr. S. Vost Janssen will be held. Leading artists and students of Signor V. de Giorgio and Mr. Walter Thorman will assist. A plan is at Paling's.

OPEN-AIR BAND MUSIC.

The State Military Band, under Mr. J. B. Tougher, will play in Hyde Park at 7.30 p.m. to-morrow. Included in the programme will be the selection "Tonal Tidbits," and trombone solo, "Crystal Palace." The Eastern Suburbs United Band, under the direction of H. W. A. Weld, will perform to-morrow afternoon, at 3.15 p.m., in Watson's Bay Park.

TWENTY-FIRST MACHINE GUN CONCERT.

Music of the higher kind in association with artistic interpreters gave distinction to the concert organised by Miss Dorothy Helmrich and a strong committee at St. James's Hall on Wednesday night in aid of the 21st Machine Gun Comforts Fund. Mrs. Alex. Gordon introduced an aria from Massenet's "Therese," "Jour de Juin, Jour d' Ete," in which the heroine, gazing through prison bars before her execution, bids farewell to summer, the swallows, and all the sweetness of our brief life on earth. The contralto expressed all the solemnity of the situation, followed by a brief melodic theme of a touching character. Mrs. Gordon was also successful in "Yerduronette," a 17th century song from J. B. Wekerlin's collection, piquantly rendered in playful staccato tones. The song was repeated as an encore number, and the enthusiasm was renewed after "Lennavan-Mo," a lullaby with some effective chords in the accompaniment from the pen of Kathleen O'Connor, of this city.

Mr. Philip Wilson was heard with pleasure in Lindley Evans' setting of Louis Stevenson's famous "Requiem," and also in Morse Rummel's "Across the Hills," to which the tenor added effectively as encore "The Cloths of Heaven," an original composition by Thomas Dunhill. Miss Queenie Fenton, the true range of whose fine voice is that of a dramatic soprano, was naturally obliged to make all her effects in the higher passages of Goring Thomas's well-known contralto aria, "Oh, My Heart is Weary." Mr. Albert Goossens rendered with spirit and power the various phases of Eug. Diaz' song "Benvenuto Cellini," with "L'Heure Exquise" (Hahn) as a well-contrasted extra number. Mr. Henri Staell's many touches of magical charm in Sarasate's "Andalusian Melody," for violin, realised all the poetry of the music (encored); Mr. Lindley Evans's piano solos were appreciated; and the instrumental joined with Miss Josie Henderson (violin) and Miss Una Dawson ('cello) in a refined rendering of Widor's "Serenade." Miss Vera Houghton, Miss Gladys Teece, and Mr. Evans were the accompanists of the evening.

THE GAELIC SOCIETY'S CONCERT.

Though the Gaelic Society of New South Wales has been in existence for many years, its activities have not hitherto included the singing of the old Scots' ballads and Jacobite songs. This omission, however, was made good on Thursday night at a public concert under its auspices at St. James's Hall. A crowded audience greeted with responsive enthusiasm the national entertainment, which consisted of ballads, pipe playing, spectacular dances, club swinging (Miss Janet M'Caby), instrumental selections, and recitations (Mr. Tom Angus). Songs were given in Gaelic by Miss Marion Munro ("Fhira Bhata") and Mr. M. Christie ("Morungeal Dilio"). Miss Bessie Fraser, Miss Dorrie Ward, and Mr. Richard M'Clelland were successfully prominent in a long list of professional and amateur performers for whom Mr. James Taylor and Mr. Ernest Woodgate acted as accompanists. Mr. J. M. Dempster arranged the concert, and a beautiful souvenir programme presented spirit-stirring pictures of the Black Watch on the march, the Gordon and the Cameron Highlanders rushing to the attack, and a lovely landscape scene of "lochs an' lofty bens."

THE LYCEUM.

To-day Hoyt's at the Lyceum, Pitt-street, will present Jane and Katherine Lee, the juvenile funmakers in "American Buds," which will be retained all next week. In addition to this the William Fox production, "The Vicar of Wakefield," will be shown, with Sir John Hare in the principal part.

UNION PICTURE THEATRES.

In the change of programme at the Strand, Pitt-street, to-day Madge Kennedy will be seen in "Our Little Wife," and Gloria Swanson in the Triangle production "Station Content." These pictures will be shown all next week. De Groen's orchestra plays at the evening sessions. "The Triumph of the Weak" will be screened for the last time to-day at the Crystal Palace. The new features on Monday next will include Ethel Clayton in "Stolen Hours," and the Keystone comedy, "Isn't It Warm." The attractions at the Empress all next week will be "The Trap" (Alice Brady) and "The Last Rebel" (Belle Bennett).

Patrons of the Lyric from Monday next will see Charlie Chaplin in "A Dog's Life" and Alice Joyce in "The Triumph of the Week." For Thursday next "Up the Road with Sallie" is announced.

Commencing on Monday next, Betty Blythe and Harry Morey will be seen at the Globe in "A Game with Fate." A comedy, "The Adventurer," will also be shown. "The Woman Suffers" will be presented for the last time at the Grand, Pitt-street, to-day. "The Beautiful Mrs. Reynolds" and the twelfth episode of "The Fighting Trail" and a Chaplin comedy are announced for Monday and the following days. At the Globe "The Splendid Coward" will be succeeded on Monday by "A Game with Fate."

There will be a matinee at the Majestic to-day, commencing at 2.30. "The Woman Suffers" will be shown to-night. Next week "The Splendid Coward," "The Triumph of the Weak," "Madame Sphinx," and "The Beautiful Mrs. Reynolds" will be screened. The King's Cross, Darlinghurst, matinee to-day will start at 2.15. To-night's pictures include "The Witch Woman" and "Field of Honour." On Monday "Madame Sphinx" and "The Splendid Coward" will be presented.

WEST'S OLYMPIA.

Children will be catered for at to-day's matinee at West's Olympia, Oxford-street. "Up the Road with Sallie" will be the principal picture to-night. On Monday night and all next week Alice Brady will be seen in "The Trap."

HOUSES AND LAND FOR SALE.

THERE'S SOMETHING GOOD IN THIS.

You've often read or heard of some humble individual retiring to rest and waking up next morning to find himself famous; or some indifferent fellow in a careless moment paid a few shillings for a piece of land SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, and then forgot all about it, until he read of a NEW RAILWAY about to be constructed through it, or a MUNICIPAL COUNCIL about to resume it.

THEN HE LEARNS WHAT LUCK IS.

READ WHAT FOLLOWS. THEN TAKE ADVICE.

You're bound to make a good investment or secure a comfortable home.

HOUSES ARE SO SCARCE—OUR EASY TERMS will help you.

AT BANKSTOWN.

WATTAWA HEIGHTS ESTATE, under 20 minutes' walk from the Railway Station. Situated on one of the highest points of Bankstown. Beautiful views are obtainable from every lot. The soil is rich, fertile, and capable of growing almost anything. There are good roads leading to the Estate, and every block is valuable. Splendid Building Sites, 66ft x 198ft, from 14/6 per foot. ½-acre Block, from £46 each.

BORONIA PARK ESTATE, a beautiful parklike undulating property, about three miles west of Bankstown, reached by regular motor service, which passes the Estate. It is quite convenient to the prosperous village of East Hills, where every convenience is available. The soil on this Estate has been submitted to experts, who are of the unanimous opinion that it is "some of the richest and most fertile in the County of Cumberland." It is, therefore, eminently suitable for market gardens, flower and fruit culture, and the formation of the country renders it most favourable for the rearing of poultry. There are already a number of established homes there, and the market gardens of one of the early buyers (who is supplying the wants of the district) is a property worth inspection. Splendid Residential Blocks, 50ft x 181ft, £22/10/ per block. Half-acre Blocks, £30/10/ each. Acre Blocks £50 each.

THREEBEES ESTATE.—Just under two miles west from the Railway Station, and adjoining our Wattawa Hts. Estate, is an attractive farming property, approached on all sides by good roads. It is lightly timbered, easily cleared, and well sheltered, and is only ½ of a mile from the famous George's River. Each block has a gentle fall to the creek, is very fertile, and admirably adapted for cereals and market gardening, added to which a lucrative industry could be built up by the rearing of poultry and pigs. It has been conveniently subdivided into areas of from 1½ to 3 acres, and prices range from £23/10/ to £42/10/ per acre.

AT TOONGABBIE.

TOONGABBIE PARK ESTATE.—This superb farming area, right at the Toongabbie Station, and is one of the best propositions ever offered to the Public. Its marvellous growth and progress have been astounding. All over the Estate are dotted prosperous farms and fernlets, Stores, Post-office, Amusement Hall, and other conveniences have sprung up with great rapidity, and Toongabbie is destined to be one of the most popular of our suburban areas. Choice Building Sites, 66ft x 200ft, from 14/6 per foot.

GIRRAWEEN ESTATE is right in the heart of Toongabbie Park. It is a charming residential property, where you are able to enjoy all the benefits and delights of the country, with the conveniences of the city. The best of soil, to grow your own fruit, vegetables, and flowers, and the right climate for your health. Pretty township blocks, 66ft x 200ft, at £30 each. Mr. H. Sellen, local agent, at Wentworthville, will drive to inspect.

CONCORD-MORTLAKE.

Great developments are going on in this district, and many inquiries are being received for lots on our Connor and Gramere Estates, which are situated midway between Concord and Mortlake. The large shipbuilding works, factories, and other big industries are already REALITIES, and others will soon follow. Our land in this district is positively good, every block is valuable, and will be more so in the near future. The supply is limited, and the best advice we now tender is to secure a block at once. You will not have long to wait for a GOLDEN RESULT. Frontages of 50ft are available to-day from 27/6 to 36/6 per foot. TORRENS TITLE, and our well-known EASY TERMS apply.

ASQUITH.

One of the most beautiful rural suburban districts in the State, and one which is rapidly progressing, and fast becoming a popular residential district. It is only 41 minutes' run by train from the Central. It is about 600 feet above sea level, and highly recommended by the medical faculty as a fine, healthy place to live in. Our Asquith Station Estate is right at the station gates, where we have choice Sites, 50ft x 150ft, from 25/6 per foot, and on our EASY TERMS. These blocks have great prospective value.

WOY WOY.

ETTALONG BEACH ESTATE, Fronting Ettalong Beach, with its perfect surfing and magnificent marine panorama.

THE HISTORY OF ETTALONG

BROUGHT UP TO DATE.

MILLIONS OF YEARS AGO

Nature formed Ettalong Beach, and made a good job of it.

SIX YEARS AGO

We bought the Estate. We knew what was coming.

ONE YEAR AGO

A Fine Motor Road, Trafalgar-avenue, was finished. This runs from Woy Woy Station right to the Beach, a 12-minutes' motor drive.

Following on the completion of the road and the inauguration of a regular motor service the Public rushed Ettalong Beach without any auction or booming. We sold £7000 of land last season.

THREE MONTHS AGO

We put in hand the making of nearly a mile of good motor roads through the Estate, and along Ocean Beach-road to the Beach. These new roads are just finished, and open up the Estate wonderfully.

Now we are ready for the opening of another season, and are bringing into the market a fine line of lots hitherto reserved. They front the new motor road leading right on to the beach. Get one of these—30/ a foot. Also a number of other lots to choose from, from as low as £12/10/ per lot.
William's Motor Car meets every train, and runs you out to the Beach, through the Estate, in 12 minutes. Fare 1/ each way.

Get in early. There will be a rush this season.

STRATHFIELD.

This is an important railway station, and, taken from a residential point of view, the suburb stands pre-eminent. Only 7 miles from Sydney, on the Main Suburban Line, great facilities are offered for a quick new home. OUR BOULEVARD ESTATE is a choice residential property, level, grassed, and close to every convenience. The Ashfield-Burwood tram passes the corner of the Estate. Select Residential Sites, 48ft x 120ft, from 35/6 per foot.

BALMORAL.

WARRINGAH ESTATE.—A charming property, overlooking Balmoral Beach, with an uninterrupted view of Sydney Heads. Beautiful homes and glorious gardens abound. It is within a few minutes of the safest Beach around Sydney, and the foreshores of which make an ideal picnic reserve. Matchless sites, 50ft x 150ft, from 50/ per foot.

OUR USUAL EASY TERMS APPLY TO ALL THE FOREGOING ESTATES.

If you desire further information on any of the above properties, please fill in and send us the attached inquiry slip. It will commit you to nothing, and may prove well worth your while.

STATIONS, FARMS, AND STOCK.

STOCK. STATIONS. FARMS.
What a wonderful country is N.S.W. What an expanse of rich grazing lands, what wealth to be exploited in our wheat fields; what untold riches are dormant in our glorious North Coast. Truly, we have a country worth living in—worth fighting for—worth paying for—therefore, BUY A SHARE IN THE NEW WAR LOAN.
Now, if you want to help in the development of this great country, and enable it to meet the growing burdens of the War, secure a FARM or a STATION, and help produce something. Values are LOW now. What will they be when the influx of people rush to Australia? I say to you—get in by the early door—it is always cheaper.

THE SYDNEY COLLEGE OF CUTTING,
ADAMS' CHAMBERS, 482 GEORGE-STREET.

DRESSCUTTING.—FREE LESSON and information will be given NEXT WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, at 3 o'clock, at BEBARFALDS' SEWING MACHINE SERVICE DEPARTMENT, opp. Town Hall, George-street, Sydney.
Ladies invited. MAKE SURE OF A SEAT. Call or write for a free ticket for a reserved front chair, free of charge.
All your DRESSMAKING PROBLEMS and worries will be a THING OF THE PAST after you have seen the simple, easy, quick, and certain method of the BEBARFALD AUTOMATIC DRESSCUTTING TEMPLETS.
YOU WILL BE SHOWN how to cut fashionable shirt-blouses, skirts, or any other garment, using 3 measurements only. Owing to the enormous success we have had in teaching Ladies home dressmaking, and in teaching dressmakers this Automatic System of Cutting, we have been forced to set aside one afternoon each week to answer the hundreds of inquiries we have had, and to give Demonstrations.
BEFORE GOING IN FOR ANY DRESSCUTTING COURSE, you should find out—
(1) Will you be SHOWN WHAT YOU ARE GOING TO RECEIVE BEFORE YOU PAY FOR IT? You will at Bebarfalds' on Wednesday Afternoon Next.
(2) Will you be taught how to CUT A BLOUSE OR ANY GARMENT AT THE FIRST LESSON? Bebarfalds by their Automatic Dresscutting Templets guarantee to teach this.
(3) WILL YOU BE GIVEN CUTTING GUIDES OR TEMPLETS? Bebarfalds supply a set of guides or templets with every course.
(4) Or have you to learn by books? The Automatic Templets as used in the Bebarfald System REQUIRE NO BOOKS OF INSTRUCTION; they are self-acting, and explain themselves. Everything is marked out so that a little girl of 10, Ethel Slade, 88 City-road, Darlington, learnt to cut her own dresses by Bebarfalds' Automatic Dresscutting Method in two lessons.
(5) Will you be able to learn QUICKLY AND EASILY, and to CUT A GARMENT AND USE THREE MEASUREMENTS ONLY? Bebarfalds undertake to teach you one garment per lesson, using three measurements only—the Automatic Templets do the rest. After Bebarfalds' first lesson YOU WILL BE ABLE TO GO HOME AND CUT A BLOUSE FOR YOURSELF WITHOUT ANY HELP or any books of instruction, using the Automatic Templets only.
(6) Will you be SPECIALLY TAUGHT CUTTING? With the Bebarfald System you will.
(7) Or will you be given Books on Dressmaking? You require no books with the Bebarfald Automatic Dresscutting Templets.
If you have already learnt dressmaking, we strongly advise you to take a finishing course in cutting with us. WE REFUND YOUR MONEY IF WE FAIL TO TEACH YOU. ALL THIS WILL BE PROVED TO YOU at a Free Lesson next Wednesday Afternoon, at 3, and any lady present who can show that we cannot prove every word of the above advertisement will be given a 5-guinea Sewing Cabinet, GRATIS.
This Lesson and Demonstration are being given free as an advertisement to show what it is possible for any woman to do at home on her own sewing machine, or, better still, on a Bebarfald Automatic Sewing Machine, in 14 Models, from £6 to £14/14/.
Call or write for particulars of Sensible "SEW-EASY" Sewing Machines, and the "SO-EEZEE" Method of Dresscutting by home study.

TWO HUNDRED AND THIRTY STUDENTS are studying Summerhayes' Shorthand at the Metropolitan Business College. All the old drudgery is avoided, and students in a few weeks find themselves in possession of a highly-developed system, as brief as Pitman, but more orderly, more legible.
Summerhayes' Shorthand is not a one-day, three-rule, or a 30-day system. It is the invention of T. Stanley Summerhayes, a Pitman Medallist at 200 words per minute, and Principal of the Metropolitan Business College; and is constructed to meet the modern need of a high-speed, legible Shorthand, without the Pitman intricacies. Exceptions to rule are a big trouble in Pitman Shorthand. There are NO exceptions in the Summerhayes System, a sure proof of its better basis and more orderly arrangement. What a difference the one thing makes to the student. He is able to think clearly, quickly, and surely, and is NOT caught in the meshes of a maze of alternative outlines.
Demonstrations on request.
WE STILL TEACH THE PITMAN SYSTEM, and will continue to do so just as thoroughly as in the past. On this point see our latest Pitman successes, an overwhelming triumph for our Pitman students—2 out of 3 Firsts, and 30 out of 41 "Distinctions" in open competition in the latest I.P.S.A. Exam.
